HOPE AND FEAR FOR PEACE AIMS FILL DELEGATES

Yalta Casts Shadow Over Parley

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING [Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 21—With delegates of 46 nations allied against the axis powers beginning to assemble here, what may be the most momentous international conference of our times is getting under way. It will meet Wednesday to create an international organization to preserve world peace by pacific means if possible, by force, if necessary.

For the next one or two months 800 delegates and technical experts headed by the world's leading ministers of foreign affairs will consider and revise the plan for a new league of nations to enforce peace evolved last summer by the conference of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and China at Dumbarton Oaks.

These proposals, together with the agreement on voting procedure reached by British Prime Minister Churchill, Russian Dictator Stalin, and the late President Roosevelt at Yalta, will form the basis of deliberations at the San Francisco conference.

Delegates Stream In

The delegates streaming into San Francisco by plane and train are embued with high hopes and some apprehensions of the operation of the world organization they will construct in the next few weeks.

In this age-old endeavor to banish war from earth the delegates will strive to set up an agency to enforce peace more effective than Woodrow Wilson's league, which the United States refused to join unconditionally and which failed from lack of support by Great Britain and France.

They are hoping that what they do here will preserve peace at least as long as the congress of Vienna after the Napoleonic wars, to which was attributed Europe's freedom for a century from a major war. On the other hand, there are misgivings that the Dumbarton Oaks league would make more wars than it would stop.

Curbs Temper Hopes

The high hopes of its sponsors are tempered by the consideration that under the Dumbarton Oaks plan to curb aggression by force the only nations capable of plunging the world into another war would be immune from the curbs devised.

Any one of the five big powers—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, and China or any small nation befriended by a big power could start a war with impunity from interference by the new league to enforce peace. The league could use force to preserve peace

Russians Sign Pact with Red Polish Regime

LONDON, April 22 [Sunday]—(AP)—The Moscow radio announced early today signature of "a treaty of friendship, mutual assistance, and post-war collaboration" by Russia and the soviet sponsored Polish government of Warsaw.

[Terms of the treaty as outlined by Moscow will be found on Page 21.]

Apparently Premier Stalin was throwing his full support behind the regime which still is not recognized by the United States or Britain and which has been vainly bidding for a seat at the San Francisco conference

A Rousing Welcome

Leaders of the soviet backed government went to Moscow on Thursday and received a rousing welcome. The Moscow radio said they were Stalin's dinner guests in the Kremlin last night. The Moscow announcement said several days of talks with Premier Stalin preceded the signatures. The statement continued:

"The talks confirmed the determination of both countries to effect, together with the united nations, the speediest and final routing of Hitlerite Germany and also strengthen in the post-war period the radical change which has been achieved in the relations between the U. S. S. R. and Poland and the further development of collaboration and the joint struggle of the soviet and Polish peoples against the German invaders."

Signed by Stalin

The treaty was signed by Stalin for Russia and Osubkamorawski for the Warsaw government.

London reaction was that the treaty "isn't helping" in straightening out the Polish issue. Both the United States and Britain have insisted on reorganization of the Polish government in line with the Yalta agreement, under which various political elements would be included.

WARNING BY HULL

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—Moscow's announcement of a friendship treaty between Russia and the Kremlin sponsored Polish regime threw into high relief tonight a statement by Cordell Hull that the present chance for world organization, "once lost, may never recur."

Announcement of the treaty was regarded here as a dark shadow over diplomatic preparations for the San Francisco conference.

Hull, former secretary of state, gave his views in a letter dated April 20. He reported that his health will not permit him to go to San Francisco, at least in time for the opening of the meeting.

He wrote Secretary Stettinius that any successful world peace agency "must be built upon the foundations of law, justice, and fair dealing." The letter was from Bethesda Naval hospital where Hull has been ill for months.

Lists Principles

He expressed his faith that the conference, called to set up the world organization planned at Dumbarton Oaks, will be successful.

Hull listed the principles on which, he said, this organization must be built. They are:

1. Law, justice, and fair dealing.
2. Constant alertness to danger.
3. Coöperative effort in support of peace and security and freedom and progress.
4. Willingness to compose differences by peaceful adjustment.
5. Readiness to use force, if necessary, for the maintenance of peace.

He called the creation of a peace agency "a common interest of all peace loving nations, fundamental to their very survival as free nations."

AS SAN FRANCISCO PREPARES FOR COMPANY

DOG PROVES HE'S MISUNDERSTOOD

It's a Relief to Experts to Find He's Not Dumb

Dogs as a rule present few problems to attendants at the Illinois Humane society, 1145 Wabash av., whose business is understanding dogs and making dogs understand them. But the white and brown dog brought to the society headquarters last Monday by the coast guard had them stumped.

The dog, of uncertain ancestry, had been rescued by a coast guard patrol in the river at Elston av. and Division st.

Shows Its Gratitude

The dog licked the hands of each member of the crew as if in gratitude at being rescued.

At the Humane society, however, its behavior pattern differed sharply from that of most dogs brought there. Call of "Here, doggie," and other commands were ignored.

"He must be dumb," one of the attendants remarked to Dr. George Mackenzie, director.

He Can Do Anything

"There's nothing the matter with that dog," the director replied. "You had better take a course in animal psychology."

Ownership of the dog yesterday was traced to Mrs. Mary Drager of 1120 Hickory av., a widow. The dog went wild with joy when Mrs. Drager called at the society headquarters. At her commands he rolled over, played dead, shook hands, and barked.

But the attendants were relieved to learn they hadn't lost their way with dogs. Their only trouble had been that they couldn't speak Polish.

GLORIA MARRIES STOKOWSKI DAY AFTER DIVORCE

New York, April 21 (AP)—Gloria Vanderbilt De Cicco, 21, and Orchestra Conductor Leopold Stokowski, 63, were married today in Mexico, her lawyer, Otto E. Koegel, announced tonight. He said they will travel in Mexico for several weeks before returning to New York.

Gloria divorced Pasquale [Pat] De Cicco, Hollywood actor's agent, in Reno yesterday. She had accused De Cicco of cruelty. They were married Dec. 28, 1941.

49 Yank Prisoners Rescued; Tell of Beatings by Nazis

BY HAL FOUST [Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 90TH DIVISION, Germany, April 21 — Forty-nine American prisoners of war, most of them starving and scarred from beatings and lice, were rescued by the 357th infantry yesterday. Today the division hoped to rescue 200 others who had suffered the same ordeal.

Four Chicagoans were among the first group liberated. They had been abandoned by the Germans as physically unable to maintain the pace of a forced retreat. Their names and next of kin:

Pvt. Jacob Linstra, whose father, Joseph Linstra, lives at 3444 W. 106th pl.; Walter M. Wozniak, son of W. J. Wozniak, 8646 Marquette av.; Pvt. William W. Minto, whose mother, Mrs. Esther Minto, lives at 6417 S. Sangamon st.; and Pvt. Alex J. Murawski, step-son of Mrs. Josephine M. Murawski, 8557 Burnham av.

Chicagolanders Freed

Two other Chicagoland residents were in the initial group rescued. They were Pvt. Paul D. Capps of Herrin, Ill., and Pvt. Harvey Yensel, 3532 Robson st., Indianapolis, Ind.

All are expected to recover. Five hours after they were found they were back from the front, fed, deloused, and in clean blankets or clothes en route to base hospitals.

An infantry company led by Lt. Fred McGuire of Seattle, Wash., rushed into the village of Fuchsmuhl a few miles from the Czech border about 5:30 after a two day chase but the Nazis troops they were pursuing had left a few hours previously. A townsman pointed out a barn near the end of a dusty, narrow street.

As the light tanks and armored cars stopped in front of the barn, ragged and skinny figures staggering with weakness shouted a welcome. Some cried, some laughed as they threw their arms around their rescuers. Inside, another, unable to rise from a pallet, grinned and waved his bony arms.

Locked in Box Cars

"It was the most horrible sight I ever saw," said Pvt. Peter Calgaro, 2548 W. Superior st., Chicago, one of the rescuers. "I never thought Americans would have to undergo what those men went thru."

Some of the Americans had been locked in box cars for five days without food. Their only drinking water was the dirty trickle from thawing snow on the roofs of the cars. On a rail siding some of them died from deprivation.

The prisoners were forced to work 10 to 12 hours daily in a stone quarry which some described as tunnels thru rock. A typical day's menu consisted of ersatz coffee for breakfast, 40 grams of meat for lunch, and a soup of beet tops with black bread for dinner.

Beaten Five or Six Times

"I was beaten either five or six times—I don't remember which—because I couldn't understand an order given me in German," a 19 year old midwesterner said.

"I was hit numerous times for not taking bigger loads of rock with my shovel," said a youngster.

Another said the last man to leave the barracks in the morning was kicked by the guard as was the last man to line up for roll call and the last man to leave mess was kicked.

FRANCE WILL ASK NAZIS TO REPAY LOST HOURS OF MAN POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 21—France intends to exact man power from Germany equal to the number of man hours of which she has been deprived since 1940 by Germany's holding of 2,200,0000 French prisoners, deportees, and slave laborers, Finance Minister Rene Pleven said in a broadcast tonight.

The first step in exaction of reparations in kind will be assignment of German war prisoner crews to farms cultivating sugar beets in an effort to ease a disastrous domestic sugar shortage.

In a review of France's economic situation on the eve of his departure for San Francisco, Pleven admitted that prices in France were those asked by the black market, not those fixed by law.

"Scarce commodities that can effectively be placed under government control are only sold to the consumers at the cost of subsidies which are overwhelming for the budget," he said. "This increases the deficit and puts the burden on Frenchmen of the future, who will have to pay for consumption from which they have not benefitted."

GREATER REICH SLICED IN HALF; SIGHT SOVIET ARMOR NEAR ELBE

Forces Meet Close to Dresden, Says Paris Radio

(Maps on pages 2 and 4)

PARIS, April 22 [Sunday] (AP)—Formal announcement that the Americans and Russians have joined in central Germany was expected today in a matter of hours. There were indications that the United States 9th army might be the chosen force for the historic meeting at or near Berlin.

The Paris radio reported that the forces already had joined in the Dresden district.

Simultaneously United States 12th army group headquarters announced cryptically that a reconnaissance plane "in contact with the 83d division [which is a 9th army division] reported having sighted what is believed to be Russian armor somewhere east of the Elbe river this Saturday afternoon."

Reported Near Dresden

The two allies last were reported 32 miles apart east of Leipzig in an area about 75 miles south of Berlin, and it was in that sector around Dresden that the French said they had come together.

However, the Germans said the Russian forces already had cut around Berlin to Beelitz, on the southwest, while field reports from the American front put those Russians within 35 miles of the United States 9th army drawn up on the Elbe river.

The severed reich was under slashing attack in the north and south.

French Near Switzerland

French 1st army tanks in an 18 mile dash reached the upper Danube at a point 10 miles from the Swiss frontier.

Farther east the United States 7th army was only 20 miles from the river as American tanks and troops swung on a broad front, periling the Danubian stronghold of Ulm, sentinel city on the route to Munich, in Hitler's last stand area. Ulm is 72 miles west of Munich.

THOUSANDS FLEE CAPITAL; REPORT PANIC HITS 'L'S

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 22 [Sunday]—(AP) — The German controled Scandinavian telegraph bureau said today that Berlin residents were fleeing westward "by tens of thousands" in an effort to escape the heavy Russian artillery barrage sweeping the city from the east.

Transport means are limited, and the elevated railway stations are jammed, the agency said.

"When a train arrived there was panic," it related. "Berliners fought with one another in order to board the cars headed west. In suburban stations eyewitness reports seem almost too terrible. It is enough to say that people took no regard even for seriously wounded soldiers. Some even were thrown out of cars by the panic stricken."

Reports Reds in Potsdam

Russian forces were reported in Potsdam, Berlin's western suburb, tonight by Ivar Vesterlund, correspondent for the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter, indicating the soviet troops were trying for a complete encirclement of the Nazi capital.

Russian shells are falling in Unter den Linden, the Leipzigerstrasse and around the Brandenburg gate, Vesterlund added in a dramatic dispatch he described as probably his last from the doomed capital.

"From where are the Russians coming?" he asked. "Well, partly from the south along the road from Jueterbog, 25 miles away. Later news is that the Russians also bypassed southern Berlin and are in the district of Potsdam."

Many Air Battles Reported

Reporting many air battles over the city, Vesterlund said "one can almost feel the smell of powder, and just now the cannonading is increasing."

The Free Danish press service said that the Germans in Denmark would probably capitulate after the fall of Berlin, Hamburg, and Kiel, altho there have been previous strong indications that the Nazis would fight on Danish soil.

"Much indicates that the German soldier has lost his fighting spirit," the agency said, "and the fall of Berlin and Hamburg will surely mean the collapse of his psychological resistance to surrender."

This statement seemed to offer some confirmation to rumors current, especially in southern Sweden, that the Germans, possibly 100,000 strong there, planned to give up Denmark either by evacuation or capitulation within the next two weeks.

'Defend City,' Goebbels Pleads

LONDON, April 21 (AP) — Propaganda Minister Goebbels called on all the men, women, and children of Berlin tonight to defend the besieged capital.

In a broadcast Goebbels, who is also gauleiter of Berlin, proclaimed:

"What you have earned with blood and tears you must defend with all the means at your disposal. What you have earned with sweat and work you must defend."

Goebbels continued:

"During the years of bitter battles for national socialism we have learned to love Berlin and will under no circumstances let the enemy take possession of our town."

Made to Berlin Residents

Goebbels' speech was made over the controled "wired wireless," available only to residents of Berlin, but excerpts of the speech were given over the general German radio by commentators.

A late German broadcast declared forlornly: "The hour is too serious to hide anything now."

Nazi Propagandist Hans Fritsche, vaguely suggesting that Hitler himself might be conducting the city's final defense, said:

"The man who at that time fought for Berlin — the man who conquered Berlin—today leads its defense."

Field Kitchens Set Up

Walter Felchner, commentator for Transocean, said most of the population of Berlin was spending the days and nights underground and admitted the people of the city were haunted by the fear of hunger.

Felchner said field kitchens were being set up in Berlin and authorities are "already preparing for public mass feeding."

A German broadcast gave this picture of the bomb and shell battered capital of shrunken Germany:

"One sees people singly hurrying in the streets. We see lightly wounded who ask for an assembling point.

Bombs Hail Down

"Russian shells and bombs now are hailing down in the center of the capital. Our wounded are coming in on electric suburban trains from the front.

"We see carts and trucks fully laden with the possessions of farmers. We see land girls wrapped up in blankets sitting on top of wagons."

4 Million Locked in Death Struggle, Germans Say

LONDON, April 22 (Sunday) (AP)—The Germans announced last night that Red army tanks had burst three to four miles inside the flaming ruble strewn streets of barricaded Berlin in an overwhelming 16 army assault on the three-quarters encircled Nazi capital, biggest prize of two World wars.

Moscow, whose official reports were running 24 hours behind German announcements, did not immediately confirm the dramatic flash from doomed Berlin. But a Moscow dispatch filed hours before said a Red army entry into the Nazi citadal was "imminent."

The soviet high command said that veteran Russian forces, who have marched 1,000 miles from the gates of Moscow in one of the greatest military comebacks in history, were "engaged in fighting at Berlin's outskirts" and had captured Erkner on the city's eastern limits and seven other fortress suburbs three to 16 miles from the capital.

Reich Split in Two

Raining war ending blows on a beaten foe, the Russians by Berlin's account also irreparably split Adolf Hitler's greater reich into two completely isolated areas in a development as momentous as the Red army's entry into the capital.

This left the terror stricken and shell and bomb pocked city without any escape routes to the south and presaged an imminent linkup in force with American troops. Unconfirmed reports from Paris said American and soviet patrols already had joined.

Berlin, caught in a swirling battle which the Germans said "never has been surpassed in ferocity," as well as all the Baltic ports and the holdout areas of Denmark and Norway, was completely cut off from the Nazis "national redoubt" in southern Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, and northern Italy.

4 Million in Battle

German reports indicated that perhaps 4 million Russian troops and German soldiers and home guards were locked in the death struggle for Berlin, which German broadcasts swore to defend to "its last ruin."

The broadcasts said big soviet siege guns were "hailing" shells into Potzdamer platz in the heart of Berlin as the capital's surviving 3 million civilians huddled in cellars or manned street barricades.

From the shell-cratered heart of the city the word came just before midnight that the Russians had penetrated into the capital from the northeast, swarming thru the streets of the left wing populous working class districts of Weissensee and Pankow.

A mass of Russian tanks, artillery and infantry was about three to four miles from the heart of the city around Berlin's famed cathedral.

The Germans have rushed all of their reserve units against the Russians in the Berlin suburbs, a supplement to Moscow's war bulletin said. The ground is strewn with thousands of dead German officers and men, much booty has been captured and many prisoners have been taken.

62 Nazi Planes Bagged

Russian bombers and Stormoviks struck massive blows from the air at centers of resistance, and shot down 62 German planes in today's aerial combats.

The Russians apparently swung across the powerful German defense line based on the circular superhighway around the capital on an 11 mile front from the captured suburbs of Bernau and Alt Landsberg, both three miles from the city limits and 13 miles from its core.

Bernau, whose fall cut Berlin's vital rail and road communications with the embattled Baltic port of Stettin, was seized in a 20 mile Russian advance thru blazing suburban forests, to which the Germans had put the torch in vain hope of halting the soviet onslaught.

In a 28 mile arc from Bernau, soviet tanks battled thru the suburbs of Werneuchen, Strausberg, Buckow, Muencheberg, and Fuerstenwalde, and reached the city limits at Erkner, astride the superhighway. Erkner was taken in a 27 mile Russian surge from Seelow, whose capture was announced Friday.

Lunge South 65 Miles

The Germans, whose reports have been borne out by Moscow's conservative announcements, admitted that the sprawling city was three-quarters encircled by a huge 70 mile arc of steel thrown around the city in a gigantic pincer operation.

This was effected when the Russians reportedly lunged south of the capital in a spectacular 65 mile overnight sweep that drove to Beelitz, 13 miles southwest of the city's famed Potsdam gate.

One soviet spearhead, by German admission, had smashed to Treuenbrietzen, 23 miles southwest of Berlin and 32 miles from American forces on the Elbe river near Dessau.

The reported advance carried a wall of Russian tanks across Berlin's rail and highway links to Dresden and the south. Those communication routes that remained wound up in American lines.

Only a 40 mile gap separated Red army claws that reportedly had clamped the huge pincer on the capital.

Call Situation Critical

Moscow put the Russians 35 miles southeast of Beelitz and Treuenbrietzen. In this area soviet forces overran Luckau, 33 miles south of outflanked Berlin, in a 34 mile advance thru Calau, 16 miles west of the by-passed fortress of Cottbus.

The Germans said that motorized infantry, supported by hundreds of tanks, had pushed north from Luckau another 31 miles and reached Berlin's southeastern suburb of Koenigs-Wusterhausen, site of Berlin's silent long wave Deutschlandsender radio station. The situation in this area, three miles from Berlin and astride the highway ring, was described as "critical."

Another spearhead of soviet assault forces, advancing after being caught by a flood of water released from a dynamited hydro-electric power dam, advanced to the area of the big military training center of Wuensdorf, 15 miles south of Berlin, and the soviet power drive was pressing toward Zossen—bombed site of the German high command headquarters.

Between Berlin and Dresden the tidal wave of soviet mechanized power surged across the Brandenburg plains on a 58 mile front from captured Senftenberg south to the outskirts of Koenigsbrueck, only 14 miles northeast of Dresden.

Hurling back suicidal charges by drunken German troops, the soviet drive was officially within 48 miles of the American armies standing on the Mulde river.

Advance on Prague.

Further southwest in Austria, Moscow announced that Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian army was moving across the plateaus on the southern approaches to Prague on a 35 mile front.

Gaining up to seven miles, Malinovsky's cavalry charged into the Czechoslovak town of Valcice, linking forces in the Breclav area, and at the southern end of the front captured Ober Gaenserndorf, 10 miles north of Vienna. In the center they slashed within four miles of the key 10 way junction of Laa by winning Fallbach.

Moscow announced that Russian heavy bombers had heavily blasted Berlin overnight, adding huge fires to those set by a 1,000 plane R. A. F. Mosquito bomber raid.

Enemy broadcasts admitted whole areas of the capital were in flames.

The all-out assault gave the Germans their blackest day of the war and foreboded a devastated wasteland of crumbled stone and steel in the area that once was the proud European capital. The Germans themselves said the titanic battle dwarfed anything yet experienced in this war.

Marshal Konev's 1st Ukrainian army was reported by Moscow battling for Dresden's outer defenses. Fierce Siberian cavalrymen and hard fighting Cossacks slashed thru crumbling German positions in the area where the Germans said Konev was riding hard past Bautzen and Kamenz for a strong linkup with the Americans.

Meanwhile, south of the Baltic naval base of Stettin, Stalin's mammoth coördinated offensive after cutting the Berlin-Stettin superhighway hammered toward a junction with the allies on the North German plain, Berlin said.

Transocean reported multiple new crossings of the lower Oder, locating one at Gartz, 14 miles southwest of Stettin. This, the account said, was where the road to Berlin was cut.

The offensive on Stettin itself was opened with strong forces between Schwedt and the Stettin lagoon. Commentator Max Krull broadcast, and soviet forces were storming the fortress port's eastern and southern suburbs.

While most Berliners cringed underground, they heard "the thunder of battle . . . ceaselessly from the east" as the conflict raged with never diminishing violence, Transocean said.

Barricades Thrown Up

Nazi authorities decreed, the broadcast continued, that all men and women unable to reach their customary places of work because of transportation curtailment report immediately at the neighborhood centers for assignment to the construction of anti-tank obstacles and the digging of ditches.

The eastern front had moved to "the immediate vicinity of Berlin," the Transocean report said, and by night "gun flashes of German and Russian artillery" could be seen by the residents. Ragged volkssturm detachments were moving to the outer defense rings and German tanks rumbled thru the darkened streets, the commentator said.

Barricades were being thrown up everywhere by every available worker, man, woman or child.

In Moscow, where great excitement prevailed over the prospects of the American-Russian juncture and over the imminent entry into Berlin, Pravda proclaimed editorially that "the space between the Oder and the Rhine has become the field of the last decisive battles.

Russians Surround and Enter Capital of Germany

VICTORY TIDINGS NOT FAR AWAY, CHURCHILL SAYS

BRISTOL, England, April 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today disclosed that victory in Germany will be decided by allied army commanders' notification to their governments that "their task is done."

"I do not think it need be long delayed. We will soon be on the Baltic," he said in a speech to the people of bomb blasted Bristol.

He asked Britons to restrain any celebration of a victory in Europe in favor of a "new leap forward" to bring the war against Japan "to a conclusion altogether free from any doubt."

Have Japs to Finish

"We have the Japanese to finish," he said, "and we stand absolutely with our great American ally paying off at the other end of the world debts as heavy as ever were inflicted on us."

Speaking only a few days before the opening of the San Francisco world security conference, the prime minister affirmed that "a world security organization which we must build and shall build will be free and open to all the nations of the world," indicating the eventual inclusion of neutral and even enemy countries.

Inside such an organization, "from which we hope will come a long and peaceful period, will be the open, avowed, and inseparable friendship of the great English-speaking nations of the world," he said.

"Coming to the End"

Standing in the great blitzed and fire-blackened hall of the University of Bristol, Churchill said "We are coming to the end of a long journey." Speaking of victory in the European war, he went on:

"We may pause for a moment. We may rejoice, but it may only be for the purpose of regathering strength. There may be dangers that people will feel, after this long struggle and this great and undisputed victory over a formidable opponent, that we can relax. I cannot give the word for that."

820 U. S. PLANES BLAST GERMAN 'REDOUBT' AREA

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—At least 820 American planes attacked in and around the south German "national redoubt" almost unopposed today, dropping bombs in the area of Munich, Nazi birth place, and near Berchtesgaden where Naziism may make its last stand.

More than 300 8th air force Fortresses escorted by 400 Mustangs and Thunderbolts brought the total of bombs dropped on Munich to 10,500 tons. The jet plane base at Landsberg, 30 miles to the west, was bombed and strafed. The 9th air force made its first raid into Austria with an attack by 120 A-26 invaders on the railyards at Attnang-Pucheim along the important Salzburg-Linz line and not far from Adolf Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat.

The luftwaffe, which has lost more than 3,000 planes in the last two weeks, failed to come up. Bomber crewmen said they encountered only light flak in the trip to Munich.

CHURCHILL SAYS BOMBS HIT NEAR HIM IN LONDON

BRISTOL, England, April 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill disclosed today that German bombs had blasted a "hideous gap" in the British admiralty building—only a few feet from famed No. 10 Downing st.—while he was looking on.

"I have often looked across from No. 10 Downing st. to the other side of the parade ground to the admiralty building to see that building crumbling under fire of the enemy," he said.

He reported the dwelling of the first lord of the admiralty, A. V. Alexander, also had been "pierced with fragments so that many of the pictures we value saw action and will go down to all generations with little marks in them to tell of the brave days of old." Churchill did not give the date of the bombing.

HITLER BELIEVED RUNNING WAR AT BERCHTESGADEN

Expected to Call In Army from Italy

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MAGDEBURG, Germany, April 21—It is believed here that Hitler already has taken refuge in the national redoubt and is directing military operations on the east and west fronts from Berchtesgaden, with Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel nominal commander against the Russians, altho Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian exercises the real control. Meanwhile Field Marshal Albert Kesselring is directing what's left of the regular army on the Anglo-American front from Leipzig south.

The enemy north of the Leipzig sector is split into various fragments, with certain rabid Nazi commanders enforcing the bitterest resistance at pistol points, while units under less determined officers melt away, surrendering or donning civilian clothes and grabbing plows, harrows, and rakes to till the soil.

Berlin "Written Off."

It is believed Hitler wrote off Berlin several months ago, after allied bombings had wrecked the city's railway and highway junction value, and moved the Nazi government south of the capital. He then expected the Russians to seize the ruins of Berlin, but hoped to hold th Rhine-Elbe area, the center of his small arms industry.

He fought desperately to retain Leipzig and Neurnberg for their valuable road and rail nets, but both of these are lost and he now lacks mobility to move the seat of government again.

Will Quit Italy

He expects to withdraw the Italian army, now commanded by Gen. von Vietinghoff, thru Brenner pass to the national redoubt, to reënforce the troops already concentrated there with supplies for six months.

Tonight, Yanks operating the huge detectors for noting the approach of enemy aircraft are tuning them in to try to hear the Russian bombardments of Berlin, with reports that only 40 miles separate the Red army from Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th.

ALLIES FREEING CZECH LAND LIKE OTHER NATIONS

PARIS, April 21 (AP)—The Americans, who have stabbed two columns into the western Sudetenland end of Czechoslovakia, are proceeding on the same basis as in any country being liberated.

Most of the Czech population of Sudetenland had been moved out and the residents are primarily German, but the allies intend to recognize the original territorial limits of Czechoslovakia in complete repudiation of Hitler's pre-war land grab.

It was pointed out here that Czechoslovakia has an allied recognized government and that that government already is back in Czechoslovakia after Russian capture of the eastern end of the former republic.

DAD TO G. I. JOE BOND IDEA STIRS QUICK RESPONSE

Fathers Call to Announce They're Adopting Plan

In an editorial captioned "From Dad to G. I. Joe," THE TRIBUNE yesterday suggested that men with sons in service might want to show their pride in and appreciation of these sons by buying war bonds in their names. Scarcely had the last editions left the news stands when evidence was at hand that the idea had caught the city's imagination.

Edward J. Kirchberg

The outpouring of enthusiasm proved that a father's regard for his son, if more reserved and not as widely sung as a mother's, is equally as fervent. Chicago men rushed to their phones to express their eagerness to share in what may well become one of the most impressive demonstrations of paternal affection the city has seen.

Helps U. S. Now and Son Later

The movement was for fathers only. It was as if a "Mothers Keep Out" sign had been hung on the project.

The practical as well as the sentimental aspects of the idea appealed to men who knew the rigors of the world as well as the pleasures and rewards of family life. For the purchase of the bond would help the nation now and the boy later.

The treasury department welcomed the "From Dad to G. I. Joe" idea warmly. "The suggestion was splendid," said Lawrence F. Stern, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, in a letter to Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. "It was so good in fact that we hope it will become an important activity of the forthcoming seventh war loan drive."

Byfield Buys for Two Sons

A hotel man, Ernest Byfield, was among the first to telephone his support of the idea to the treasury department. He said that he would buy bonds for Capt. Ernest Byfield Jr., an army intelligence officer stationed in Washington, and Lt. Hugh W. Byfield, an army engineer in France.

Edward J. Kirchberg of Crystal Lake, McHenry county, retired loop jeweler, disclosed his intention of buying bonds for each of his four sons in service, Sgt. Robert J., Machinist's Mate 2d Class Frank, Lt. Donald V., and Lt. J. Michael. Kirchberg had three sons in service in the first World war.

Michael J. Herbert, 5713 S. Aberdeen st., president and founder of the Air Corps Fathers' Club of Chicago, called to say that his son, Sgt. George B. Herbert, an aerial gunner stationed in England, would be the recipient of a bond.

Club Members Line Up

Herbert promised 100 per cent support for the idea among the members of his club. A short time later he called back with the following names of men who will purchase bonds for their sons in service:

Thomas J. Donnelly, 7205 S. Ashland av. Son, Corp. Thomas J. Donnelly Jr., stationed in Italy.

John F. Peters, 6430 N. Spokane av. Son, Capt. John E. Peters, troop carrier officer who dropped paratroopers in France on D-day.

Sherman J. Sexton, 2430 N. Lake View av. Son, Lt. William C. Sexton, now in Florida after completing 35 missions over Europe.

Roland B. Beck, 8058 Woodlawn av. Son, Corp. Jerome E. Beck, now on the west coast.

Frank Krumholz, 7442 N. Claremont av. Son, Staff Sgt. Robert A. Krumholz, now in an Austrian prison camp.

Negro Fathers Joining In

Chicago Negroes joined the movement enthusiastically. Dr. John A. Feaman, a dentist at 4729 S. State st., said that he would buy another bond for his son, Pvt. John A. Feaman Jr., who has not been heard from since he landed in France on D-day.

W. Ellis Stewart, 4524 South Parkway, will show his pride in his son, Seaman 3d Class Frank Lehman Stewart, in the same way. Charles F. Collins, 6323 Champlain av., will honor his son, Lt. Charles R. Collins, who was wounded in the Southwest Pacific, by purchasing a bond for him.

IT'S QUITE A CHASE, BUT 21 NAZIS CATCH THE ARM OF U. S. LAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 20 [Delayed]—A German colonel had orders to surrender his unit of 19 officers and two enlisted men only to Americans of equal rank. This afternoon the German finally saw an American colonel—Col. Irvin McClelland, La Grange, Ill., judge advocate of the 5th corps. The German sent a messenger and McClelland and his convoy of six vehicles returned and picked up the German party. An interpreter learned that 16 of the 19 German officers constituted a military court. When he told them that Col. McClelland said they had fallen into the proper hands, the army's legal department, one German remarked with a laugh, "That has a double meaning."

Red Paper Says Poland Will Extend to Oder

MOSCOW, April 21 [Reuters]—Poland's new frontier in the west, as defined by the soviet magazine War and the Working Class" will reach the Oder and the Neisse, extend to the Baltic coast and take in the southern and western parts of East Prussia. The magazine said hundreds of thousands of Polish peasants would move to the western provinces where they would become "a safe bulwark against the German "drang nach osten" [push to the east].

Direct Cable Restored Between New York, Havre

LONDON, April 21 [Reuters]—Paris radio reported today that the direct Havre-New York cable has been restored. The first message over it was from the mayor of Havre to New York's Mayor La Guardia describing the link as "a symbol of the resumption of trade relations between the two great allied nations."

RADIO STORE LOOTED

Two combination radio-phonographs, a table-top radio, an electric razor, and $75 in cash were stolen from the Woodlawn Radio and Music store, 1000 E. 55th st., the manager, Albert Rasner, 6039 Kimbark av., told police yesterday.

COL. McKENZIE, MARKET CENTER HEAD, PROMOTED

Col. Henry R. McKenzie, who as commander of the field headquarters of the army's market center system spends about 5 million dollars every workday, has been promoted to brigadier general, the quartermaster depot in Chicago announced yesterday. 140 COME BACK FROM JAP CAMPS; MET BY A BAND

San Francisco, Cal., April 21 (AP)—While an army band blared and friends and relatives crowded forward with moist eyes, 140 persons repatriated from Philippines prison camps disembarked from an army transport vessel today. A few litter cases left the ship first and the hubbub of welcoming voices died to a murmur while they passed to waiting ambulances. Most of the freed prisoners looked well. They told of gaining much weight since their liberation from the Santo Tomas camp.

RED AND YANK ARMIES JOIN, PARIS REPORTS

Sight Soviet Armor Near Elbe River

the French and Americans met southeast of Stuttgart, completing the encirclement of that key communications and industrial city with a population of 459,000.

French troops were two and half miles west of the city and the Americans last were reported abou' nine miles away on the northeast.

United States 9th army troops, which kicked off in a new attack west of the Elbe to clear their flanks for the climactic eastward drive, heard over their field radios Russian commanders leading their armies in the grand assault on Berlin. A report from the front, said the rumble of Russian guns attacking the capital could be plainly heard.

Drive Wedge Into Czechoslavakia

While the allies of the west marshaled their forces for the renewed drive to the east, furious blows were rained on the stricken Germans in the north and south.

The United States 3d army drove a second wedge into Czechoslovakia, capturing the city of Asch. Seeking to split that last Nazi arsenal country from the Alpine retreat, these troops plunged farther south where they were 55 miles west of Pilsen, biggest munitions city of Czechoslovakia.

The French 1st army was only 8 miles from the headwaters of the Danube river and 28 miles from Lake Constance, which guards the redoubt on the west.

The United States 7th army, flushed by its victory in conquering Hitler's shrine of Nuernberg, rolled southward 18 miles or more and was 25 miles from the Danube stronghold of Ulm, northern doorway to the mountainous retreat.

Battle in Hamburg Suburb

In the north, Hamburg's suburb of Harburg was under assault by British troops fighting thru the outskirts. Bremen was virtually cut off.

The Poles to the west seized Papenburg, hinge of the defense line which the Germans had formed to protect their ports of Bremen, Wilhelmshaven, and Emden.

The Canadians dug into the Greebe line defending western Holland's cities of Rotterdam, Amsterdam, Utrecht, and The Hague, passing north of the Dutch fortress of Amersfoort.

In the center of the front, the United States 1st army stormed with tanks and troops into Dessau, 52 miles southwest of Berlin and 32 miles from the Russian troops cutting southwest of Berlin.

That junction seemingly could be made at will by the allies, for the Germans had nothing along the Elbe river in the Leipzig-Dresden area to stop a drive either from the east or west.

Both great groups of armies were closing up slowly, less from resistance than from the danger of overshooting.

It seemed clear that the United States 1st and 3d armies had raced across the mid-German plain faster than expected and had paused on the Mulde river, where they both hold crossings, while the Russians drove up from the east.

U. S. Bombers Blast Railways

The United States 3d army captured its first Czech city at Asch, with a population of 28,000, where Konrad Henlein plotted his dismemberment of the Czechoslovakia.

Here the Americans were 60 miles northwest of Pilson with its great Skoda munitions works, but other troops capturing Arzberg and Feldenfels farther south were about 55 miles from Pilsen.

American bombers ranging on ahead wrecked railway lines over which the Germans were trying to freight weapons and men from Pilsen and Prague for the death stand in the Alps of Bavaria and Austria.

It was the first time that American bombers from the west had attacked targets in Austria.

The United States 7th army and the French 1st army were driving hard against the western section of the redoubt, and lacked only 10 miles of closing a ring around the city of Stuttgart in the rereat's forefield.

French forces fanned out within eight miles of the headwaters of the Danube river, driving as much as 11 miles southward into Villingen and Schwenningen, where they were less than 28 miles from Lake Constance.

Pull Back from Neumarkt

The 7th army's 10th armored division farther east battled into Weilheim, 25 miles northwest of the Danube and Ulm.

Still father east the 12th armored division in an 18 mile dash southwest of fallen Nuernberg reached Baldern, 24 miles from the Danube northeast of Ulm.

The 14th armored division battling less than 70 miles from Munich was forced to pull back from Neumarkt, southeast of Nuernberg, while artillery plastered attacking SS [elite] troops.

The allied assaults on the north were pressed home with equal ferocity.

The British 2d army, while fighting in the outskirts of Harburg, dealt a companion blow at the enemy's whole northern port zone and all but cut off Bremen.

British tanks drove into Zeven, road and railway center 20 miles northeast of the city, and five miles to the southeast the guards armored division met head-on a counterattack by the Germans' 15th panzer division in Elsdorf and hurled the enemy back.

In this sector a large German force trying to fall back into Bremen was intercepted and cut to pieces.

Ninth Army Opens Drive

Southeast of Hamburg, British forces took a 20 mile grip on the west bank of the Elbe west of where the United States 9th army lashed out in a new attack to clear the flanks of its dagger shaped salient thrust beyond the Elbe at Barby to within 52 miles of Berlin.

Two of the 9th army's divisions plunged halfway thru the forests west of Wittenberge, 60 miles north of Magdeburg. Farther southwest American forces recaptured Diesdorf and Abbendorf, which the Germans overran in an attempt to break into the rear of the 9th army.

These German forces, reckoned as a division, were split into two pockets and were being swiftly mopped up. Two high ranking German generals were captured, but the commander of the division still was at large in the forests.

Together with the United States 1st army, the 9th liquidated all organized resistance in the Harz mountains southwest of Berlin.

As the 1st army's 3d armored division attacked Dessau, the 104th infantry division seized half of Bitterfeld 15 miles to the south.

Allies Drive Deeper Toward German Stronghold

IKE'S AID SEES NO QUICK END OF WAR IN EUROPE

BY LARRY RUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 21—The supreme allied command holds no immediate hope for an end to the war in Europe, Lt. Gen. W. B. Smith, chief of staff at supreme headquarters, revealed here today. He warned against the effect upon the American and British people of a premature announcement of V-E day, reminding correspondents considerable fighting was yet to be done before all pockets were cleared.

"Of all the campaigns I ever have known," he said, "this one followed most exactly the pattern of the commander who planned it. With but one small exception, it proceeded exactly as Gen. Eisenhower planned it."

That exception, Gen. Smith explained, was the commander's action in diverting five divisions to hold securely the Remagen bridgehead, which had not been considered as a main thrust across the Rhine. And instead of throwing Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army across to exploit and expand it, as the Germans expected would be done, Gen. Eisenhower sent Patton across the Moselle river to the south.

Two Critical Decisions

"The decision of the supreme commander to cross the Moselle and clean up west of the Rhine was the second most critical decision of the campaign," said Smith. "The first was made by Eisenhower when he learned of the capture of the Remagen bridgehead. He changed his plans in less than an hour, and ordered the disposition of sufficient forces to secure it.

"The Remagen bridge didn't last long," Smith added, "but while it did it was worth its weight in gold."

Gen. Smith disclosed that the Ardennes battle had delayed the allied offensive very little. At the time it occurred, the armies of the west were being regrouped for the drive. The battle for the Rhine started on schedule on Feb. 9 while the plunge of the 9th army across the Ruhr was held up by the flooded Roer river until Feb. 23.

Smith referred to the differences of opinion among the combined chiefs of staff regarding the present campaign, and mentioned how it was his job at Malta to present Eisenhower's plan, which was to close the Rhine for its entire length. This plan was agreed on, and from there on carried out in detail.

5 Divisions Freed

The failure of the Germans to defend Cologne as expected freed five of our divisions. These were employed in the second phase of operations—reduction of the Eifel by the 1st and 3d armies.

The third phase was the United States 7th army's attack thru the Siegfried defenses from the south, combined with Patton's jump across the Moselle.

The Remagen bridgehead by that time was securely held, but the Germans thought we'd do the natural thing, which would be to throw in what forces we had to exploit it. They guessed Patton's forces would be used for that and other crossings. But by turning the 3d south, Eisenhower believed, the German defenders would be thrown off balance so the 7th army could cross the Rhine without opposition, and that, said Smith, is what happened.

Smith explained that if no other bridgeheads were established the main drive across the Rhine was to be made on the 21st army group front. The United States 9th army was put under Montgomery's command for that purpose. But Eisenhower, after we had established bridgeheads to the south, saw even greater possibilities there than the original plan had envisioned.

"Germany has two hearts—one Berlin, the other the Ruhr," said Smith. "When the junction of the 1st and 9th armies was accomplished, the largest double envelopment in military history was completed.

"It is the ideal of every military commander to execute a double envelopment of this kind. Nobody expected to do it—and now it has been done."

Yank Tankmen Kill German General in Ruhr

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, April 21 (AP)—American tankmen shot a high ranking German general to death yesterday in the Ruhr pocket when he and his men ran from a house and killed a yank with a machine pistol. The Americans were making a routine patrol south of Schmallenberg when eight Germans burst out of the house and fired on them. Besides the American and the German general, two of the general's fleeing men were killed and two others wounded. Three escaped.

GERMAN MAYOR FORCED TO DIG UP SLAIN VICTIMS

GARDELEGEN, Germany, April 21 (AP)—Mayor Karl Lepa is a prosperous looking little man who was the biggest big shot in this hot bed city of fanatical Nazi movements where 1,100 political prisoners were burned to death a week ago.

But today Lepa was just another grave digger. His well shined shoes were smeared with muck from the bottom of a community grave where some of the bodies had been hurriedly hidden before American infantry entered the town. His hands were covered with blood and scorched clothing. His staff of seven men found themselves in the same plight.

Twelfth army group commanders ruled that the French, Polish, Russian, Hungarian, and German victims would be buried in individual graves. One Gardelegen man was assigned to each grave and must care for it in the years to come.

NUERNBERG, ONCE PRIDE OF NAZIS, NOW IN RUINS

Famed Churches Wrecked in Battle for City

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY IN NUERNBERG, April 21—Once it could be said of this city that it might have an equal but there was none lovelier in all Germany.

Today it is more than 90 per cent destroyed. Most of the crazy angled, crumbling remnants will have to be razed before reconstruction can begin.

There are some 200,000 civilians, less than half the city's pre-war population, in Nuernberg today. The majority are still living underground, in the stout shelters where they took refuge from American bombs and shells. Those who came out in the streets—if the jagged, buckled pavements under the debris can be called streets — wandered about dazedly. They searched for the dead in the ruins, or tried to find some identifying stone or timber of their homes.

Some Areas 1,000 Years Old

Even the hardened soldiers of the 7th army, who have seen the havoc wrought by total war in Saarbruecken, Mannheim, Wurzburg, and Schweinfurt, were appalled by the extent of the destruction in Nuernberg, shrine city of the Nazis.

Portions of the inner city, four square miles bisected east and west by the Pegnitz river, date back 1,000 years, altho Nuernberg is not mentioned historically until the middle of the 11th century.

The hauptmarket [central market square], one of the glories of Nuernberg, lost some of its artistic luster when it was renamed the Adolf Hitler platz, but it has lost more than that now.

There had been a Neptune fountain in the middle of the square. Bombs so completely wrecked it that the remains were carted away some time ago and the site filled in with stones — stones which were scattered again in a raid.

Concrete Encased Statue Safe

The schooner brunnen [beautiful fountain] on the north side of the square, erected in the 14th century and restored in 1903, was encased in concrete by the Nazis and escaped destruction.

The Liebfrauenkirch, erected in the 14th century and a Roman Catholic church since 1816, once towered over the east side of the square. It can only be described today as "blown wide open." There is no dome. There are no doors. There is nothing recognizable of the altars and figures. Some sections of the walls remain. They may topple at any hour.

In the vestry are German guns, helmets, and gas masks—and blood stains. The Germans there sniped at Americans yesterday and the Yanks had to throw in grenades to silence them.

The Protestant St. Sebaldus church, on the Winklerstrasse north of the Adolf Hitler platz, dates from the 13th century. It, too, is smashed. Overturned German tanks and trucks are half way thru holes in the walls. The only part of the church undamaged is the bronze figure of Christ on the cross, above what had once been the great front doors.

City Hall Is Wrecked

The ratnaus [city hall], adjacent to St. Sebaluds, is so heavily damaged that no furnishings or room partitions are distinguishable. Much of the gothic tracery, six centuries old, has tumbled into a huge bomb hole in the courtyard.

Near by, Albrecht Duerer's 15th century house in the street named after him is gutted and sheared. A plaque stating the artist was born there is intact, but the rest of the structure looks as if it had been ridden over by the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, whom Duerer portrayed son nobly.

The two towers of the St. Lorenz kirche, biggest and finest church in the city, still rise above the Lorenzer platz. But this church, begun about 1274, will never hold services again. Fragments of the famed "rose window" are in the aisles. The altar is crushed, the holy figures and vessels are in bits. The walls sag and the dome is ripped.

In the 16th century, Hans Sachs, teacher and leader of the meistersingers lived near by. One can't get near enough today to see the remnants of the house, there is so much rubble.

U. S. Flag Raised

Appropriately enough, the 3d division named its Nuernberg operation "the meistersinger," and designated its assaulting elements as "task force Hans Sachs."

Late yesterday, the 3d raised the American flag in the Adolf Hitler platz to give the Fuehrer a particularly bad birthday, and today the flag was hoisted again, this time on behalf of the 45th infantry division as well as the 3d. Both divisions belong to the 15th corps. The corps commander, Maj. Gen. Wade H. Haislip, and the 7th army commander, Lt. Gen. Patch, were present at the ceremony. They congratulated the two divisions which had taken Nuernberg.

Sergeant's Duty

Sgt. T. J. Anderson and Mary Elizabeth, 3 months, in Dearborn station yesterday.

An army sergeant is equal to any task. Yesterday Sgt. T. J. Anderson demonstrated that fact to curious by-tanders at Dearborn station when he calmy took over the responsbility of caring for Mary Elizabeth, his 3 months old daughter, when the mother left the station on an errand. The Andersons were en route to an air base at Waycross, Ga., after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Anderson of Milwaukee, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boll, Chilton, Wis.

"No thanks, maam," he said to a matron who offered to help. "I can handle the bottle and the baby."

NEW CARDINALS MAY BE NAMED AFTER V-E DAY

ROME, April 21 [Reuters] -Pope Pius XII. is likely to appoint a number of cardinals shortly after the end of the war in Europe.

Vatican observers, stating tha the college of cardinals has been reduced to 40, compared with a normal membership of almost 70, believe the convocation of a papal copsistory for nominating cardinals cannot be long delayed.

In the existing college 24 of the cardinals are Italian. Their majority of eight over the non-Italian members is narrow.

CHARGES REDS FORCE YANKS TO LEAVE POTSDAM

Washington, D. C., April 21 [Special]—Drew Pearson, in his syndicated column, charged today that United States army patrols were in Potsdam, adjacent to Berlin, on Friday, April 13, one day after President Roosevelt's death, but were withdrawn 50 miles because of an agreement made at Yalta by the Big Three that the Russians were to occupy Berlin.

Pearson said Potsdam is to Berlin what the Bronx is to New York City. He said that because the Russians insisted that the agreement be kept, the American troops were withdrawn from the Berlin suburbs to the Elbe, 50 miles away.

Stalin Sends Note to FDR

The disagreement with the Russians is reported by Pearson to have started about four days before Roosevelt died. At that time, he said, Stalin sent the President a sharp note. The columnist added that the decision to withdraw from Berlin's suburbs was made after the President's death.

Pearson said Churchill and Roosevelt acquiesced at Yalta to Stalin's decision to take Vienna first and then move on Berlin in May. It was not contemplated at that time, Pearson said, that the Yank advance over the Rhine and across Germany would be so speedy as to put the Americans at the gates of Berlin early in April.

Decide to Withdraw

The columnist asserted that at the height of the Yank advance, four days before Roosevelt's death, Stalin sent Roosevelt a note accusing the United States of a deal with the Nazis to advance more rapidly thru Germany. Pearson said the President talked with Churchill, and then told Stalin that the western front advances were due to the excellence of the attacking armies.

Pearson said Stalin answered by saying that if the western forces entered Berlin and the area mapped out for Russian occupation, they would have to withdraw later.

Eisenhower on April 13 decided to withdraw, Pearson said, because American lives could be saved if the Russians were intent on taking Berlin.

THIS TELLS YOU WHERE ALL THE CIGARETS WENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 21—Slight relief for French smokers was promised today in the announcement that 2,200 tons of American tobacco—the equivalent of 100,000,000 packs of cigarets—have arrived and are being distributed among the state tobacco monopoly's cigaret factories.

The American tobacco will be used to improve the dubious war time quality of French cigarets and will permit the maintenance of the new domestic smoke rations, which were raised April 1 from four to six packs monthly.

Another report is that 150,000,000 packages of cigarets are being shipped by the United States to France and other countries formerly occupied by the Germans.

RED DEMOCRACY NOT LIKE ALLIES, MOSCOW SAYS

MOSCOW, April 21 (AP)—The magazine War and the Working Class, addressing commentators abroad, said today "it would be a completely hopeless business to demand that democracy in all European countries be constructed exactly along British or American lines."

Replying to questions raised abroad about democracy in the liberated countries of Europe, the writer, Alexander Sokolov, said:

"There is no dispute over the fact that there is a difference between the democracy which is fulfilled in the soviet union and the democracy which exists in a number of other countries. But it also is indisputable that this distinction should not serve as an obstacle in the way of strong and lasting collaboration among the allies."

CHICAGOAN SEES YANKS HANGED IN GERMAN STREETS

Recounts Brutalities in Prison Camps

BY E. R. NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 21—American and British flyers who bailed out over Frankfurt-am-Main were hanged to trees and lamp posts by enraged German civilians, according to Tech. Sgt. Richard A. Elliott, 1120 Lake Shore dr., Chicago, who is back in London after 13 months in Nazi prison camps.

Elliott, radio operator on a Flying Fortress which exploded over Oldenburg, said today he saw the bodies of 15 to 20 allied air men hanging in the streets of Frankfurt as he was being marched to Gestapo headquarters March 8, 1944. "The guards told me civilians had done it," Elliott said.

The 3" year old Chicagoan, who is the son of Dr. Arthur R. Elliott, wa. picked up in the country by German soldiers, and so escaped the fate of many of his comrades.

Prisoners Bayonetted

During his 13 months as a prisoner, he was subjected to many cruelties. He was one of 4,100 British and American prisoners the Germans compelled to run three miles from a railroad station at Gross Tyschow while the guards stabbed them with bayonets and beat them with rifles. One American ended the "forced march" with 67 bayonet wounds.

Refuses to Talk

An officer began questioning me about the radio devices on our planes," Elliott said. "Every time he asked me a question I replied with my name, rank, and serial number, as per orders, and every time I replied he slugged me. He finally knocked me out."

On March 13, Elliott was one of 130 prisoners jammed into a boxcar at Frankfurt for a trip to Stalag Luft VI. at Heydekrug, East Prussia.

The food at Heydekrug consisted of ersatz coffee, black bread, cabbage soup, and a few boiled potatoes, with occasional small quantities of butter [or margarine], cheese, and jam. "We'd have starved to death without Red Cross parcels," Elliott asserted. There were 6,500 prisoners in this camp, of whom 2,600 were American.

Berated by Captain

On July 15, as the Russians approached, 4,100 prisoners were taken to Memel in box cars and crammed into the holds of two small steamers. "We were so crowded we had to stand up, and we stood there 48 hours," Elliott related.

The prisoners were disembarked at Swinemuende and taken in box cars to Gross Tyschow, 30 miles south of Koeslin.

"As we started off for camp, the German captain in charge drove along the column, standing on the running board of his car," Elliott resumed.

"'Show these men no mercy,' he cried as he drove along. 'They are air gangsters. They've bombed our homes. Don't forget Kiel, Hamburg, Berlin!'

Run Three Miles to Camp

"Then they made us run as hard as we could for the three miles to camp. As we ran, the guards jabbed us with bayonets. Those who fell were beaten with rifle butts. With their bayonets, the guards slashed our packs and looted them. The roads were lined with machine guns. If anybody had made a break for liberty they'd have mowed us all down."

On Feb. 6 of this year, after months of hardship and short rations, the 6,000 prisoners began the march westward away from the advancing Russians. Many were ill and all were weak.

Ten Share One Loaf

"In the next 52 days we walked more than 300 miles," Elliott said.

The last 24 hours the prisoners rode in boxcars to the camp at Fallingbostel, arriving March 30 or 31. Seven Americans died on the trip.

The night of April 8, Elliott was able to escape from Fallingbostel. With a royal air force man picked up en route, he made his way to the British lines. He arrived in England to find his fiancee, Mary R. Hayden, Ann Arbor, Mich., Red Cross girl, had just left for the United States, but he hopes to follow shortly to marry her.

Red Drive Explains Why 9th Army Rests on Elbe a Week

Politics in War

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MAGDEBURG, Germany, April 21—The arrested American advance from the Rhine to the Elbe, which shattered the Nazi army organization, disrupted its communications and transport, and, by its speed and power, prevented Gen. Von Kesselring from organizing any semblance of united defense, is now permitting the German high command to reorganize its decimated units and move them to sectors considered favorable for certain offensive action which had been denied them since the Ardennes.

War is exactly like boxing; when a fighter gets his opponent on the run he never allows him to get balanced and set again but keeps rushing him until the knockout. Armies must fight exactly the same way to win a swift victory.

Politics Changes Picture

If extraneous elements, political or otherwise, creep into military affairs or if the ambitions or demands of allies are considered and permitted to interfere with the main objective—destruction of the enemy armed forces—then the combat units must suffer attrition while waiting for those diplomatic issues to be decided or for the troops of an ally to attain desired objectives.

These are the precepts of Von Clausewitz which are unanimously indorsed by the military leaders of all countries, just as American Adm. Mahan's conception of sea power is accepted by all naval strategists and tacticians.

The last few days have seen a resumption of Nazi military activity as Hitler tries desperately with his fanatical leaders to disrupt American forward elements by deep, incisive raids aimed at the destruction of supplies and cutting lines of transport by blowing bridges, overpasses, and other installations.

Nazis Strike Back

Today, another Nazi task force sliced south of Wittingen in a drive to cut a highway, and reached Koenigslutter in another suicide drive toward Brunswick.

American armor intercepted the tank raiders and it is expected the enemy force will be wiped out as they were far inside our lines and unable to receive reënforcements. But the incursion reveals what can happen when politics mixes with war.

Meanwhile, the Nazis are building up a stronger force opposite our Elbe front which, a week ago was practically undefended except at Schoenebeck where the 3d armored division had the bad luck to run into a concentration and lost its bridgehead.

Planned in Advance

BY WES GALLAGHER

MAGDEBURG, Germany, April 21 (AP)—The Russian break-thru on the eastern front explains why the United States 9th army has been sitting on the Elbe river, 35 miles away, for more than a week.

It seems obvious that the western front has been coördinated with the eastern front for present operations.

The day after the 9th army stopped on the Elbe and failed to exploit its bridgehead across the river, the Russians kicked off in their big Berlin drive.

The 9th army had the troops, supplies, and power to go on. It still has them, and many military men had thought it would have taken no more than 10 days to put them into Berlin. However, had the 9th gone on while the Russians advanced, the troops would have become so entangled that it would have been difficult to tell who was fighting whom, and there would have been grave danger ‹‹ an international incident — of Americans clashing with Russians.

One Force Had to Halt

The eastern and western fronts are not under one commander, and are not easily controled as are allied army groups. When the eastern and western fronts came close enough to unite, it was a military necessity for one force to halt along some well defined line and wait. Only in this way could an incident be avoided.

Apparently the joint chiefs of staff decided that the Elbe river would be the halting line. The Americans reached it first and stopped. Just what caused the Elbe line to be set, or when, was not apparent, but since the American and British armies got well across the Weser river they have probably been fighting in territory which is assigned for Russian occupation after the war.

Both the Americans and British may give up to the Russians some of the territory they now hold.

Reich Being Cut Up

Germany is being cut into uncoordinated slices like pieces of sausage. With whole army groups cut off by these moves, mass surrender of German troops is considered likely.

Except as regards the fanatical SS elite guard troops, the situation is exactly the same as when the United States 1st and 9th armies cut off the Ruhr pocket.

There is not expected to be any vast number of SS troops on either the eastern ‹‹ western fronts from Czechoslovakia northward. Most of them are believed to have been pulled southward in recent weeks for a planned suicide stand in Hitler's last redoubt area in the mountains bordering Switzerland and running into Austria.

For all practical purposes the German nation will have been defeated by the Russian-American link-up, but if Gen. Eisenhower adheres to his latest statement, there will be no "V-E day" until the redoubt is cleaned up.

WITNESS TELLS HOW 220 DIED IN NAZI ACETONE

THEKLA, Germany, April 20 [Delayed]—(AP)—A Czech barber who saved 80 intended victims today told how the Nazis showered acetone on 220 political prisoners in a concentration camp and ignited it, burning many alive, and then shot many who tried to escape. The killings took place in plant No. 3 of the Erla works, maker of airplane parts. The camp lies among the factory buildings, a division of the Buchenwald "murder factory" near Weimar.

The Czech, Carl Tykal, said that when the guards learned American troops were approaching they decided to kill the prisoners. Some of the captives went into hiding and were lured out with pots of steaming soup that was served in barracks. "While the prisoners were eating the guards hung blankets up outside the windows, Tykal said. "Other SS men ran into two doors, threw cans of acetone over the prisoners, and then set the building on fire. I could hear my friends screaming and praying. The SS guards and one Gestapo man fired into both doors and every window."

YANK COUNTESS TELLS 2 YEARS IN NAZI PRISONS

Beaten for Hiding U. S. Flyers in Chateau

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 20 [Delayed]—Wearing the blue and gray striped jacket and skirt of a political prisoner, a gray haired countess today told her story of two years in German concentration camps for risking her life to hide American and British airmen in her Brittany chateau.

She was the Countess De Mauduit, 45. Before her marriage 17 years ago to Count Henry de Mauduit, Stoughton, Mass., knew her as Roberta Laurie, the girl who once had her pictures in the newspapers for driving her automobile into the ocean. The countess today is deeply tanned, with a trim figure from her sparse diet and hard work loading shells in Germany's second largest munitions plant—Hasag, at Schoenfeld, outside Leipzig.

Husband Joins De Gaulle

The countess and her handsome husband could have collaborated with the German conquerors and lived a good life in the ancient chateau at Plouribo, in Brittany. But one dark night in 1941, the count slipped away in a fishing boat to England to join Gen. De Gaulle.

The countess remained behind, often entertaining German officers. Once the German commander of Brittany's coastal defenses sipped tea with the countess, unaware that hidden inside the secret double floor of the old chateau were 19 American aviators shot down over Europe.

Once a week, the countess would purchase a calf on the black market. Every night, after all of her servants except one trusted maid had retired, the Americans would tiptoe from their hideaway and dine in the kitchen. The boys would wash up the dishes and leave everything spic and span so the servants never suspected them. Then they would gossip with the countess until time to return to their hole in the floor.

Search House in Vain

In time, the Gestapo became suspicious. Disguised agents failed to uncover the countess' secret. But on June 12, 1943, 100 Gestapo agents searched the house and grounds while five airmen huddled inside the double door. They found nothing, but they arrested the countess on suspicion. Four months later, they found the double floor, but the evidence had gone.

The countess' story of the ensuing two years in the hands of the Gestapo is one of endurance against the Germans' worst. She spent the first 30 days of capture in solitary confinement, on a diet of bread and water. But the countess laughed at her guards and said she had always wanted to get thin.

Says Hitler Predicted D-Day

After their discovery of the double floor, the Gestapo intensified their efforts to break the countess. She was taken from her cell at night, clad only in a thin nightgown, and flailed with rubber hose. Five times in six months she was beaten.

"But I only gritted my teeth and said they could never get anything out of me," laughed the countess.

"Today is Hitler's birthday," she added. "A year ago today he was here in this prison and was chided by my guards for saying the Americans would land in France before June 10."

The countess was found in the women's concentration camp by Pvt. Eddie Miller of New York City, who gave her an American dollar bill, which she wore proudly tucked into her blouse. On the left breast of her zebra striped uniform was "U. S. A." and the number 4010.

All of the 6,500 women in the Hasag camp were evacuated by the S. S. last Friday except 266 too sick or too weak to travel. The countess, knowing the records of the typhoid patients had been burned, hid in their room, aware that no one could check the proper count.

Sees Two Bodies

Those left behind feared they, too, were to be burned alive when they looked across the fields toward another concentration camp at Thekla and saw flames and heard shooting. There today I saw the bodies of 200 political prisoners who had been burned to death or massacred as they tried to flee last Wednesday, when the Americans entered Leipzig.

The countess told of the immense women's camp at Ravensbrauck, where 80,000 women political prisoners were confined; of women forced to stand day and night at attention until they collapsed, only to be beaten and kicked by S. S. men and women guards; of 600 women living in one barracks, with five to a bed teeming with bedbugs, lice, and fleas.

"You can never tell me that women talk too much," the countess remarked. "Some of them were held under water in icy bathtubs to make them talk. Some of them drowned. But none of us talked."

Afraid of Being Hurt, Nazis Give Up

NAZIS SENDING WAR PRISONERS OVER SWISS LINE

BY P. E. BRIQUET.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, April 20—Movement of refugees of all kinds is on the increase across the northern boundary of Switzerland, the border press reports. At Ramsen, a guard post on the Swiss boundary, German officers appeared and asked for the admission to Swiss territory of 400 Frenchmen and 50 Russians, all prisoners of war. Permission was granted by a decision of the Swiss government at Bern.

Of the prisoners who entered Swiss territory many were in a miserable condition. The liberated soldiers, many with sore, bare feet and several carrying small packages of belongings, marched past the Swiss guards and entered the Swiss reception camp.

Since there is a scarcity of both food and work for foreign prisoners in southern Germany, many of the camps have broken down. Therefore, the Germans are interested in seeing that these potentially dangerous foreigners are moved out of Germany as quickly as possible.

'Missing' Yank Writes; Freed from Nazi Camp

LIBERATED ACE TELLS OF 80 MILE HORROR MARCH

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—Capt. John Godfrey, Providence, R. I., ace who destroyed 36 German planes before he was shot down last August, said today that the Nazis forced hundreds of British and American airmen on a 80 mile "horror march" thru snow and subzero weather.

The 23 year old pilot was liberated from a German prison camp at Nuernberg. His decorations include the distinguished service cross, silver star, distinguished flying cross with clusters, air medal with clusters, and Purple Heart.

Godfrey said he missed the worst part of the march thru one of his two unsuccessful attempts to escape, but added: "I heard that some prisoners killed themselves to end their suffering." The march was from a camp at Aagan, 60 miles northwest of Breslau, which the Germans had to evacuate in face of a Russian advance.

A LINE OF TYPE USHERS JOY INTO SCORE OF HOMES

Tribune Gets Many Calls on Rescue of Yanks

Last week was a great time for more than a score of Chicago families, and many others in the surrounding area, who picked up THE TRIBUNE and read in a story filed by Correspondent Henry Wales from Fallingbostel, Germany, the names of hundreds of American soldiers liberated from the largest prison camp in western Germany.

Numerous calls, some regarding soldiers who live as far from Chicago as California, were received by THE TRIBUNE from persons who sought additional information on the release of prisoners from the prison camp.

First Word About Son

Mrs. Jacob Weber of 1130 Montana st. awakened to hear her husband calling her to hear "the good news." He showed her Wales' story, which listed the name of Pvt. Edwin Weber, reported missing in action since Jan. 21. The story gave the Webers their first information that their son was a prisoner of war.

Four of the private's brothers also are in service.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hughes of 1136 Morse av. will be spared the anguish of writing their son, Thomas, serving in the navy in the South Pacific, that his brother, Pvt. William, is missing in action. William's name is one of the many that were listed in Wales' story of men who were released from the prison camp.

'Was I Happy!' Mother Cries

"O, was I happy!" Mrs. Hughes exclaimed. "The first thing I did was thank God. This was the first word we have had about Bill since he was reported missing on Jan. 11."

News that Pvt. Joseph Malley of 1657 W. 19th st. was released from the prison camp was especially welcome to his mother, Mrs. Frank Malley, who has been seriously ill. She termed it her "best medicine."

Mrs. Morris Levy of 6219 N. Washtenaw av. was thrilled at the news that Pvt. Jerry Ruelf, who lived at her home for five years after he came from Europe to the United States with a group of refugee children, was liberated. The Wales story gave her the first information that he had been taken prisoner by the enemy. Ruelf's own parents, who came to America five years ago when he was 14, now live in Mount Vernon, N. Y. Ruelf plans to return to Chicago after the war and live again at the Levy home. He attended Senn High school.

Gets Call Early in Morning

Pvt. Bill Peterson, a schoolmate of Ruelf at Senn High school, also was liberated and the news was jubilantly received at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Enock Peterson of 6211 N. Washtenaw av. Mrs. Peterson received a telephone call from a friend before 7 a. m. and thus learned for the first time that her son had been liberated.

Mrs. Pauline Scarpetta of 3910 S. Albany av. was so excited when she learned her husband, Mike, had been liberated that she had to leave her office immediately afterward to go home and celebrate with her daughter, Christine, 3. The Wales story was her first news that her husband was a prisoner. Her last information on him was in a war department telegram, stating that Scarpetta was missing in action in Germany on Dec. 16, 1944.

Glenn Penne of 3147 Cleveland av., Brookfield, called THE TRIBUNE to thank Wales for the good news that his son, Pvt. Harold Penne, was released from the prison camp.

"Best Birthday Present Ever"

"I'd like to convey my thanks to Henry Wales," Penne said. "His story was the first word we have received about our son since we got a telegram stating that he was missing in action in Germany since Jan. 19. Thursday was his birthday and the news that he is safe is the best birthday present ever."

Happiness filled the household of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westort of 1833 E. 79th st., whose son, Raymond, also was among those liberated from the camp. They received a telegram stating that Raymond, an army private, was missing in action since Dec. 21, but had received no further word.

When Charles and Olga McKeen of 455 W. 71st st. read the name of their son, Pvt. Charles A. McKeen, 20, in the Wales list of liberated prisoners they were so overjoyed they couldn't finish their breakfast.

"It was grand to see his name in the list," Mrs. McKeen said. "We certainly appreciate the effort of THE TRIBUNE in bringing this word to us."

Five Hours on Telephone

"I guess every one in Highland Park reads THE TRIBUNE," Mrs. Alma Johnson, 597 Vine av., Highland Park, said. She explained that her deduction was reached after she spent five hours on the telephone receiving calls from neighbors and friends who wanted to be the first to tell her her son, Pvt. Arnold A. Johnson, 27, had been liberated from the largest prison camp in western Germany.

Mrs. Johnson said she got her first call at 6:30 a. m. from her brother-in-law, Victor Jorner of 5000 Marine dr., who had read Wales' dispatch. She hurried out to buy a TRIBUNE. When she returned, the telephone was ringing.

"From 7 until noon, I didn't get anything done but talk over the phone," she said. "Every one hoped to be the first to break the good news." Mrs. Johnson was informed on Feb. 7 that her son was missing in action on Jan. 20. She had not heard from him since that date. Pvt. Johnson was graduated from Highland Park High school and had been with the 7th army overseas for 15 months prior to his capture.

Other liberated prisoners included Pvt. Joseph Shivers, 3751 Augusta blvd.; Pvt. Frank Mananella, 4607 Congress st.; Pvt. John Hennepan, 4630 Maypole av.; Pvt. Harry Bielat, 926 N. Honore st.; Pvt. James Hanlon, 3721 Lexington st.; Sgt. Charles Hodal, 2333 Superior st.; Pvt. William Mertz, 1235 Wrightwood av.; Pvt. Harry Lewandowski, 2074 N. Leavitt st.; Pvt. John Burghart, 1220 Nelson av., and Pvt. Fred Muhleman, 2011 Giddings st.

Learn Sons Are Freed

"O, what wonderful news!" parents of Privates Walter M. Wozniak, 8646 Marquette av., and Alex J. Murawski, 8557 Burnham av., shouted last night when THE TRIBUNE informed them their sons were among American prisoners liberated yesterday gy the United States 90th division in Germany. They were listed in a dispatch from Tribune Correspondent Hal Foust.

The two soldiers, both 20 and schoolmates at Bowen High school, entered the army in the summer of 1942. They fought together with the 423d infantry of the 106th division. Wozniak's mother, her leg in a cast, and Murawski's parents said they had no word from their sons since they were reported missing last December.

Mrs. Esther Minto, 6417 Sangamon st., was equally jubiliant when she told her son, Pvt. William W. Minto, 28, was freed. He joined the army in March, 1944, and also served with the 423d. He is married and formerly was a dispatcher at Armour & Co.

Pvt. Jacob Linstra, son of Joseph Lintsra, 3444 W. 116th st., also liberated by the 90th division, was one of the first American combat engineers to enter Germany. Pvt. Lindstra, an employe of the Rock Island railroad, wen overseas in October, 1943, a month after he joined the army.

CHICAGOLAND FIGHTERS WIN HONORS IN REICH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN GERMANY, April 21—Headquarters of the United States 84th division today announced that Lt. George Johnson of Harrisburg, Pa., and Sgt. William C. Reu, Capt. James M. Catlin, and Maj. G. L. Gunning, all of Chicago, have been cited for discovering Henrich Kost, a prominent Nazi party member, near Krefeld, Germany.

The 83d division announced that a tank battalion under Lt. Col. Paul J. Ritchie of Rockford, Ill., was the first armored unit to cross the Elbe. The unit included Lt. Robert Crowley of El Paso, Tex., and these crewmen: Sgt. Frank P. Tremblay of Schenectady, N. Y., Corp. Ralph H. Mayhew of Chicago, and Pvt. Stephen Calpowich of Claremont, N. H. Sgt. Ivan Lamson, 493 Keokuk av., Chicago, crossed the Elbe in the first storm boat.

Other Chicagoland names appear in the list of American war prisoners freed by the American 8th armored division from the Ditfurt camp southeast of Halberstadt. They include Sgt. Jerome Krengiel, 2449 Laurel av., Chicago, captured in the Ardennes Dec. 20, and Pvt. William Mills, Ecorse, Mich., a Canadian captured in the raid on Dieppe.

NAZI PRISONERS TAKING U. OF W. MAIL COURSES

Madison, Wis., April 21 [Special] —More than 100 German prisoners of war in the United States are enrolled in correspondence courses offered by the University of Wisconsin extension division, L. H. Adolfson, acting associate director, reported today. Registration was opened to the prisoners, he said, in response to a request by the provost marshal in Washington, D. C.

The move was made as a means of keeping the prisoners occupied in their spare time. Average cost of the courses is $30, including textbooks, Adolfson stated.

The most popular subjects taken by prisoners for study are English, mathematics, economics, and political science. Of the 113 registrations, all except one are German prisoners. Bulk of the registrations come from Fort Benning, Ga., and Camp Clinton, Miss. The courses are restricted to English speaking prisoners.

Finds Letter to Himself on a German He Kills!

HDQ. 15TH ARMY GROUP IN ITALY, April 21 (AP)—Staff Sgt. Cameron E. Butte of Astoria, Ore., killed a German soldier yesterday and found a letter in the dead Nazi's pocket addressed to himself. "The letter was from my grandmother," Butte related, "and I learned later from the mail clerk that he gave the letter to a buddy of mine and asked him to deliver it. That German killed or captured my buddy and stole the letter as a souvenir."

ASKS SEARCH FOR HUSBAND

Mrs. Henrietta Patrick, 7259 S. Halsted st., yesterday requested the police to search for her husband, Joseph, 36, who has been missing since April 16.

YANKS FREE 10 JEWISH WOMEN FROM ASCH JAIL

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ASCH, Czechoslovakia, April 21—Ten Hungarian Jewesses were liberated from a Nazi jail by United States troops in the first American battle on Czech soil yesterday. Gaunt and ragged, they told interpreters that they were with 1,000 Hungarian slave laborers who were marched from Silesia by Hitler's SS [elite guard]. Only 600 survived the march of about 400 miles, they said. Those who stopped and could not or would not keep up with the column were shot and killed on the spot by the guards, the interpreters were told.

City Is Quiet

There were no cheers and no flags flew from the windows as the Yanks took this city yesterday, but one impromptu celebration was held in the cellar of a farm house near the observation post, where Gary Sheahan, Chicago Tribune artist, and this correspondent watched the battle.

Lt. Burton W. Mitchell, Glen Ellyn, Ill., led us in a dash to the house when shells exploded near by. The two farm families there greeted us and said they were Czechs.

U. S. Casualties Light

American casualties in the fighting were light. Approximately 300 German soldiers were captured. Other Nazis, including SS terrorists, had left the city.

In addition to Mitchell, we met other Illinois residents with the attacking troops, including 2d Lt. James C. Manning Jr., West De Pere, Wis.; Tech. 4th Grade Ben De Puma, 5014 Wabansia av., Chicago, a cook; Sgt. Raymond Muench, Park Ridge, Ill., and Pvt. Floyd C. Faller of Chicago.

Mexico City Buildings Rocked by Earthquake

MEXICO CITY, April 21 (AP)—An earth tremor rocked buildings at 12:24 a. m. today. No damage was reported.

ONCE POWERFUL NAZI AIR FORCE WITHOUT LEADER

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—As an organized force the once dreaded German air force is dead. Allied air officers have gathered evidence that it no longer is directed by any one.

What disjointed life it had left was knocked out during the last two weeks of incessant allied attacks on air fields all over what is left of the reich. During this period allied pilots destroyed 3,200 enemy aircraft while being engaged in but one air battle. A majority of the Nazi planes were smashed on the ground by the United States 8th and 9th air force fighters at a cost of less than 100 of their own planes.

More than 100 of Germany's best air fields have been overrun by allied armies. Most of the remaining bases, from which small numbers of planes now are being flown, are merely pockets of resistance organized by a handful of fanatical pilots hanging on until what gasoline they have is exhausted.

GAS STATION BANDITS TAKE $60

Two men, one armed, robbed Archie Foggey, attendant at the Rubin-Goldberg gasoline station, 952 N. Kedzie av., yesterday and escaped with $60, he told police.

"This noon I'm lunching on Spanish verbs," said Mr. X dashing into the first Record booth

OUR hero, Mr. X (—his name really doesn't appear that way on our Record Charge Customer list) is one of those far-visioned men who realize that Business Opportunities will knock some day at new Doors beyond our present horizons. . . .

"So," said the shy Mr. X, "I'm going to study a foreign language now and be ready to meet those South American customers with the right words." And he pointed to a Spanish Linguaphone set in the case. "There's just one drawback: I have no phonograph and you see I can't afford to wait until they're manufactured again, can I?"

And before we could answer "No", Mr. X had framed his own reply. . . . "I'll take that Spanish set of records now IF I can come in when your Record Booths are having a rest-period and use one of the phonographs. . . . I'll even be Exhibit-A of the Tired-Business-Man-Who-Made-Good-Conversation Espanol, si?"

"Sold," said we.

"Charge it," said he.

"Tomorrow noon I'll be lunching on Spanish verbs." . . . And he did, and still does every chance he gets. . . . Comes in; calls for his record set . . . parses or conjugates a while and disappears . . . seldom "cuts classes."

Although Lyon & Healy is nearing its 81st birthday, we constantly strive to keep a youthful outlook . . . and in spite of the times, we go out of our way to help our customers get what they want—even to studying a foreign language in a Glass House!

12 CONGRESSMEN TO VISIT GERMAN HORROR CAMPS

12 Editors Also Invited to See Evidence

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 21.—At the expressed request of Gen. Eisenhower to President Truman, a bipartisan congressional committee will leave shortly for Europe to visit German concentration camps to gather first hand evidence of Nazi atrocities.

Six senators and six representatives will make up the group—two each from the senate and house naval and military affairs committees plus two members of the senate foreign relations committee and two from the house foreign affairs committee.

Senate members of the committee, which will leave for Europe by plane tomorrow morning, are Brooks [R., Ill.], Wherry [R., Neb.], Saltonstall [R., Mass.], Barkley [D., Ky.], George [D., Ga.], and Thomas [D., Utah. Representatives are Thomason [D., Tex.], Izac [D., Cal.], Richards [D., S. C.], Short [R., Mo.], Mott [R., Ore.], and Vorys [R., O.].

Twelve Editors to Go

Twelve newspaper and magazine editors also will tour the horror centers. An invitation extended to Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was declined by him on the ground that he is fully satisfied with eye witness accounts from THE TRIBUNE'S staff correspondents.

The war department announced the following editors will go in the next few days:

L. K. Nicholson, president, New Orleans Times-Picayune; Joseph Pulitzer, editor and publisher, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Gideon Seymour, executive editor, Minneapolis Star-Journal; Duke Shoop, Kansas City Star.

British Editors Take Trip

The congressional and editor delegations will follow members of the British parliament on a tour of the camps. A house of commons group left London by plane yesterday for the areas.

It is expected that the two groups will submit reports on their findings not only to their respective legislative bodies, but also to San Francisco where the accumulated evidence might aid in the determination of Germany's post-war fate.

"The trip will be vitally important in bringing a first hand report to congress," House Majority Leader McCormack [D., Mass.] said. "There are a lot of others who just will not believe anything they don't want to believe. A report from the committee will be valuable in establishing the record."

Meantime, Senators Brooks [R., Ill.] and Chandler [D., Ky.] announced they would sponsor a joint resolution calling for a commission to investigate and report on atrocities to the San Francisco conference.

TRUCK DRIVER HUNTED

Police on the north shore yesterday were searching for the truck driver of Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's Orphans of the Storm dog haven located near Deerfield after his disappearance Friday along with the organization's truck and $100 out of the till.

MRS. LUCE VIEWS PILE OF CORPSES AT PRISON CAMP

Congressmen Aghast at Nazi Horrors

Will Be Reburied

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Paris, April 21—All those who died in German concentration or prisoners of war camps are to be given decent burial, according to orders issued by Gen. Eisenhower. Wherever they are found, the bodies will be disinterred by details of German civilians "drafted from the immediate areas without any distinction as to their status," it has been ordered. The civilian populations will be held responsible for proper funeral services.

WEIMAR, Germany, April 21 (AP)—A congressional delegation composed of Representatives Clare Booth Luce [R., Conn.], John Kunkel R., Pa.] and Leonard Hall [R., N. Y.], today visited the Buchenwald concentration camp, and saw the horrors which liberating United States troops found in this German den of death and brutality.

Mrs. Luce spared herself none of the grisly spectacles, and said she hoped the people of the United States would see motion picture records which have been made there, altho one of the cameramen said they were so grisly he doubted they would be shown.

She visited the basement crematorium where thousands had been hanged from iron hooks. Her prisoner guide told her how the executioners used clubs to kill victims who did not die quickly enough.

Wagonload of Bodies

Outside the crematorium she saw a wagon stacked high with shriveled bodies. She did not remain long, saying, "It's just too horrible."

In the barracks she saw prisoners too weak to move. Six had been forced to lie on shelves big enough only for three.

She talked to many patients in the hospital—once a brothel—getting first hand information about Buchenwald's brutalities. There were 51,000 dead at Buchenwald.

"Some talk about there being good German people," said Mrs. Luce. "After seeing this, one wonders whether there is good in any German people.

Boy Imprisoned 2½ Years

"No one wants to believe such things could happen. But they have happened here. It is important that people know they are true, we must always remember this could happen to us, too, in 20 years."

She was visibly affected by the sight of an emaciated 6½ year old boy who had been imprisoned 2½ years for being out after the curfew in Paris.

"Debased Beasts"

Kunkel said, "No one could visualize these horrors without seeing them. It is incredible that some of the people were able survive such an ordeal."

Said Hall: "You have to see Buchenwald to realize fully what debased beasts the Germans are. There is nothing here except brutality; corpses by the wagon loads. It certatinly points up the question as to what should be done with Germany after the war."

Mrs. Luce asked several former prisoners what should be done with Germans responsible for the atrocities. They replied, "The same as they did to us."

"That's no answer," Mrs. Luce commented, but she did not amplify.

Lack Investigative Power

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—War Crimes Commission Chairman Wright said tonight that the commission had no jurisdiction to conduct investigations of German atrocities and that it acted only on reports sent in by national governments.

He added that the commission studied such reports to determine if prima facie cases exist so that appropriate authorities can take steps to arrest war criminals.

BOLOGNA FALLS; FOE IS PURSUED OVER PO VALLEY

Clark Sees Beginning of 'Final Victory'

ROME, April 21 (AP) — The United States 5th and British 8th armies toppled the great fortress city of Bologna today and swept on 10 miles northwest in pursuit of German troops fleeing across to the Po plain.

Gen. Clark told his 15th army group that the fall of the ancient city of 270,000 population — which thru the winter's bitter fighting stood as a symbol of German resistance—"represents to us the beginning of final victory in Italy."

He warned, however, that the Germans "might still stand and fight" and the fertile plain, cut by numerous canals, provides plenty of tank obstacles.

Troops smashing into Bologna met only light resistance and by tonight pursuit of the Germans was well under way. San Giovanni, 10 miles northwest of Bologna, was overrun. Polish troops scored gains northeast of the city.

Italians Celebrate.

Members of the United States 34th and 91st divisions entering Bologna touched off a great victory celebration among tens of thousands of joyful Italians.

At the eastern end of the front the British 8th army drove three miles beyond Portomaggiore, capturing Marrara, and were reported within eight miles of Ferrara, important communications center just below the Po river and 30 miles northeast of Bologna. These troops were driving to cut off and annihilate segments of the retreating Germans.

Capture of Bologna was a victory for all allied arms. The 2d Polish corps of the 8th army and the United States 34th and 91st converged on the city from east and west at almost the same hour this morning. The Polish troops pounded into the city from the southwest and the 34th and 91st poured into the city from the southwest, driving thru the last mountain positions.

Troops under Lt. Col. Arthur C. Farthing, of Sterling, Ill., captured between 300 and 400 Nazis in the attack.

Nazis Walk, Beg Food.

Italian civilians greeting 5th army spearheads on the Po plain said the Germans were without vehicles, heavy weapons, and food. One Italian war veteran said:

"They have no tanks. They walk. They beg food. They have only a few horses left. For weeks they have had no gasoline. They cannot stop all this"—and he pointed toward the streams of allied vehicles pouring into the valley.

After months of battling in the rugged Italian mountains the infantry men who moved out into the flat country around Bologna had varied reactions.

One said, "I don't reckon I know much about fighting on a flat land." Another said, "No more ridges, brother."

"I'm just tired, that's all," said Capt. Raymond Beu of Elgin, Ill., commander of Company G, 85th infantry regiment.

Tito Lands Near Fiume

ALLIED HDQ., MEDITERRANEAN, April 21 [Reuters]—Marshal Tito's forces have landed on Cherso Island, 15 miles south of the big Adriatic port of Fiume, already threatened from a point four miles to the southeast. Marauders and Baltimores of the Balkan air force bombed German coastal guns before the landings, which seriously threaten German positions both in Fiume and down the entire coast of eastern Istria.

German Refugee Ship Bound to Demark Sunk

MALMOE, Sweden, April 21 (AP)—The 17,000 ton liner Pretoria of the German East Africa lines, loaded with refugees bound for Copenhagen, struck a mine south of Oresund and sank within a few minutes today, reports from Denmark said. The North German Lloyd ship Potsdam was reported to have reached Copenhagen safely with other refugees.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the final edition of Thursday's TRIBUNE the name of Staff Sgt. Hardy W. Stebbins, son of Hardy J. Stebbins, Y. M. C. A., South Bend, Ind., was listed among the army dead in the Pacific regions. This listing was incorrect, as Sgt. Stebbins should have been included among the army wounded in the European regions. THE TRIBUNE regrets the error.

ONCE A CHICAGO ICEMAN; NOW A TOP BATTLE HERO

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—A 6 foot 3 inch one time iceman who wiped out a German 88 mm. cannon and two machine guns with a rifle and grenades has been awarded the congressional medal of honor.

The war department announced today the decoration will be presented to Capt. Charles C. Ogden, 27 year old infantry officer of Fairmount, Ill., in Germany where he is fighting with the 79th division.

Ogden, commander of Company K of the 314th infantry regiment, won the medal last June 25 near Cherbourg, France, after his outfit had been pinned down by fire from the 88 mm. gun and the machine guns.

Leaving his men behind, he started up a slope toward the enemy positions. A machine gun bullet clipped him on the head, knocking him down. He scrambled to his feet, and fired two grenades at the 88 mm. gun, destroying it.

As he turned toward the machine guns, another bullet hit him in the foot. But he kept on going and threw hand grenades into the machine guns, destroying both.

Ogden at the time was a first lieutenant but received his captaincy in the field last Jan. 16. He is a native of Borton, Ill., and prior to the war worked in Chicago as a life guard and iceman, and on grain elevators.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Ogden, live in Fairmount and his wife in San Luis Obispo, Cal.

F.D.R. DEATH MAY CHANGE WORLD POLITICS: LANZA

Big Question Mark Still Is Russia's Course

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

The death of Mr. Roosevelt may materially affect the general strategical situation. It will take some time before the effects become apparent. Germany is far gone, and not much change in the campaigns in progress in that country are to be expected.

There may be a change in the settlement of many political questions, some of which are quite capable of being the origin of new wars. In the far east, there is ample time before the main campaign is started, thoroly to review, and if considered advisable, revise present plans.

President Truman has declared that he heartily supports everything his predecessor had under way. He intends to carry on, along the old lines. He also is reported to have decided to give the congress a bigger part in political decisions.

Roosevelt's Death Foreseen.

As congress did not always see eye to eye with President Roosevelt, if they are now to be taken into consultation upon state matters variations of the present policies may follow.

It is certain that Great Britain, and in fact the government of the whole British empire, foresaw the death of President Roosevelt. That he was a desperately ill man was mentioned in British reports more than a year ago. That his death would affect the political and strategical situation was conceded. What measures were taken to provide against this event is not yet known.

Incidentally the British realize that Prime Minister Churchill may not be able to continue his active supervision of the war indefinitely. They have an assistant in Foreign Minister Eden to take over when necessary without creating any shock. Other statesmen are being groomed to carry on the fixed British policy.

The Russian Policy

There is no information as to what Russia will do in view of the change in American leadership. That country has been following an opportunistic policy, taking advantage of changes in the situation as they occur. Recent Russian moves have been toward consolidating her position in Europe except the British Isles, with which, however, she has an alliance.

The Russian policy regarding Asia—particularly China and Iran—and the war against Japan has not yet been declared openly. Whether Mr. Roosevelt, at Yalta, agreed to some line of action with concessions to Russia in Asia, is not known.

The attack across the Rhine started on March 23. Three army groups were involved—on the north, center, and south.

The north group forms the left wing. It is the 21st army group, under Field Marshal Montgomery, who has the 1st Canadian and the 2d British armies. The Canadians are engaged in occupying that part of Holland north of the Waal [Rhine] river.

Nazi Resistance Strong

They are meeting strong resistance from German forces who seem determined to defend the great Dutch ports of Amsterdam and Rotterdam for as long as possible.

The British have advanced in a generally northeast direction. At the end of 26 days the maximum advance was 250 air miles, or an average of almost 10 miles a day. The head of the advance is reported towards the naval base at Swinemuende rather than towards Berlin.

This British advance has been parallel to the north German coast. As has heretofore been the case the Germans have successfully defended the ports of Wilhelmshaven, Bremen, and Hamburg which are still in their possession. The British have been just outside of Bremen for nearly two weeks, but have been unable to get in.

In line with this policy, it can be expected that the Germans will defend their remaining ports of Luebeck, Kiel, and Swinemuende in preference to attempting to prevent a junction of the British and Russians.

An Old British Policy

According to the Yalta agreement northwest Germany, including of course the ports, was to be assigned to the British for occupation after Germany had been conquered. This is a continuation of centuries old British policy of keeping their land forces close to the sea. The British are in process of taking over the territory where they may be expected to remain for a long time.

To the coastal belt is to be added the Ruhr. This has been conquered entirely by American troops, but under the Yalta agreement it will have to be turned over later to the British.

The disposition of the Ruhr is one of those political questions which affect the strategical situation. France would like to have it. Should she get it, and develop it as it has been in the past France might soon become as great an industrial state as Germany was. She would be able to raise and equip armies, navies, and air forces just as Germany did.

If France does not get it, she will be dependent upon importations for much of the material she would like. As to this the maritime nations—the United States and Great Britain—might refuse to sell war material, and would always be in a position to blockade France. France would be a second class power, first class if she gets and develops the Ruhr.

If the British keep the Ruhr, and thereby control its vast industrial possibilities, the British empire will be enormously strengthened as an industrial producer.

Y.M.C.A. Will Open Drive Monday to Raise $50,000

The Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago will launch a drive tomorrow to raise $50,000 toward the $830,000 budget of the international committee of YMCAs in the United States and Canada.

A JAP OBSERVER GETS MORE THAN AN OBSERVATION

Yank Battery Centers Its Fire Upon Him

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Okinawa, April 20 [Delayed]—On top of Tomb hill, 500 feet high, I watched our new 24th corps offensive launched with a terrific naval, air, and artillery preparation today. It's an advanced observation post for the regiment and corps artillery and consists of several crude vaults, some left by the Japs, other added by us, each with tops thick enough to take anything but heavy, direct hits.

Grateful for the solidity of the dugouts, you crawl thru dark, low corridors of a tiny cavern where a tripoded "BC Scope" [sighting device] cranes its twin Martian eyes, like a snail's, to look out the slit. It is a battery commander's binocular periscope of 20 power, delicately calibrated and cross-haired to measure the gunfire it observes.

This battery has located the Nip observer who is directing the mortar shells now falling on us. Lt. Col. Stanley Sawicki of Willimantic, Conn., lets you peek thru the scope.

Volleys Aim at One Man

The cross-hairs mark 131, a slight ridge about half a mile away, where you can discern a helmet and a human face. That's your enemy observer. One of our batteries three miles away is trying with all its terrible skill to hit this one little man.

"That last volley was too high," Col. Sawicki says. "That's two shorts and three overs, adjust and fire one volley." The G. I. behind you speaks the order into a telephone and after a moment sings out "on the way." The next five rounds kick up a chain of dust clouds to the left of the target.

The enemy is halfway along a short hog-back that is at right angles to us and our guns are firing from far off to the right and parallel with the ridge. The gunners are shooting at a reverse slope. A shell a few inches over the Nip's head lands many yards to the left.

"Fire one more," Col. Sawicki says. "If that guy's using ground communication I hope that last one cut his wire. He cut ours with his first volley yesterday."

"The infantry reports our fire is falling pretty close," the operator reports.

Nips Are Still There

You see no activity at the enemy post for a moment, but presently the Jap shows his head again. A second one darts across an open space. We call for more fire on the spot and this time three shells land close. The others go over. When the dust lifts the Nips are still there and the mortar fire on our hilltop clatters down unabated.

That guy is plenty nervy. By now he must know those shells have his name on them. The colonel calls for another adjustment and more fire, which falls a mite short. Then he calls for a volley of delayed fuse rounds, hoping for a tree burst which will spray the Nips in the vicinity with screaming "shragments."

The first round strikes a tree. The next one falls just to the left. The enemy observer's tree is completely stripped of foliage.

A Jap comes into vision and bends over something unseeen which we all hope is our stubborn target. It probably is, for the mortar fire outside has ceased.

"Record data for concentration and cease firing," orders the colonel.

CHICAGO YANKS HELP IN DRIVE INTO MINDANAO

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COTABATO, Mindanao, P. I., April 20 [Delayed]—The enemy continued his withdrawal on Mindanao today and 8th army forces had yet to make substantial contact.

A reconnaissance platoon led by Lt. R. J. Margolas, 5620 N. Christiana av., Chicago, penetrated seven miles into the interior. "All we ran into was a platoon of friendly monkeys," said Tech. Sgt. John Nieman, 4741 N. Ashland av., Chicago. In the scouting party were Staff Sgt. Raymond Orf, Racine, Wis., Pvt. Tony Strezo, Worth, Ill., and Pvt. John Freeman, 426 Belmont av., Chicago.

Chicagoland fighters took part in an amphibious operation up the Mindanao river. Among them were:

ILLINOIS—Pvt. Robert Sarabia, 607 Deming pl., Pvt. Faust De Lazaer, 1335 N. Springfield av., Pvt. Edward Doubek, 1700 W. 91st st., Pvt. James Green, 9235 S. Laflin st., and Tech. 5th Grade Gerald Lynch, 904 W. 61st st., all of Chicago; Pvt. Frank Seneteras, Jacksonville, and Pvt. Edward Mackessy, Paris.

WISCONSIN—Pvt. Frederick Davis, Milwaukee, Pvt. Daniel Danielski, Cudahy, and Pvt. Wilbur Damp, South Wausau.

INDIANA—Pvt. George Bergman, South Bend, and Tech. 5th Grade William Hampton, Evansville.

IOWA—Staff Sgt. James Kane Jr., Dubuque.

YANKS ADVANCE IN NORTH LUZON, ON MINDANAO

MANILA, P. I., April 22 [Sunday] —(AP)—American troops made new advances in northern Luzon and on Mindanao against the last two Japanese strongholds in the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

In a swift amphibious advance up the Mindanao river on the southernmost major island of the archipelago, 24th division troops pushed to a point 32 miles inland from their Illana bay beachhead. They captured the Paidu-Palanga terminus of a road connecting to important highway No. 1.

Another column continued to press eastward along the highway farther north in the drive across Cotabato peninsula toward Davao gulf. Other units fanned out north of Illana bay thruout Lanao province.

Japanese troops at Davao and other centers were blasted by bombers.

Near North Luzon Pass

On Luzon, 25th division doughboys, in a bitterly contested advance, secured Kapintala and the adjacent high ground commanding the Cagayan valley road.

The advance placed the 25th's doughboys two miles from the crest of Balete pass, toward which they have been fighting for weeks. Other forces were closing on the pass from the west along the Villa Verde trail. They reported a weakening in the Japanese resistance.

7,000 Moros Fighting

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines reported from Mindanao that 7,000 Moros are in a force of four guerrilla divisions commanded by Col. Robert V. Bowler of Bellingham, Wash.

Bowler, who has been assigned to assist in organizing a regular Philippine army, said the Japanese particularly feared the Moros. The fierce Mohammedan tribesmen, he added, do not have any great love for Americans, whom they fought in 1900, "but they are greatly impressed by our power."

In a special announcement, MacArthur headquarters disclosed the hanging, April 19, of Maj. Sakae Narioka, of the Japanese army, convicted of spying in civilian clothes.

LIBRARY OPENS CENTER TO GIVE GARDEN ADVICE

A garden advisory center was opened in the Randolph st. hall of the Chicago public library yesterday under the auspices of the Chicago Horticultural society. Other coöperating groups were the Garden Club of Illinois and the Men's Garden Club of Illinois. The center will be conducted by Frank F. Balthis, until recently assistant chief horticulturist of the Chicago park district, and will be open daily to the public for general gardening information. The society hopes to stimulate interest in gardening not only for the war years but during peace time also.

BROTHER TEAMS ABOARD NAVAL SHIPS BANNED

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP) —The navy turned thumbs down today on any more "brother teams" aboard ships of the fleet.

Vice Adm. Randall Jacobs, chief of the bureau of personnel, has issued orders to discontinue assignment of brothers, including twins, to the same vessel, even tho requested, since assignment together "may result in the loss of two or more members of the family."

Officials also disclosed that a joint army-navy announcement is in preparation modifying present policy on duty assignment of surviving members of a family. Heretofore policy has been to assign a sole surving son to nonhazardous duty. In hardship cases, the sole survivor may be discharged.

PORCH DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

Death of August Halliquist, 81, of 236 W. 112th st., whose body was found on his perch yesterday, was accidental, a coroner's jury decided.

JAPS SHUFFLE 125 GOVERNMENT JOBS IN SHAKEUP

San Francisco, Cal., April 21 (AP)—Radio Tokyo reported today a three cornered shakeup of Japan's local administrative authorities to centralize power in the event of an invasion, and to boost war production.

The broadcast listed these points: Simplification of the central administrative system, authorizing greater power to administration chiefs, and promotion of new men by interchanges in government departments.

Emperor Hirohito conducted investiture of the new governors of Japan's prefectures. Tokyo said 125 administrative positions had been affected. These included resignations from 21 regional administrators and 15 bureau directors.

U. S. FLAG RAISED OVER IE AFTER SIX DAY FIGHT

Yanks Gain in Bitter Fight on South Okinawa

GUAM, April 22 [Sunday]—(AP)—American conquest of little Ie Island, just off the west coast of Okinawa, was proclaimed by Adm. Nimitz today, but the Yank offensive in southern Okinawa was limited to small gains in bitter fighting.

The United States flag was raised yesterday on the summit of Ie's Iegusugu peak after bitter resistance was overcome on the sheer slopes. Nimitz reported the 10 square mile Ryukyu Island, invaded Monday by the 77th division under Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, was "now in our possession."

Hill Changes Hands

Fighting on southern Okinawa was so severe hill 178 changed hands several times. Nimitz reported the "bitterest kind of fighting" marked the 7th division's battle.

In other sectors the 27th and 96th divisions punched out small gains thru the enemy line defending the capital city of Naha.

Bomb Kyushu Air Fields

Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d marine amphibious corps completed conquest of northern Okinawa as they overran the Motobu peninsula on the northwest coast.

One hundred to 150 Super Fortresses visually bombed air fields on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands, this morning.

Five air fields were the targets. It was the second B-29 raid on Kyushu in 24 hours, the fourth in six days, and the seventh since March 27. Two hundred to 300 Super Forts attacked nine Kyushu air fields yesterday.

B-29 crews reported encountering no fighter opposition as they made runs on he five air fields. Two fields, Tomitakanaj and Miyazaki on the eastern coast, were attacked for the first time.

Seal Off 27 Caves

WITH THE 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION, OKINAWA, April 20—[Delayed]—Units of the 7th infantry division have sealed off 27 caves containing Japanese on Hill 178. At least 25 pillboxes were neutralized.

One Yank company sustained more than 20 casualties last night, even tho the men were dug in.

Amphibian tanks furnished howitzer fire support to the 7th division. Commanders of the howitzer companies include Lt. Arthur J. Droege, Chicago. The executive officer, Maj. John T. Collier, Memphis, Tenn., and Chicago, has been with the unit since it was part of the 2d U. S. cavalry.

ALLIES ADVANCE ON OIL AREA IN CENTRAL BURMA

CALCUTTA, India, April 21 (AP)—The southeast Asia command announced tonight that British and Indian troops threaten the Chauk-Yenang-Yaung oil fields in central Burma and the entire area may be occupied by allied forces within a few days.

With Chauk, and the surrounding area, where some 800 wells are located, already in British hands, a military black-out covered the operations of the 14th army striking toward Yenangyaung, 30 miles south. There are about 3,000 wells in the southern region of the rich oil belt which produces about 300,000,000 gallons annually.

British forces striking down the Mandalay-Rangoon railway from Meiktila were threatening Pyinmana, 200 miles north of the big port of Rangoon, after advancing more than 70 miles in the last 12 days.

OVERFLOWING OIL STARTS FIRE

A shack in the yards of the Calumet brass foundry, 9362 Ewing av., burned yesterday when oil overflowed onto a flame under molten brass, resulting in $4,400 damage, Chief Joseph O'Brien of the 14th battalion, said.

CHINA'S FUTURE AS A REPUBLIC WORRIES REDS

Paper Says Generals Aid Japs

MOSCOW, April 21 (AP)—The publication "War and the Working Class" today expressed anxiety over China's political future, saying "one thing is obvious—without carrying out an immediate democratization of her political life and creating national unity, China will not be able to occupy the place in the democracy of nations to which she is entitled."

Writer's Criticism

Victor Avarin, the writer, had these criticisms to make:

1. "Many Koumintang generals have gone over to the imperialistic Japanese. Out of a half million Kuomintang army, which was in the rear of the Japanese at the first of the war, by 1944 almost nothing was left."

2. "Information has been received from China revealing that generals in cut off territory already had commenced working for the Japanese."

3. He contended the army of former War Minister Ho In-tsin contains many units which are "a dead weight on the neck of the Chinese people," has costly and unnecessary bureaus, and that "it is very possible," many dead men's names are carried as members of the army so the generals can draw their pay and food and equipment allowances.

Press Still Persecuted

"Representatives of the broad masses of the people and the democratic press still suffer persecution," he wrote. "In districts where power is in the hand of the Kuomintang, anti-Japanese democratic fighters are jailed. Only one party is legal—the Kuomintang. Only one Kuomintang press can write what it wants."

CHURCH PROPERTY IN TOKYO IS DESTROYED, REPORT TO VATICAN

VATICAN CITY, April 21 (AP)—The Vatican press service reported today that the air bombing of Tokyo and Japanese occupied areas of China has caused grave damage to church properties.

"At Tokyo the school of the sisters of San Mauro was destroyed and the theological seminary and university of the Jesuit fathers partially destroyed by fire," the service said, adding that "nearly all religious communities had left the capital."

"At Hongkong," the report continued, "the monastery of the sisters of St. Paul was destroyed. Fifty persons were killed, among whom were some Chinese sisters and a French sister."

OKINAWA, April 19 [Delayed]—What do Chicago Yanks talk about while they are awaiting the jump-off to attack a Jap held ridge?

Pvt. Robert J. Gross, 2942 N. Keating av., Chicago, and Sgt. Earl Manual, Steger, Ill., came along the road. No one knew what kind of a ball club the White Sox had, it developed.

Pvt. Sergio Siena, 903 Buena av., Chicago, said it looked like a rough day.

Corp. Thomas McCarty, 5527 S. Wolcott av., Chicago, said he used to drive a circulation truck for a Chicago newspaper and wanted to know how Marty Dwyer of the Tribune circulation department, is getting along.

Capt. Allyn A. Brener, 834 Hinman av., Evanston, Ill., staff officer in the 96th division; Dr. Harold M. Kass, 5501 W. Congress st., Chicago, and Lt. D. Lang, 7924 Lowe av., Chicago, were observed today.

293 BALKY GERMAN PRISONERS PUT ON BREAD, WATER DIET

Rupert, Idaho, April 21 (AP)—Bread and water diet and outdoor sleeping quarters were in order today for more than half the 500 Germans at the prisoner of war camp here.

Army authorities said the disciplinary action was ordered when 258 privates refused to work in the pea fields alongside noncommissioned officers. Later 35 others were added because of a sullen attitude.

The action was announced at Fort Douglas, Utah, by Lt. Col. Eugene D. Mullins, public relations officer of the 9th service command.

The 293 men are required to sleep in an open field within the prison camp enclosure, without cots and with only one blanket apiece, Mullins said. They are given all the water they want but "not too much bread."

WHISKY AND GIN STOLEN

Burglars broke into Otto's Wine and Liquor store, 6959 N. Western av., and took eight cases of whisky and gin valued at $300, Fred Carretta, of 6754 N. Hermitage av., the owner, told police yesterday.

MANY CHURCHES PRAY TODAY FOR FRISCO PARLEY

Nearly all churches of the city will offer special prayers at services today for the success of the San Francisco security conference, which opens Wednesday. Probably no diplomatic event in United States history has aroused more interest of churchmen of all communions. The Chicago Church federation has formally asked all of its 1,200 member churches of a score of denominations to pray for the coming meeting today, asserting that "the earnest prayers of Christian people are needed as never before," and urging that each "join a large prayer group with your fellow citizens on the day the conference opens; a lasting world peace is at stake."

STARVING JAPS ADMIT THEY ATE TWO COMRADES

Guam Father and Son Are Butchered

GUAM, March 9 [Delayed]—(AP)—One small isolated group of Japanese hiding on this island was driven to murder and cannibalism when other food was exhausted, according to records on file in the legal department of Maj. Gen. Henry L. Larsen, island commander.

All information on the butchering and eating of a Japanese civilian fugitive and his 12 year old son was volunteered, the general's staff related, in the form of signed statements after several of the cannibalistic group had surrendered.

Lt. Col. Bernard S. Barron, legal officer for the island command, said the question of court martial trial for the offending prisoners is not yet settled. Two men may be tried, he said.

Quarrel Over Food

In December, 1944, one Japanese sailor, three soldiers, three civilian men, one boy, and one woman were living together in a cave. There were constant quarrels over food. The military men's attitude that they were superior to civilians also provoked quarrels. By early January the civilians moved to a separate cave. The woman slipped away and surrendered.

The father of the boy disappeared one day. Four days later, the sailor appeared at the civilians' cave and asked the boy to return with him—he had found some food, and wanted the boy to have some. The boy accompanied the sailor.

The two civilians went to the other cave next day seeking to learn what might have happened to their comrade and his son. The soldiers and sailor said the boy and father had left. They invited the civilians to share their newly found food.

"They said it was lizard's meat," one of the two civilians related. It tasted bitter, astringent.

Pack Father in Salt

A little later, the sailor took him outside the cave and confided it was human flesh. They had been eating father and son. The father had been killed by a blow of a club and after a quickly cooked meal, the remains were butchered carefully and packed in salt.

The two surviving civilians and the sailor decided to move away before they too were eaten. Then began a painful flight from their own countrymen as well as from the Americans.

Finally on Feb. 20, the two civilians, gaunt from hunger, surrendered. There they learned the soldier whom they accused as the ringleader of the cannibalism plot had surrendered the day before. A patrol of American marines later found the sailor.

Inside the stockade the two civilians accused the soldier of the crime. They said he answered "yes" and told them he wished to apologize.

200,000 TO ASSIST IN RECORD PAPER SALVAGE EFFORT

The largest number of volunteers gathered in any metropolitan city for a one day salvage effort will take part in Chicago's wastepaper clean-up for the city-wide curb collection next Saturday.

More than 200,000 workers will participate, according to John R. Robinson of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association, who is general chairman of the city's salvage efforts. One thousand trucks, each bearing the official collection sign, will collect the paper and rush it to mills for quick conversion into urgently needed cartons for blood plasma and other war uses. Funds from the paper's sale go to the Red Cross, service men's centers, and other war purposes.

The drive will be aided by 100,000 public school students and 30,000 Boy Scouts. Members of boys' clubs, the Girl Scouts, and the Campfire Girls will join in soliciting the paper and tying and carrying it. About 51,000 office of civilian defense worker will help and 500 employes of the streets department and city sealer's office will have charge of truck routing and weighing. These employes are donating their time.

$99,000 SOUGHT OF CANDIDATES IN JUDICIAL RACE

Twenty-four coalition candidates for judicial offices—unopposed in the June 4 election—have been assessed $99,000 as campaign expenses. The money is being paid to the Democratic county central committee. Mayor Kelly's traction program and 49 million dollars in bond issues which the Democratic leaders want the voters to approve will be voted on at the same election.

Election of the 20 candidates for Circuit court and four candidates for Superior court will be automatic, but they were called upon for assessments considerably higher than has been customary in the past.

The 21 candidates seeking full six year terms were assessed $4,500 each and the three candidates seeking two year vacancies were asked for $1,500 each. This was on the basis of $750 annually for offices paying $15,000, as compared with past assessments of $500 or less.

Kelly Sets Precinct Quotas

The importance of the special issues coming before the Chicago voters on June 4 was stressed by Mayor Kelly at a recent meeting of the Democratic county central committee. Ward committeemen were told that, regardless of judicial coalition, they must hold meetings in their wards and carry on an active campaign. The mayor warned committeemen he expected a minimum of 100 votes a precinct.

Foremost among the special issues is the mayor's traction program for purchase and consolidation of the street railway, elevated, and subway systems into one municipally owned and operated transit system.

The voters also will be asked to approve bond issues of 5 million dollars for slum clearance, 20 million dollars for post-war construction of additional airport facilities, and 24 million dollars for park improvements. Another referendum scheduled for the June election is the proposition of increasing salaries of Municipal court clerks and bailiffs.

G. O. P. Left Out on Funds

While 10 of the 24 judicial candidates are regarded as Republicans, none of the $99,000 campaign funds has found its way so far into the Republican coffers. Unless some of the fund is sent to Republican headquarters it is expected the job of getting Chicago voters to the polls on June 4 will fall entirely on the shoulders of Democratic committeemen and their political workers. So far no campaign work has been planned by Republican leaders.

In carrying out the final step of coalition after Republican and Democratic county conventions had nominated identical tickets, the Republican nominations were withdrawn, leaving the coalition slate bearing the Democratic label.

HOPE AND FEAR FOR PEACE AIMS FILL DELEGATES

Yalta Agreement Casts Shadow on Parley

against small nations having no protectors among the big powers.

There is the corollary apprehension that the Dumbarton Oaks plan would promote the development of spheres of influence by big powers and generate the sort of power politics that breeds wars.

Yalta Agreement in Question

Under the Yalta voting arrangement any one of the five big powers could protect another big power or a little nation from league action to settle a dispute by pacific means. Thus Russia could prevent the international organization from even inevstigating a charge of aggression against any of her satellite countries in eastern Europe. England and France likewise could protect an accused nation in their sphere of influence in western Europe. The United States could do the same in the western hemisphere.

The Yalta voting arrangement reduces military action by the league to the policing of weak and friendless countries. But it also precludes the United States or any other big power being committed in advance to go to war by decision of the league.

In controversy is the power of the American representative in the international organization to take the United States into war to enforce the peace league's decrees without express authorization by congress, the sole war making power under the Constitution.

Reference Termed Necessary

The nationalists contend that reference of the question to congress in each case would be necessary. The internationalists would clothe the American delegate with unfettered authority to act. The middle of the roaders would make him a free agent in little wars, just as the President frequently has employed armed forces in emergencies, but would require action by congress in the case of a big war.

The apprehensions extend to the fate of the Monroe Doctrine, to enforce which it would be necessary for the United States, under the Dumbarton Oaks plan, to obtain the permission of the league.

The question is raised whether under the power to initiate limitation of armaments and disarmament the league could effect the reduction of the American navy as the United States was impelled to scrap its preponderant naval power in 1921.

Pacific Defenses Considered

Whether the United States is to possess outright for its future defense in the Pacific the islands American forces have wrested from Japan is another question that will come in for consideration at this conference. The late President Roosevelt is said to have agreed at Yalta that these islands should be committed to an international trusteeship with the United States presumably to be made the trustee by the new League of Nations. Thus it would be possible for the league to transfer the bases to another trustee.

A major controversy will be precipitated if Russia should persist in demanding three votes in the new league's general assembly for the soviet union, the White Russian, and the Ukrainian soviet republics by way of partially balancing the six votes of Great Britain, the British dominions, and India.

Mr. Roosevelt at Yalta agreed to support the Russian demand with the reservation that if three votes were accorded Russia he would ask three for the United States. He later waived that reservation.

U. S. Would Be Outvoted

With only one vote in the assembly, the United States would be hopelessly outvoted by the British empire and Russia, for on a two-thirds vote, required on important decisions, 17 votes could veto action. Britain and Russia would need to command only eight others.

Poland will be the specter at the feast of reason, particularly in connection with the question of the perpetuation of the status quo of the world following the war. The question will be whether the peace league is to defend the partition of Poland by the Big Three at the dictation of Stalin and prevent any revision of this and other war time dispositions of countries that may be unjust and provocative of future wars.

An amendment proposed by Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] providing for possible revision of such agreements may produce one of the great battles of the conference, for the Russians already have indicated stubborn opposition to this and other changes in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals.

League's Role Whittled Down

The great role the league was to play in enforcing peace with an international police force has been whittled down to almost nothing by the Yalta agreement, but its chief sponsors fall back upon its influence to promote settlements of international disputes by pacific means as ample justification for its creation.

Once set up, the new peace machinery must be approved by the governments represented by the delegates before it can operate, by just how many of the 46 governments the conference will decide.

Approval by two-thirds of the senate will be necessary for American membership in the league.

Five Agencies Proposed

The world peace machinery proposed at Dumbarton Oaks consists of the following five agencies:

1. The security council, on which 11 nations would be represented—the Big Five powers, which would be permanent members, and six rotating small nations as temporary members. The council would take such action as deemed necessary to curb aggression or prevent an international dispute from developing into war. A vote of seven of the 11 members would be necessary for action.

2. The general assembly, to consist of a representative of each of the 46 or more nations in the league. It would be an international town meeting, authorized to discuss anything, except an issue under consideration by the council, and to make recommendations but not to order action. It could make recommendations ranging, for example, from independence for India to crop diversification in Latin America. It could add, suspend, or expel members, but only on council recommendation. It would elect the six rotating small country members of the council and set the budget.

World Court Provided

3. The international court, which would decide justiciable disputes of those that can be decided by reference to international law and also would advise the council. Whether the court's decisions should be backed by armed force is a question that will arise in the conference.

4. The military staff committee, composed of the chiefs of staff of the Big Five, which would advise the council on the size, character, and disposition of armed forces called out to enforce peace and on the limitation of armaments and disarmament.

5. The economic and social council consisting of representatives of 18 nations, which would plan economic, political, and social measures to cement the four freedoms—free speech, religious liberty, freedom from want, freedom from fear. This project partakes of an extension of the labor, economic, social security, and other aspects of the New Deal to the remainder of the world.

"Peaceful Means" Sought

The draft charter drawn up at Dumbarton Oaks states it to be a basic principle of the proposed world organization that "all members shall settle their disputes by peaceful means in such manner that international peace and security are not endangered."

More specifically, it provides that "parties to a dispute the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security should obligate themselves, first of all, to seek a solution by negotiation, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, or judicial settlement, or other peaceful means of their own choice."

If a dispute be not settled by such means, members are required to submit it to the security council. Any state, whether or not a member of the league, may bring any dispute or any situation likely to cause international friction to the attention of the assembly or the council. A member of the council may propose investigation of a dispute or threatening situation. The secretary general of the league may lay before the council any such situation.

Council Given Responsibility.

The security council is given primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security. Before considering a dispute referred to it, the council is to determine whether a threat to peace is involved. If it decides that such threat exists, the council is to call upon the parties to reach a settlement by peaceful means and may at any stage recommend appropriate methods of settlement or may refer the question to the assembly or to the international court, if the dispute is justiciable.

If a nation refuses to accept a settlement directed by the council and its refusal is deemed to jeopardize the maintenance of peace and security, the council, on the unanimous vote of the five big powers and the concurrence of two of the small countries, may take "any measures necessary . . . to give effect to its decisions."

The council is empowered to call upon members of the organization to break diplomatic relations with the offending country, boycott it by forbidding trade with it, or cut off all rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, or other means of communication with it.

Armed Action Provided

If the council finds such measures inadequate, it may call into action against the offending country the quotas of seas, air, and land forces which the members of the league are to provide for international police duty under agreements with the individual nations previously arrived at.

This is where the veto power of a big nation, as demanded by the Russians at Dumbarton Oaks and agreed to at Yalta, comes in. In considering settlement of a dispute by negotiations, arbitration, or other peaceful means any members of the council that were parties to the dispute would not be permitted to vote. Thus if Russia and Finland, for example, were involved in a dispute, Russia could not vote, nor could Finland, if a member of the council.

But action for peaceful settlement could be ordered if all the other four big powers and at least three of the six little countries in the council so decided. But Britain or France, each of which has a defensive alliance with Russia, could veto any action out of friendship for Russia. Likewise in a dispute, for example, between Jugoslavia and Turkey, Russia could veto action from friendship for her Balkan satellite.

Big Power Veto Possible

In deciding whether to invoke economic sanctions or employ armed forces against an offending nation every member of the council, even if a party to the dispute, would have a vote. As such action could be invoked only by all five big powers and at least two of the little nations, any big power could veto it, but a little nation could not veto it unless it could get the support of a big power. A big power not only could veto the use of force against itself but it also could prevent the use of force against any small nation in its sphere of influence.

The Dumbarton Oaks plan envisages the coördination of a multitude of special international agencies with the international organization thru agreements with the economic and social council. These agencies include the international labor organization and parts of the Wilson league system, an organization for educational and cultural coöperation, the international monetary fund and International Bank for Reconstruction and Development devised at the Bretton Woods conference, the International aviation organization planned at the Chicago conference, and the international food and agriculture organization initiated at the Hot Springs conference.

Further Plans Envisaged

The world planners are surveying other fields for international organization to be linked with the economic and social council, such as trade, commodities, communications, and health.

Each of these would be a "separately organized institution with a charter shaped according to its needs and varying in range and authority," according to Clyde Eagleton, chief of the state department's division of international organization affairs.

The faults and shortcomings of the Dumbarton Oaks plan as viewed by numerous delegates to the conference will be the subject of a multitude of proposed amendments. These will be described in a dispatch tomorrow.

LATIN NATIONS ASK GREATER VOICE IN SECURITY SYSTEM

San Francisco, Cal., April 21 (AP)—Expansion of the proposed world security council to give small nations a greater voice on issues of war and peace was demanded today by representatives of Latin American countries arriving for the security conference Wednesday.

The Latins' conference plans cover three main points:

1. A demand for four more temporary seats on the security council, which, under the Dumbarton Oaks plan has five permanent big-power seats and six which change periodically for the other nations. The Latins said they would like to reserve these four for themselves.

2. A prediction that Brazil would seek an additional permanent seat on the council for one of the Latin American nations.

3. A strongly expressed intention to dovetail the inter-American system into the proposed world organization without weakening the hemisphere arrangement.

Assistant Secretary of State Rockefeller arrived with the 12 South American ambassadores by plane. The Latin plan was outlined to reporters at the airport.

TRUMAN TO OPEN FRISCO MEETING WITH RADIO TALK

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 21—President Truman will open the San Francisco world security conference with a 10 minute broadcast Wednesday evening from his desk in the White House.

This was announced this afternoon as the new chief executive and allied leaders awaited the arrival of Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov for a canvass of Big Three problems, particularly the Russo-Polish question, before the conference opens. Molotov, awaited thruout the day, now is expected to arrive tomorrow.

Mr. Truman will speak over all radio networks between 7:30 and 8:00 p. m. [6:30 and 7 p. m., Chicago time] on a program of welcoming addresses which will include State Secretary Stettinius, Gov. Earl Warren of California, and Mayor Roger D. Lapham of San Francisco.

No Marked Shift Expected

Mr. Truman's decision to address the conference by radio is in contrast to a personal appearance which the late President Roosevelt had planned.

No marked shift is expected in foreign policy, but the change can be best expressed by Mr. Truman's own statement that if there are to be any Big Three meetings Churchill and Stalin will have to come here; the new President will not go to meet the other leaders.

Stettinius and British Foreign Secretary Eden held a conference despite Molotov's absence. After the discussion, which lasted more than an hour, Eden told reporters that "we are in complete agreement on all points."

He said he and Stettinius had had "very useful discussions on a number of subjects."

Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong and French Foreign Minister George Bidault remained here against the possibility that they might be called to participate in any sessions with Molotov when he arrives.

Number of Problems

Aside from the snarled Polish situation, there are a number of problems which await solution before the meeting gets under way. Among these are a number of tentative changes in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals for a peace organization and the perfection of a possible trusteeship system for holding former enemy territories.

Mr. Truman had a relatively light schedule for the first time this week, but it was devoted almost entirely to the conference. He conferred with Stettinius and Bernard M. Baruch, capitalist, who undertook a special mission for President Roosevelt to allied occupied areas in Europe.

Later in the morning he conferred again with W. Averell Harriman, American ambassador to Moscow. It was believed that the envoy continued to inform Mr. Truman on the Russian situation preparatory to his impending meeting with Molotov.

Mr. Truman is aware that at the meeting Molotov probably will study the new President with great interest in order to carry back a first hand report to Marshal Stalin. For months the Russians, well aware of Mr. Roosevelt's failing health, made a study of the Vice President, according to Moscow dispatches.

Kiss for Truman

Miss Matilda D. Brown in her home at Independence, Mo.

Independence, Mo., April 20 (AP)—President Truman has a kiss coming from his former high school English teacher the next time they meet—the kiss that he didn't get on graduation day because it went only to the one in the class who had distinguished himself.

The boy on whom Miss Tillie, as Miss Matilda Brown, now 75, was known to her students, bestowed the kiss back in 1901, was Charles G. Ross, the President's newly appointed press secretary.

WORLD PARLEY URGED TO BACK A FREE PRESS

An international compact guaranteeing the universal right of free access to and interchange of news was urged on delegates to the San Francisco conference in a resolution voted yesterday at the streamlined meeting of the National Editorial association in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The association, representing publishers of 5,100 smaller dailies and weeklies, praised the efforts of Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, for his efforts in behalf of freedom of the press.

Charles L. Ryder, publisher of the Cobleskill, N. Y. Times was elected president of the association, succeeding W. Verne McKinney, publisher of the Hillsboro, Ore., Argus, who was elevated to chairman of the board.

BAN ON WHOOPEE AT PARLEY STIRS BABEL OF WAILS

Delegates Are Dismayed by Black-Out of Fun

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 21—Dismay was expressed in a score of languages by emissaries of 46 nations, pouring into this city today for the international security parley, ovei an unexpected blackout of fun and frivolity.

Wails arose in Arabic, Persian, French, Spanish, Russian, and a dozen other dialects. [There were no complaints in Polish. The Poles are not here.]

Heads of delegations hid their sorrow in a dignified silence. But their subordinates, who had looked forward eagerly to the social and gustatory delights of San Francisco's famed hospitality, were outspoken regarding the dismal developments.

$800,000 Fund Exhausted

These developments were:

1. The state department has exhausted the $800,000 appropriated by congress for the conference and is urging reluctant city officials [who didn't want the assembly in the first place] to raise $100,000 for "extra-curricular" items such as free champagne, cognac, and succulent viands.

2. The ban on social activities requested by the state department, previously regarded lightly by celebrity-hunting society leaders, will be observed strictly until May 12, some 17 days after the sessions start, because of the national 30 day period of mourning for the late President Roosevelt.

3. The city's hotels, renowned for their cuisine, find themselves, as a result of OPA rulings, without adequate food supplies for hungry delegates.

More Money Expected

After the shock of these unexpected revelations had died down, however, the foreign representatives gained some comfort from assurances that the situation is bound to ease.

They were informed congress will appropriate more funds; the state department merely feeling it would be "premature" to ask for more money before the conference actually starts.

It was explained the $800,000 has been exhausted mainly in assembling a large staff to render clerical, stenographic, and similar services to delegates. A recruiting department has been set up here and many secretaries and experts have been borrowed from Washington departments.

U. S. IS OUTNUMBERED BY FOREIGN PRESS ON TRAIN TRIP TO FRISCO

North Platte, Neb., April 21 [En Route to San Francisco Security Conference] — Foreign newspaper correspondents, many of them controled by their governments, outnumber American reporters on this special Union Pacific press train to San Francisco.

William Mangles, state department representative on board, said more press and radio staff men probably are traveling on this train than ever before traveled together to any news event. The train is in two sections 30 minutes apart and is due in San Francisco Monday.

Most of the 387 passengers are working press. Others include office of war information press agents and at least two college professors. Two correspondents came from Chungking, China, and eight flew to America from Greece to catch the train. Russia, Brazil, Chile, France, Syria, and Australia are represented. Polish, Czechoslovak, and other foreign language newspapers in America have men aboard.

The Communist Daily Worker of New York, also caught the train.

INVADING JAPAN

THE TRIBUNE has said that, from here on in, our biggest stake in the Pacific is the lives of American boys. With the exception of Wake Island, we have retaken all the territory over which the American flag waved before the war. There still are Japs in the Philippines, but their control of the islands is broken. We have liquidated the empire conquered by the Japanese. The bases we have not captured have been left to die on the vine. Japan has been denied almost all use of the sea and is under blockade.

The Japanese home islands stand out, but they are taking a fearful pasting from the air which will grow steadily worse. Japan still maintains its hold on China, on Indo-China, on Malaya and part of Burma, and on the Dutch and British Indies. But these are matters that concern China, France, Holland, and Britain. China's contribution to the war largely has been that of patient endurance. It has done little in a positive way toward its own rescue. Holland and France hardly have been capable of token participation, and Britain and Australia have been engaged on the periphery with forces capable of only local successes.

There are others beside ourselves who question the wisdom of inviting a slaughter of American lives by landing in Japan, China, or the colonies of southeast Asia or the Indies. When we find the major news story on the front page of a small town newspaper in Alabama devoted to this problem, and an editorial supporting the same position that we have taken, we are justified in feeling that this is a subject of concern to a great many people in this country.

This particular discussion was printed in Our Southern Home, published in Livingston, Ala. A correspondence was reproduced between Dr. W. J. McCain of that town and Sen. Lister Hill. Dr. McCain urged that America confine its further role in the Pacific to naval and air support of the nationals of occupied countries. He obviously feels that the repossession of colonial areas is the business of the empires which will get them back. "This is truly a time when we should only 'furnish the tools' and let those most benefited 'finish the job,'" he asserts.

The accompanying editorial, devoting some remarks to the Russian policy of watchful waiting, suggests that if America undertakes the terrific job of throwing the Japs out of all the conquered territories and beating them in their homeland, it isn't going to be America that will pick up the pieces. "We already have been severely burned in pulling out chestnuts for other nations," the editorial observes. "A nation to survive must be realistic, certainly not altruistic to silliness."

We cite this provincial publication as evidence of a very considerable sentiment among grass roots Americans, especially among those who have sons in the Pacific. Japan has learned a terrible lesson already and we can continue to make life so miserable for her that she may be willing to capitulate, surrender her war criminals, and acquiesce to our other demands without the necessity of a land invasion.

It is incontrovertible that the reconquest of colonial empires devolves upon those who claim them. After the final reduction of Germany we shall have vast amounts of armament which can be parceled out among the Filipinos and lend-leased to the Chinese and Koreans. Our fleet and planes can close the seas to Japan's fishing fleets and to the shipping required to bring in supplies without which Japan is condemned to economic death. Our air force can continue raining ruin upon her home islands and her holdings, but there is little sense and less equity in thinking that it is in any way our duty to repossess the property of our passive allies.

SHRIMPS

Shrimps, as most people are aware, are an edible long-tailed crangonoid crustacean. Out in Oelwein, Ia., there is a restaurant owner who used to specialize in fried chicken and shrimps. When the price of shrimps went up, he had to drop them from his menu, for he could not raise his ceiling price without special authorization. Then chicken was frozen by OPA and he decided that if he wanted to stay in business he'd have to go back to shrimps. So he paid a visit to the regional office of OPA at Des Moines to ask if he could raise the price of a shrimp dinner 10 cents.

He explained his problem, but was told certain information was lacking. He went back to Oelwein, assembled the information, and mailed it to Des Moines. Two weeks later the price analyst at Des Moines responded to his letter. As a specimen of muscle-bound burocratic rhetoric this OPA composition is a classic. We can't reproduce it in toto, for it took the analyst 750 words to unload. But here are a few of the things he thought it was indispensable for the restaurateur to do before the application for a 10 cent price increase on shrimps could be properly reviewed:

Tell how many members of the restaurant owner's family live on the premises or eat there, or what value was to be placed on the food they took home. Give the names and addresses of the three nearest competing eating places, with number of blocks distant from the shrimp house, and the maximum prices they charge for each meal, item on the menu, or beverage they sell. Specify each meal, item, or beverage sold at the shrimp house, with prices.

"Perhaps," said the analyst helpfully, "a list could be prepared containing several columns, one showing your present prices, the next column showing your requested prices, the average number of each item you sell per day or per week, and columns for each of the three competitors showing their maximum prices for each of those meals, food items, or beverages."

That wasn't all the analyst wanted. He also directed the owner of the shrimp shack to state the type of customers most frequently served, such as factory, office, or store workers, professional men, or school children. The proprietor was also to "show in what way your customers would be seriously inconvenienced if you should discontinue operations" and whether "customers would be subjected to substantial difficulty as to distance, hours of service, selection of meals, capacity, or transportation in obtaining a fairly equivalent service as to quantity, quality, price of meals, in the event they were required to obtain that service from other establishments."

There were a number of other points on which the analyst sought light. "Please clarify that point," he would suggest. Also, would the restaurateur provide figures on total income and total business expense for the last three fiscal years? Would he tabulate total costs of raw food, expense of preparing meals, wages paid for each year, taxes paid, costs of heat, light, fuel, power, laundry, repairs, insurance, and replacement of broken dishes?

The restaurant man wrote across this masterpiece, "Forget it." The full resources of planning were brought to bear on the shrimp question, and the result is a total loss. Readers can supply their own moral of what happens when the master minds begin running other people's lives and businesses by remote control.

GOOD COUNSEL

The governors of the American Bar association called attention recently to an aspect of the Dumbarton Oaks program that has received too little notice. They were the first, we believe, to suggest that the delegates to the San Francisco conference take a very careful look at the proposed international economic and social councils before establishing them and entrusting them with any authority.

Public attention has been focused on such matters as voting strength in the new league, the administration of colonies, and military sanctions. The tendency has been to disregard the auxiliary councils as of little or no real importance; the assumption has been that they might do some good and could do no harm.

The bar association's governors, men of broad experience in the negotiation and drafting of covenants, take a different view. They are opposed to "giving sanctions for ambitious, elaborate plans for remaking the structure of free enterprise society and the industrial and social institutions of the world." Accordingly, the lawyers advise, that "at least at the start, the powers of any economic or social council, if such is created, should be kept purely advisory and should not include the power to intervene in the economic or social institutions or the way of life of any country."

This would be sound advice at any time and is particularly so at this time when the nations of the world seem determined to overlook what must be the most obvious lesson of the war. They have seen the United States turn out more war materials than all the rest of the nations, allied and enemy, combined. They have seen the incomparable achievements of our soldiers and sailors. The nations know that we have the world's most effective army and the most powerful navy and air force ever built, and they know, or ought to know, that we have these and many other achievements to our credit because our way of life is superior to that of any other nation. The planned societies which are spreading all over the world have precious little to teach us about developing strong and vigorous men, or about promoting wealth and well-being, or about creating a just and wholesome society.

Nevertheless, there is a growing tendency in other countries and even here to disregard all the evidence and restrict the economic and social freedom that carried America to the top. The economic and social councils of the new league might prove useful in this destructive effort. In these agencies, if they are established, we shall find ourselves in a very small minority. They will surely try to lead us from our path into theirs and, if they can, to force us to take their direction. If they succeed we shall be worse off and so will they, because their prosperity is linked to ours, but theirs will be the satisfaction of having dragged us down toward their level.

The board of governors of the bar association deserves the thanks of the American people for having called attention to this danger and counseled caution. The best contribution that America can make toward the rehabilitation of the world is to keep itself free.

THE BEST INVESTMENT

The United States savings bond plan was 10 years old on March 1. When it was originated in 1935, the yield obtainable on the highest grade of corporation bonds was 3.5 per cent. As the government's credit stands above that of any private debtor the savings bonds, it was believed, would have a strong appeal at a slightly lower rate than was being paid by the top rated corporations. Offering a return of 2.9 per cent, the "A" bonds were bought by many large investors to the full amount permitted. Investment advisory services generally informed their clients in 1935 that the new savings bonds were the best buy on the market.

Since 1935 interest rates have fallen to the lowest level ever known. The rate of return on the safest corporation bonds has fallen from 3.5 per cent to below 2.5 per cent. The government, however, still is selling savings bonds to net the investor 2.9 per cent over a 10 year period. This rate, which used to be 0.6 per cent less than that paid by the best private borrowers, now is 0.4 per cent more than is paid by the same people. There is no safe investment which gives a return comparable to that to be had on "E" bonds.

ENGLAND'S ARISTOCRACY

[Following is an address delivered in New York last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

Just as our Revolution gave the impetus to the popular franchise in England, so our Civil war was the cause of its accomplishment.

British agitation against the slave trade, beginning in 1815, was largely in revenge against the south for the War of 1812 and the battle of New Orleans, but by 1861 Palmerston, Gladstone, and the other members of the government saw a distinct threat to their class government in the success of our Republic, its freedom, and its free elections. Disraeli, in one of his novels, describes their point of view: that southern planters, receiving all of their income from the land and controling politics, could be accepted as gentlemen. If the British aristocrats did not want to force slavery on their tenants, just as firmly they did not want to accord them political and social equality.

The British government did everything it could, short of war, to help the Rebellion. Its cause fell. Freedom triumphed in America and spurred on the advocates of freedom in England. Two years after Appomattox saw the second reform bill bring suffrage in England to a popular basis.

These were great reforms. One serious evil remained . . . the law of primogeniture. As late as 1873, Joseph Medill wrote that 50,000, out of 30,000,000 people, owned all the land in Great Britain.

The defeat of a bill in the house of lords to tax land in 1910 led to the abolition of its legislative powers. Herbert Asquith, then prime minister and leader of the house of commons, introduced a bill providing that any measure passed three times by the house of commons should become law without the consent of the house of lords. When this bill was also rejected by the house of lords, not one but two general elections were held over this issue, both won by Asquith's party. The house of lords, still being recalcitrant, Asquith asked the king to create 250 new peers to furnish a majority in the house of lords. This King George V. consented to do; whereupon the house of lords passed the bill. Thus, the house of lords lost its legislative power as had the king before it.

The old government of England by two houses and an executive with absolute veto power had become a government of a single house without any check whatever.

In a period of 80 years the hereditary aristocracy, which sat in one house by right and controled the other by a perquisite, had legally been reduced to its microscopic voting strength in the nation.

Strangely enough to us, its political power has hardly been reduced at all—this because of Great Britain's hereditary social system.

Where our political belief, as stated in the language of Lincoln, is that: "On this continent our fathers brought forth a new nation, dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal," the British doctrine is as truly expressed by the duke of Rutland: "Let wealth and commerce, laws and learning die, but leave us still our old nobility."

The nobility of France had been based solely upon privilege and heredity. When the privilege was withdrawn, the nobility fell with it. The German nobility held a hereditary right to the best state jobs, as they considered them, under the emperor. When the empire fell, the nobility fell with it. The British nobility, on the other hand, had ruled the state for over 200 years after the Great Rebellion.

They had been the greatest conquerors in history. They conquered Ceylon and India over a period of centuries from 1695 to 1895. They had added Burma to their conquests from 1826 to 1866; Malaya from 1795 to 1909; Egypt, the Sudan, Rhodesia, and the Transvaal from 1890 to 1902. In spite of reform at home, of these conquered peoples only the whites of the Transvaal have received self-government.

As we know, Burma and Malaya welcomed the Japanese invaders, and India is held down only by a mercenary army of two million men and the suspension of such civil rights as the Indians ever enjoyed.

These territories furnish much wealth to the empire, including the diamonds of South Africa and the rubies of Burma.

While yielding to expediency in many points at home and in the English speaking colonies and in Ireland, the aristocracy, excepting as it has been driven out by the Japanese, has held all of its old perquisites in its conquests.

Therefore, the loss of their legislative veto in 1910 did not diminish their prestige.

Every Englishman's desire is rank in this aristocracy. Asquith and Lloyd George, who had pulled down the house of lords, later enthusiastically accepted membership in it. Nor did the crown, in spite of the humiliating, forced abdication of Edward VIII., lose its position in the kingdom.

The present place of the king in the government is that of the indispensable apex of the social hierarchy which really governs the country. He stands at the head of a whole bevy of nobilities. There are English titles, Irish titles, Scotch titles, British titles, and, if I am not mistaken, empire titles, ranging from the prince of Wales thru the dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts, barons, and baronets, to the knights. Below them are a whole series of "honorables," "right honorables," and "orders" of all kinds.

Titles are presumably—and often are—conferred for services to the state, as conspicuously demonstrated in the cases of Marlborough and Wellington, who received dukedoms, and of Nelson, the greatest naval hero in British history, who because of his obscure birth was not raised above the rank of viscount. Balfour was made an earl for his great diplomatic victory in 1922. Recently John Maynard Keyes has been created a baron for his dominance in American affairs.

Titles have also been conferred for reasons of national prestige. Admirals Beatty and Jellicoe and Generals Haig and French were ennobled so that they could be represented as successful commanders. Prestige is so important in the British mind that military failure instead of incurring rebuke and punishment, wins reward.

John Lambert, who led the retreat from New Orleans, was knighted for getting away. Sir John Moore was immortalized for his defeat in Spain. The flight from Dunkerque has been acclaimed as a triumph. After losing the battle of Arnhem, Gen. R. E. Urquart returned to England to be knighted as Commander of the Bath.

It must be admitted that titles so given have upheld British military reputation, but has it not been at the expense of military success? With equal reward for defeat as for victory, where is the incentive for unconquerable effort in battle?

Titles, however, are for the most part given for political service. They are compensation for campaign contributions and political support. It is thoroly illustrative of the British point of view that labor leaders are as anxious for titles as capitalists.

The British newspapers are far more effectively controled by title appetite than they ever were by license, censorship, or taxes. And the newspapers in the dominions accept the leadership of the British press.

Editorial opinion is thoroly regimented, with little sham battles between editors to give the appearance of difference of opinion. News, in our sense of the word, does not exist. Instead of giving the news to the people so that they can form opinions from the evidence, they are told what is considered desirable they should believe. Foreign nations and foreigners are praised or berated as they may serve or defy this camarilla, with that luxury of abuse that the aristocracy indulge in toward the commoners.

By these methods the aristocracy has remained in power under a democratic form of government.

CHOREA DEMANDS COMPLETE REST

IF you had your childhood to live over again what changes would you desire? Those whose "cabbage days" were happy probably would want everything to be the same. But ask your body that question and it certainly would beg to be spared the ailments which are prone to cause incapacity in later years.

Every youngster encounters sickness of some sort. If mother will see to it that her little patient receives proper care, in most instances no untoward after-effects need be anticipated. This means that in middle life and beyond our tissues and organs will be able to do their work better and with less effort.

Chorea, or St. Vitus' dance, is a case in point. Most authorities believe that the malady is akin to rheumatic fever. At any rate, in many victims it is associated with painful, swollen joints and signs of heart damage. Some day we will solve the riddle of the relationship of these two diseases.

Girls between the ages of 7 and 14 are more susceptible, especially the undernourished with a family history of nervous instability. The sufferer may be considered fretful or harum-scarum, altho it must be understood that all jittery children are not potential victims.

As the illness progresses lack of coördination is observed, starting in the hands and arms and spreading to the lower extremities. Objects will slip from the fingers and the child is likely to stumble and fall all over the place. Eventually the entire body may become involved, including the muscles of the face. The grimaces are characteristic. Irregular, jerky movements, with no pattern, differentiate chorea from habit spasms.

The most important factor in treatment is complete mental and physical rest. The household must be reorganized so that the patient can have absolute quiet and freedom from annoyances and stimulations of all sorts. If this cannot be arranged hospital management is preferred.

Appetite is usually poor and the meals should be attractive, nourishing, and easily digestible. If anemia is present some iron preparation may be beneficial. Sedatives are frequently indicated. No toys must be permitted which would allow the child to injure himself, as we must recall that the choreic movements are uncontrolable. Massage, warm baths, and hot packs are often valuable. In severe cases fever therapy has given good results.

As a rule, recovery may be expected in two to three months, altho it may take longer. Unfortunately, recurrences are common. At the first sign of a relapse the youngster must again be put to bed. These young people must always be guarded against overfatigue and excitement. When all symptoms have disappeared sources of infection in the teeth, tonsils, etc., should be eliminated. No surgical procedure should be attempted during the acute stage of the disease.

With intelligent management the chances are that in later decades the vital structures will have little cause to complain of neglect in early life.

DISTURBED BEAT

T. R. writes: Can a heart block be remedied?

REPLY

This disturbance of the heart beat may arise during the course of a systemic disease, such as rheumatic fever. As the acute malady improves, the rhythm of the pumping organ returns to normal. Many individuals with the permanent form of heart block are not incapacitated. Occasionally symptoms develop, which can be controled by medicine.

ASTHMA REMEDY?

N. N. writes: I am troubled with bronchial asthma and I have heard that planting pine trees in the yard would bring relief. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Such a procedure would probably leave you still pining for a cure. The disorder is the result of sensitivity to some irritant. If the offender can be found and removed, symptoms should vanish.

EYE TRANSFER

J. K. writes: Is there such an operation as removing the entire eye from one person and placing it in another individual's socket in order to save sight?

REPLY

No, but attempts to transplant certain parts have proved successful in some cases.

NOT EXHAUSTION

L. S. writes: You stated recently that an infant could have shingles. Most people claim it is due to nerve exhaustion. Will you explain?

REPLY

This inflammation of the tiny nerve endings is caused by a virus. No age is immune.

MANY EFFECTS

H. A. writes: Is whisky considered a stimulant or a sedative?

REPLY

Alcohol affects individuals differently. If they are tense, a small amount may have a sedative effect. Larger quantities are obviously stimulating. When toxic doses are reached, deep slumber may result.

INFLAMED VEIN

J. Z. writes: Can phlebitis develop without varicose veins?

REPLY

Yes, any vein can become inflamed but those which are varicosed are favored.

ALL-AMERICAN WATERWAY

Chicago, April 18—Yesterday's TRIBUNE carried a story quoting the Commerce and Industry association of New York recommendation that the St. Lawrence seaway plan be abandoned. The association is right. The St. Lawrence plan has never been any good. On the other hand, a deep waterway—a ship canal—between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic ocean is, unquestionably, to be desired. In years of normal trade movement, some 12 per cent of total United States foreign trade clears thru the Great Lakes—even with our present inadequate waterways.

With a ship canal from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard, Chicago will become a busy world seaport. It is not necessary that any part of this canal pass thru Canada, because there is a shorter and more economical route that can be used more months of the year than the St. Lawrence, and that can be an entirely American waterway. Why build this great waterway thru Canada, either wholly or partially with American money, when the more logical, more economical, shorter, route can be wholly an American waterway?

I am speaking of enlarging the barge canal thru New York state to the proportions of a ship canal. New York City, as a seaport, is closer than the mouth of the St. Lawrence to all the world markets, with the exception of Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, Newfoundland, and northern Europe. By this all-American waterway route Chicago and all the other Great Lakes ports, and their tributary territory, will be 1,559.3 miles closer to New York and to all the seaports of the world than they would be by the St. Lawrence route, with, of course, the few exceptions named above. From Buffalo to New York, via the Welland canal and the St. Lawrence, is 2,066 land miles. Yet it is only 506.7 miles from Buffalo to New York via the barge canal.

The Hudson river is already dredged, and available for oceangoing ships, from New York to Albany, with a 27 foot draft channel. The all-American route would merely entail the deepening and widening of the barge canal, the installation of new locks, and the removal of fixed bridges over a distance of 362.5 miles, from Buffalo to Albany.

A still more practical, economical, all-American route can be made by merely enlarging the barge canal from Buffalo, or Tonawanda, to Lockport, and creating a new canal, of a length of 12 miles, from Lockport to Olcott, which is on Lake Ontario. The route would then go thru Lake Ontario to Oswego; thence after enlarging the barge canal, from Oswego to Albany. This latter route would entail the deepening of the barge canal for a distance of only 213.6 miles, and the creation of a new canal of 12 miles. Either of these shorter, all-American routes can be constructed for less than the proposed deepening of the St. Lawrence waterway. In case of emergency, we would then have an all-American waterway to move our much needed vessels from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic ocean.

Finally, because of the more favorable southern latitude of the all-American route, it would be open a number of weeks longer each year than would the Canadian waterway. Such a waterway would, by bringing low cost transportation to all ports of the world, be a boon to Chicago and to the entire midwest.

IT'S A VALUABLE ANTIQUE NOW

Chicago, April 16—I bought a new car in 1940 which I still own. Here are the instructions of the assessor of Cook county as to listing it in my personal property tax schedules for the last three years: For 1943, at 15 per cent of factory price; for 1944, 40 per cent of factory price; and for 1945, 40 per cent of factory price.

In other words, in 1944, when the car was a year older than the previous year, he boosted its value for taxing purposes nearly 300 per cent. Then this year, he continues the boost. And now that the car is 5 years old, for taxing purposes he says it is nearly 300 per cent more valuable than when it was half as old as it now is.

I had rather formed a good opinion of the Cook county assessor, but apparently I was mistaken. It seems to be the same old story. Get the dough—whether it is fair or not.

TARIFF REBATE PLAN

New York, April 11—In order to increase the United States' post-war foreign trade many people propose lower tariffs. Lowering tariffs without regard to foreign wage scales violates the following principles on which all trade, including foreign trade, should be based: fair competition among concerns, whether located in one or more countries, requires the same wage scale. Promotion of efficiency requires improving methods of production rather than lowering wages as a means of reducing costs.

Foreign trade can, however, be promoted in accordance with the foregoing principles. To illustrate, the United States should have an arrangement with, say, Belgium whereby its tariffs on Belgian products would measure the wage differentials between competing Belgian and American industries. Thus competing Belgian and American products would be sold in the United States on the basis of relative efficiency only, and would be priced on the basis of the American wage scale. The tariffs thus collected on Belgian products would be rebated to Belgian importers of American products, enabling the Belgian, in turn, to buy our products on the basis of his wage scale.

Here is how the plan would work. If the United States imported $100,000,000 annually from Belgium on which a $25,000,000 tariff was collected, the United States would rebate this amount to Belgian purchasers of American goods. Since the tariff is 25c on every $1 imported, the rebate would not exceed 25c on every $1.25 exported. Thus if Belgium imported $125,000,000 of American goods, the total rebate would be $25,000,000.

Of course if the Belgians imported more than $125,000,000 the rebate would be less than 25c on every [illegible] imported, since we would not rebate more than we collected. If they purchased less than $125,000,000 within an agreed period the rebate would remain at 25c on every $1.[illegible] [illegible] part of the $25,000,000 would go to the United States treasu[illegible].

The lower wage country having no need for protection against United States' labor costs would in return for the tariff rebate let American products enter tariff free. It would not reëxport American goods in violation of the principles stated above, and both countries would agree not to subsidize exports and penalize imports in any way other than the above and to control cartels.

Foreign trade between countries is an exchange limited by the [illegible] each other's products. Foreign sales can of course be [illegible] investments abroad, but the return due annually on this money plus its repayment will increase the difficulty of the debtor countries to purchase our goods in the future.

Friend of the YANKS

[The Friend of the Yanks answers questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents. Replies will be given by mail if stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice may be obtained from The Tribune's bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., or by phone, Superior 0200.]

Mrs. J. asks: "How can I insure against delay in receiving my allotment check when I am leaving my temporary residence in Chicago for my permanent home in the south? My husband is in the army and now going overseas."

Send a letter to the office of dependency benefits, 213 Washington st., Newark, 2, N. J., giving your full name as it is written on your check, your present address, the new address, your husband's name, army serial number, and the family allowance application number. Also notify the postmaster at your old address on a change of address card obtainable at any postoffice.

S. W. writes: "I am divorced and have two children. I have custody of one and my former wife has the other. I expect to be inducted shortly. When I make application for allotment for my children, will the elder child receive $30 a month and the younger $20?"

The total sum of family allowance payments for all children of a service man will be divided equally among them. This regulation holds whether you are selected for the army or navy.

T. F. asks: "Can an enlisted man stop his allotment for a family allowance to his wife and children?"

Not so long as he remains an enlisted man. The allowance would be stopped, however, if he were appointed in the rank of warrant officer or above.

CAPITALISM NEEDS PEACE

Oak Park, Ill., April 11—Economics is concededly a matter of theory, but even so it takes a genius to hang up a record on forecasts of being 100 per cent wrong. Karl Marx told us that capitalism is imperialistic and leads to wars; and there are, strangely enough, people who still believe it. The simple fact, of course, is that private enterprise capitalism, in order to function at all, must have peace.

Talk about "have" and "have-not" nations, with resultant wars to acquire natural resources, is socialistic hokum. In a free market economy it makes no difference who owns the resources, because they are available to all, at the same price, with minor adjustments for freight differentials [which would still exist if ownership changed hands]. Consider nickel, of which Canada has about 85 per cent of the world's known supply: The International Nickel company did everything possible to expand the uses of nickel and in doing so it competed actively with tungsten, chromium, vanadium, molybdenum, etc. Instead of putting the "have-not" nations at a disadvantage, the sellers of nickel educated them in its use and lowered the price whenever possible. The same with molybdenum, of which the United States has the lion's share.

While we were technically at peace, Hitler's attack on Russia gave birth to the entertaining spectacle of CIO heads berating management, complaining that business men had to be dragged into war production by the scruff of their necks. These dumb business men seemed to prefer peace—possibly they had not read Marx. When we went to war it soon became evident that wars is no boon to business. In addition to being harassed from all sides by burocrats, companies were compelled to sell war production at such low margins of profit that they could not continue, on comparable basis, in civilian business afterwards. Union "economists" are always screaming about profits "before taxes," but the raw fact is that profits after taxes and renegotiation are only too often less than 1 per cent of net sales. Management is not complaining about this, nor are the long suffering stockholders, whose earnings are taxed twice.

Private enterprise capitalism wants world trade, and on a multi-lateral basis. This means that producers in each country wish to sell everywhere, whether or not their own country's nationals buy much from a country in which they sell. Such multi-lateral trade is cleared thru the free foreign exchange market, which disappears at the first breath of war, or the approach of socialism. Management knows only too well that a satisfactory volume of trade cannot be built on bilateral arrangements which are unspeakably clumsy. The multiple transactions that make up a free foreign exchange market are too delicate and ramified for "planners." The market can be destroyed and depression brought on by foreign exchange restrictions, such as those plaguing Europe in the interwar period, along with tariffs, quotas, and embargoes that made our Smoot-Hawley tariff of minor importance.

Under private enterprise capitalism the customer is king and active competition for his dollar brings about improved products and lower prices. In a socialistic system, you take what the planners, in their inspired idiocy, happen to have in surplus quantities; also, prices tend always to rise, because it is a lamentable fact that costs of socialistic government seem always to go up.

RADIO MUSIC

Chicago, April 15—It is to be regretted that some great person must die so that for a day or two we can hear some of the more beautiful music, such as we have been hearing on the radio, since the passing of the President.

We realize that there must be "commercials" because the companies which pay for the time want the listening public to know what they have to sell. But why must we have the cheaper type of music, both vocal and instrumental, all of the time? Surely I am not the only one who appreciated this music the last few days, am I?

"QUIT FOLLOWING ME"

or, how our Miss Dodd put an end to the train

YESTERDAY—Trains were the fashion—the Godey books said so! But Chicago's ladies were weary of walking on a cloud—of dust, whipped up by trailing trains on Chicago's old board sidewalks. That's when we became a fashion authority! It took just three words from us, "Trains are out!" when our Miss Dodd rushed home with the news from Paris—and every Chicago woman grabbed her scissors and cut and cut! Not that that was Miss Dodd's first trip to Paris—not by a long shot. She started her trips way back before '78, long before anyone else had thought of bringing the latest models directly from the world's fashion center. All Chicago waited her return . . . the end of the bustle caused a furor but the end of the train was a riot—we were a fashion authority!

TODAY—Marshall Field & Company, a great fashion center, brings you authoritative information interpreted by our fashion coordinator. Fifteen shops bring you styles created by the world's great designers (why, there are so many costumes on our Sixth Floor, if you changed five times a day it would take you thirty-five years to wear them all!). Our 28 Shop will dress you from your cosmetics in the morning to your negligee at night. It's a whole world of fashion at Marshall Field & Company.

TOMORROW—holds our promise! We've answered your needs in the '90's—in a difficult today—and we'll try to have the answers in the complicated postwar world ahead! That's our job, our responsibility, our promise—to you who made us what we are today. (Chapter III of the story "Marshall Field & Company and Early Chicago.")

ARGENTINA MAY BRING FALKLAND ROW TO PARLEY

Charges U. S. Handed Isles to British

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON

[This is the second article of a series by a Tribune correspondent who has just returned from a special assignment to Central and South America.]

The dispute of more than a century between Argentina and Great Britain over ownership of the Falkland Islands is expected by Argentines to be laid before the world security conference at San Francisco and perhaps made an issue involving Pan-American solidarity.

At stake is Argentina's friendship toward the United States for it is the contention of that South American republic that this country wrested the disputed islands from her by force and virtually gave them to Great Britain in violation of our own Monroe Doctrine.

Despite Britain's insistence that the islands, which lie off Argentina's Patagonian coast in the South Atlantic, are a crown colony, Argentina always has disputed British possession. All maps publihed in Argentina how the islands as her territory and identify them under the old Spanish name of "Islas Malvinas."

250 Miles from Mainland.

The Falkland group lies about 250 miles east of the South American mainland. There are more than 100 islands, with a total area of about 6,500 square miles. Only two are of considerable size. They have a population of about 2,500. Tho once an important base for antarctic whalers, for many years sheep farming has been the single industry of the inhabitants of these rocky, treeless bits of land.

The islands were sighted by the Englishman explorer Davis in 1592. Two years later Sir Henry Hawkins saw them and called them "Hawkins Maidenland." In 1598 Dutchman Sebald Van Weerdt visited the outlying islands and christened the group "Sebaldines," a term still used on some Dutch maps. Nearly 100 years later, in 1690, Capt. John Strong landed on one of them and named them in honor of Lord Falkland, then treasurer of the British navy.

Almost another 100 years passed before there was further activitiy on the islands. In 1764 the French explorer De Bougainville took possession of them in behalf of his country and established a colony. The next year Commodore John Byron landed, claimed them for George III. of Great Britain, raised a flag, and sailed away. A year later the British sent Capt. McBride in the frigate Jason to form a settlement.

Meanwhile, Spain had protested to France, charging the French were settling territory in a Spanish zone. The French ordered their people to abandon the island and, in 1767, Spain paid France $3,000,000 for the latter's expense in establishing a colony. Spain turned the islands over to Gov. Felipe Ruiz Puente, who was appointed from Buenos Aires, then Spanish property.

Spanish Oust British

In 1768 Spain sent a fleet and ousted the British but permitted them to return in 1771. Here enters a disputed point. Britain contends Spain yielded the islands to her by convention in 1771, but Argentines assert the British were merely allowed to come back and that three years later the English voluntarily abandoned the islands.

Thus, according to the Argentines, the islands still rightfully belonged to Spain when Argentina won her independence in the revolt of 1820. Argentina then sent an expedition to claim the Falklands for her newly established government. In 1826 the Buenos Aires government granted exclusive fishing rights in the Falklands to Louis Vernet, an Englishman living in Argentina. Later Buenos Aires appointed Vernet governor of the islands with orders to enforce control of fishing rights against foreign ships.

During this time the islands served as a base for American and British ships engaged in whaling, seal hunting, and obtaining beef and hides from the cattle herds that had grown from the stock early Spaniards placed there.

American Skippers Seized.

However, American ship captains refused to recognize Vernet's authority. Vernet, in 1831, seized the captains of three American ships for violation of Argentine fishing rights.

Shortly thereafter, according to the Argentines' version, the U. S. S. Lexington appeared at the islands and her commander, Capt. Silas Duncan, charged that Gov. Vernet had engaged in piracy in arresting the American skippers. He demanded Vernet's arrest and surrender for trial. When his demand was refused, Argentines assert, he sailed to the Falklands, destroyed the forts there, arrested six Argentines, and declared the islands free of all government.

Later the United States charge d'affaires informed the Buenos Aires government that the United States recognized the British as owners of the Falklands.

Public Will Get Back Seats at San Francisco Sessions

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 21—The public proceedings of the conference of nations will be conducted in a comparatively cozy atmosphere, an inspection today of the war memorial opera house revealed.

There will be neither the vast audiences nor the noise and color attendant upon such conclaves as the national political conventions. The public almost will be frozen out after the demand for seats by delegates, advisers, consultants, and the press has been taken care of.

The opera house is a handsome new structure, but it seats only 3,250 persons, whereas applications for tickets have passed the 10,000 mark. Its huge stage dwarfs the orchestra seating capacity of 1,000 seats. The remainder of the seats are in a broad dress circle and two towering balconies. It appeared probable that the public may be admitted only to standing room in the rear of the dress circle and balconies.

Delegates and Advisers

In the red plush covered seats on the main floor will be seated the 800 delegates and advisers and 150 consultants. More than 1,000 seats for the press must be provided. They probably will be distributed in the dress circle with perhaps some flanking the stage.

The state department has announced that 1,500 general admission passes will be issued to the public for each session on a first come, first served, basis. On the basis of an expected ten open sessions, this would permit only 15,000 citizens to view the proceedings during the entire conference.

Urge Public Sessions

Meetings of the "commissions" which will study the various problems to be brought up and distribute the work to committees and subcommittees will also be held in public if American proposals are adopted. These will be held in the veterans war memorial building, which adjoins the opera house. Some 10,000 public admission tickets are to be distributed for these meetings.

Neither press nor public is expected to be admitted to the meetings of the committees and subcommittees where the real work of the conference will be transacted.

In the basement of the veterans building, workrooms have been set up for the press. Here, millions of words will be typewritten and transmitted over the wires to the newspapers of the world. One hundred and twenty teletype machines have been connected. Newspaper men are here from London, Australia, Chungking, Rio de Janeiro, and other South American capitals; Paris and Istanbul.

Clinics Set Up

Emergency clinics have been set up in the opera house and veterans building to guard the health of the delegates and their staffs. Army ambulances will be on hand and arrangements have been made with all private hospitals for the immediate care of visitors needing more than emergency treatment.

A huge switchboard has been set up [its call number is International 300] where calls will be handled by 35 picked operators who are conversant with five foreign languages —Spanish, French, Portuguese, Russian, and Chinese. The board's capacity is 700 lines.

Local transportation of delegates and personnel of the parley will be handled by joint army-navy action. Limousines and sedans have been provided for delegates and members of their staffs. Busses for the less important will shuttle between the opera house and downtown hotels. Taxicabs will be at a premium.

REPORT GEORGE SLATED FOR JOB OF MORGENTHAU

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 21—Reports of impending shifts in the cabinet today continued to be heard around the White House with the post of secretary of the treasury under immediate attention.

Sen. W. F. George

On Capitol hill friends of Sen. George [D., Ga.], 67, chairman of the senate finance committee, were confident he will replace Henry Morgenthau Jr., friend and neighbor of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Morgenthau has consistently irritated members of congress by his repeated demands for higher taxes.

George, who was close to President Truman during the latter's service in the senate, played a prominent part in pruning the administration's demand and in bringing out the smaller tax bill which is now in force.

SIWASH UNHAPPY IN RUSTIC ROLE; PINES FOR BEER

Siwash, the beer guzzling amphibious duck who stormed ashore with the marines in the invasion of Tarawa and a few other Jap held atolls in the Pacific, isn't happy in her new role as a rustic duck on a Will county farm.

Her owner, Corp. Francis J. Fagin, 7853 Bennett av., of the marines, who is assigned to the Great Lakes naval training center, learned of the duck's dissatisfaction with life on the farm thru military channels.

For one thing Siwash misses her beer. For another she's now just another duck instead of being the only duck in the marines.

Neighbors around the North Dakota Connelly farm near Wilmington, where Siwash is marooned, say that she has transferred her dislike of Japs to the flock of tame mallards on the farm.

REPUBLIC IS HOPE OF SPANIARDS, OBSERVER SAYS

First Uncensored Article Reviews Politics

[Spain's rigid official government censorship of foreign correspondents' news dispatches, in effect since the Spanish civil war, was abolished last week. Here is the first freely written story by the Associated Press bureau chief in Madrid on Spain's internal political situation.]

BY CHARLES S. FOLTZ

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Gen. Franco's Falange party of Spain has seen the handwriting on the wall, foretelling the party's eventual liquidation.

The great majority of Spaniards want a republican government, preferably a government just left of center, but certainly not a communist republic.

This correspondent, after four years of traveling over Spain, is convinced of the truth of those two statements, which could not be transmitted in news dispatches before official government censorship of news dispatches sent abroad was abolished.

Taking advantage of this new freedom of expression, the following statements and opinions are presented:

The attitude of the Falangists has changed since last September, when a manifesto, presumably circulated by the Falange itself, boasted that the Madrid Falange alone possessed an armed unit of about 10,000 men who could "account for six victims each."

The Falange has changed from the arrogant, anti-allies, pro-axis rule dominant in 1939. The Falangists' worries began when fascism fell in Italy. Now they declare that the Falange is the only part of the state which is "organic democracy." They say it is not totalitarian and that it is in no way similar to Italy's fascist state or Germany's Nazi state.

Battle Cry Called Nonsense

The battle cry "falangist state or communist chaos" is nonsense. Most Spaniards agree that it's nonsense built up by the Falangists to perpetuate their almost complete monopoly of the pork barrel of civil government.

Spaniards generally view with great enthusiasm all indications of liberalization in the present regime. The abolition of censorship was an example. But care must be taken not to accept for accomplished fact the Spanish government's announcement that something will be done. The falange militia still exists despite official public suggestions last year that it would be abolished.

Altho Spaniards generally would prefer a republican government, they would welcome almost any kind of government except falangist or any other type of fascist state.

The worst enemies of republican government are the republican extremists who indicate that all anti-republicans are communists or anarchists who want another complete swing of the governmental pendulum from extreme right to extreme left.

Communists a Minority

Of all the republican parties, the Socialist is probably numerically the strongest, with its general labor union, altho loosely organized because of the present regime's repressive measures.

The Communists are the best organized but are in the minority. The majority of leftists have scorn for the group which, they charge, still takes orders from Moscow. One of the reasons the Falange has been so heartily disliked was the belief that it took its orders from Berlin and Rome.

None of the republican parties has been able, or even has tried, to organize a nation-wide strike or demonstration.

Moscow Radio Tells Terms of Aid Treaty with Warsaw

LONDON, April 22 [Sunday]—(AP)—The Moscow radio today outlined the following main points of the mutual aid treaty which it announced had been signed with the soviet-sponsored Warsaw government of Poland:

1. Russia and Poland will continue jointly with all the Allies the struggle against Germany until final victory. In this struggle the high contracting parties undertake to render each other military and other assistance with all means at their disposal.

2. The two parties will strengthen friendly collaboration and will observe the principles of mutual respect for their independence and sovereignty and of non-interference in the internal affairs of each other.

Aimed at Germany

3. The two parties at the end of the war will adopt measures to remove any threat of a repetition of aggression on the part of Germany or any other state which would unite with Germany, directly or otherwise. For this purpose they will participate in a spirit of the most sincere collaboration in all international activities for the purpose of ensuring the peace and security of the nation. The application of the present treaty will be in harmony with the international principles in the adoption of which they participated.

4. If either party after the war finds herself involved in hostilities with a Germany resuming her aggressive policy, or with some state uniting with Germany directly or otherwise in such a war, the other party will immediately render to the party involved military and other assistance and support by all the means at its disposal.

5. The contracting parties undertake not to conclude without mutual consent an armistice or peace treaty either with the Hitlerite government or with any other authority in Germany which infringes or has infringed the independence, territorial integrity, or security of either party.

6. Each of the two parties undertakes not to conclude an alliance and not to take part in any coalition directed against the other contracting party.

Continued Collaboration

7. After the war the two parties will continue to collaborate in a spirit of friendship with the aim of furthering development and consolidation of economic and cultural ties between the two countries and will help each other in the restoration of their economy.

8. The present treaty comes into force immediately and is subject to ratification within the shortest possible time. The exchange of ratification instruments shall be effected in Warsaw as soon as possible.

9. The treaty shall remain in force for twenty years. If at the end of this twenty year period one of the contracting parties does not declare one year before the expiration of the term its desire to denounce the treaty, it shall remain in force for the next five years and similarly each time until one of the contracting parties, one year before the expiration of the current five year term, gives notice in writing of its intention to discontinue its operation.

Chicago Boy Is Drowned in Arkansas River

John Ferry, 15, of 5718 W. 63d pl., a student at Tilden Technical High school, was drowned yesterday while swimming in the White river near Fayetteville, Ark., where he had gone to visit his grandfather, C. O. Ferry of Greenland, Ark. His body was recovered. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ferry left last night for Greenland. His father is a switchman for the Belt Line railroad.

DIPLOMACY PUTS BRITISH PLANES IN SOUTH AFRICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 21—"Clever British diplomacy" was responsible for South Africa's decision to use Avro York planes on the Capetown-London route, according to the London Daily Mail air correspondent.

Sharp criticism of the British planes, as compared with American types, has been voiced in the South African parliament. It is revealed that under an obscure clause in the British government's white paper on post-war civil aviation the Yorks are being leased, not sold, to South Africa pending production of the Avro Tudor luxury liner, specially designed for long distance work.

Civil Aviation Minister Swinton of Britain announced last month that two Tudor types should begin coming off the production lines in June and November of this year.

'Diplomacy' Wins the Day

The Dailly Mail writer suggests that the Douglas Aircraft corporation sent a show model of its Skymaster to Capetown during the recent civil aviation talks there in the probable hope of persuading the South African government to switch to the American planes.

South Africa might have been tempted to buy the Skymasters in prefernce to the Yorks, which were adapted from the Lancaster bomber as a temporary stopgap but for the loophole in paragraph 42 of the white paper. This paragraph, buried at the tail of the document, announced that the British government was prepared to lease aircraft to commonwealth and foreign operators "in appropriate cases."

Swinton considered South Africa an appropriate case, and his offer to lease the Yorks until Tudors were available was accepted.

"The interesting thing about this transaction," the Daily Mail concludes, "is there seems no reason why it shouldn't be repeated in our negotiations with foreign countries which need transport aircraft."

U. S. Transports Held Better

CAPETOWN, South Africa, April 21 [Reuters]—South African minister of transport, Frederick Sturrock, replied in parliament to the nationalist opposition's request that America's best transport planes be tested by bringing them to South Africa.

"I agree that the Americans have a great advantage over Britain in transport planes," Sturrock said, "but not in fighting planes. We owe so much to Britain that I am not prepared to let that factor weigh too far with me."

Comparisons unfavorable to the British Avro York against the American Douglas Skymaster were drawn by the opposition. Francois Eramus, the nationalist secretary, said Prime Minister Churchill never used an Avro York, which, he said, did not comply with American civil aviation safety requirements. The Yalta conference officials who crashed on their way to the Crimea conference flew in an Avro York, Erasmus added.

C. H. HARRISON, 85 TOMORROW, LOOKS AT PAST

In 1907 Transit Problem Was Marked Solved

BY JAMES DOHERTY

Recollections yesterday by Carter H. Harrison, who will be 85 years old tomorrow and who was elected mayor of Chicago five times, included the "final settlement" of the traction problem back in 1907. He offered this advice: If Chicago is to have a form of municipal ownership of its transportation system, the right kind of men should be in charge and they shouldn't be careless about spending the people's money.

Carter H. Harrison.

Former Mayor Harrison sat in his son's office in the Rookery building, Adams and La Salle sts., as he granted a birthday interview. He recalled that in 1879, when he was 19, his father, Carter H., the elder, was elected to his first term as mayor of Chicago, and he, young Carter, attended his first council meetings.

Council Met at Site

"The council met right on this very site," he recalled. "The city rented the second floor of the old ramshackle building that stood here and was called the Rookery, from which the present building took its name. Later my father built the city hall at Randolph and La Salle sts. that stood there before the present structure.

"I remember there was a saloon over on that corner [the site of the present Field building] and it was kind of a disreputable place," said the man who was elected to two year terms as mayor in 1897, 1899, 1901, and 1903, and a four year term in 1911. "I drove my father to council meetings in our buggy and hitched old Kate to a post in front of that saloon and sat looking out the windows in this direction during the council meetings."

He wasn't mayor when "everybody hailed the final settlement of the traction problem back in 1907." He wasn't a municipal ownership advocate.

Tendency to Raise Pay

"It may be all right if there is some kind of a check on those in charge in the matter of raising everybody's pay," Harrison said. "There is a tendency of men granting salary raises and making themselves stronger politically by spending another man's money.

"If the transportation company is run as a business venture, it may work, but it can't if it submits to outside influences. If the right kind of men are put on the board, men of courage, they can get by. Otherwise it is bound to be a hopeless failure."

The former mayor, who was born at Harrison and Clark sts., and who told of the city's growth in his two books, "Stormy Years" and "Growing Up with Chicago," said the city took over a profitable garbage reduction plant in his last term as mayor. For a time it was a good municipal institution but when the aldermen began giving pay raises indiscriminately it became a losing proposition and had to be abandoned, he said, by way of stressing his point.

Altho he spent his boyhood in Germany, the ex-mayor didn't want to talk about the Germany of today. He preferred to talk about his old cronies, including Oscar Mayer, James Garvey of "the old 25th," Billy Sexton, Maj. Edgar B. Tolman, Ald. James Bowler, John Richert, James Matthews "in South Chicago."

Some of them are arranging a birthday luncheon for him in the Heidelberg restaurant tomorrow noon.

He really quit politics when he left the mayor's office in 1915, Harrison said. He was "out of politics" during the 12 years ending last Dec. 31, when he was collector of internal revenue in this district.

CITES FIGURES TO SHOW WAR WEDDINGS LAST

BY RAY QUISNO

Do a majority of war time marriages end in speedy divorce?

A study of the factors involved in 1,000 divorce cases heard in Superior court by Judges John A. Sbarbaro and Joseph Sabath since the first of the year discloses that only 60 of the divorces, or six per cent, were granted in cases of couples married less than a year.

Judge Sbarbaro, who with his associate, Judge Sabath, heard more than 10,000 divorce cases last year, asserts these figures refute a popular theory that a majority of war marriages are hastily arranged and as lightly and speedily terminated.

44 Per Cent Wed 10 Years

The survey shows that 262, or 26.2 per cent, of the 1,000 divorces were for marriages lasting one to five years; 238, or 23.8 per cent for marriages lasting five to 10 years; 264, or 26.4 per cent for marriages 10 to 20 years, and 176, or 17.6 per cent, for marriages of 20 years of more.

Judge Sbarbaro expressed surprise at the figures which showed that 44 per cent of the divorces were in cases of marriages lasting 10 years or longer.

"A knowledge of the vital factors of each case would be necessary to give an over-all explanation for the breakup of such marriages," Judge Sbarbaro said.

Sees Three Basic Causes

"But it is my opinion that the basic reasons are those responsible for nearly all divorces, namely, selfishness, intolerance, and a lack of understanding of the responsibilities each individual owes society and its institution of marriage."

The principal grounds for divorce as given in the 1,000 cases reviewed were desertion, 572 cases; cruelty, 360; habitual drunkenness, 40; adultery, 20, and the five other grounds, eight. The percentages are respectively, 57.2, 36, 4, 2, and 0.8.

Strikers at Gun Plant Call Parley for Monday

One hundred and fifty men employed in the welding and forge departments of the Pettibone-Mulliken corporation plant at 4710 Division st., on strike since Friday midnight, will meet at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon at National hall, 1643 N. Cicero av., to discuss the strike action, John Nechistak, local president, announced yesterday. The men are members of the International Brotherhood of Drop Forgers, Blacksmiths and Helpers' union [AFL], who said they were on strike because of an "accumulation of grievances." The plant is engaged in the production of 155 millimeter and 8 inch gun carriages.

A 'LADY' RESISTS CURFEW; CONKS TAVERN OWNER

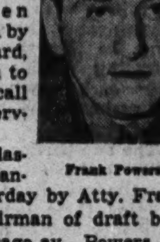
Frank Hayes, 55, of 1029 N. Harlem av., Oak Park, held a throbbing head yesterday but refused to identify the girl who slugged him with an empty coke bottle Friday night when she resisted his efforts to close his tavern at midnight.

Hayes, who operates the Hayes' barbeque at Harlem and North avs., Elmwood Park, a tavern and restaurant, shooed his patrons out as the clock neared the curfew time. All but one quietly left the tavern. The one customer argued about leaving, then picked up the coke bottle and smashed Hayes on the head.

Oak Park police rushed Hayes to the Oak Park hospital, where attendants took nine stitches in his head. Questioned yesterday by police, Hayes refused to divulge his assailant's identity, but admitted it was a woman.

STRIKE LEADER, DEFIER OF WLB, MOVED INTO 1-A

Frank Powers, 31, head of the independent United Stove Workers of America union, which last month struck for six days at the Cribben and Sexton company, a war plant, has been reclassified 1-A by his draft board, subjecting him to an immediate call for military service.



Frank Powers

Powers' reclassification was announced yesterday by Atty. Francis D. Scully, chairman of draft board 54 at 5200 Chicago av. Powers, who is married and has three children, previously was 2-A [essential worker] in the draft. He resides at 905 N. Waller av.

A war labor board order to call off the strike was defied by Powers, who said: "The more I can do to hurt management, the better." This prompted Scully to say he wanted to see "what kind of a man would call workers out of a plant producing urgently needed armaments."

BILLS PROVIDE 2 PENSIONS FOR 18 LEGISLATORS

Civic Federation Leader Sounds Warning

Fourteen Democratic state representatives and four state senators from Cook county will be eligible on two pension rolls—some of them on three—if pending legislation in the state legislature at Springfield is enacted into law.

No provision in the pending bills calling for pensioning of legislative members would prevent them from drawing additional pensions, after qualifying, because of their service in county and court postions they also hold.

A warning against the deluge of pension bills now in various stages of enactment in the two branches of the general assembly was issued by Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation, who asked that members "pause and consider the public interest."

Cites Drop in Chicago Levy

"These costs will have to be met increasingly by men now fighting for their country, who represented one-fourth of the employed labor force in 1939—a typical year," Sutherland said. He cited the refusal of the Chicago city council to make the full levy for 1944 and 1945 for the Chicago police and Chicago Firemen's annuity and benefit funds as the result of ill-advised pension legislation.

"Taxes extended for all 13 Chicago pension funds for 1944 totaled $13,669,642," Sutherland said. "And yet, actually, the Chicago policemen's fund was insolvent by over 68 million dollars, the Municipal employes' fund by over 42 million dollars, and the other funds, except the park employes' fund, were insolvent by varying amounts."

The state senate already has passed a bill providing pensions for members of the legislature after 12 years of service and ranging up to 50 per cent of final salary. A similar bill, providing pensions ranging from 30 to 50 per cent of final salary, has been approved by the house insurance committee and has been referred to the appropriations committee.

City and Court Pensions

Another senate bill amends the judges retirement act to include in its pension benefits bailiffs and clerks of courts of record in Cook county, who already are covered by Municipal court and county pension funds. Another senate bill, still in committee, would provide pensions up to 50 per cent of final salary for elected and appointed city of Chicago officials after 12 years of service.

Still another pension bill, already passed by the house, has an unobtrusive phrase that would blanket the Cook county commissioners and all other county officials under the county employes' pension act. An amendment is being offered in the senate to correct this provision.

Other pending bills would amend pension laws to include temporary Chicago municipal employes, increase maximum salary limits on contributions of park and county employes and increase the Chicago laborers' fund tax.

Even downstate pension funds are affected. A senate bill now in the house would liberalize the Peoria policemen's fund. A house bill increases tax rates for firemen's pension funds in cities from 5,000 to 100,000 population and another bill would permit withdrawals from the University of Illinois retirement fund by those with annuities of less than $10 a month.

Sues for Divorce

JENNIFER JONES

Hollywood, Cal., April 21 (AP)—Jennifer Jones, brunette actress who won a film Oscar in 1943, soon will sue Actor Robert Walker for divorce on ground of mental cruelty, her attorney, Frank Belcher, has announced. The couple was married in her home town, Tulsa, Okla., in 1939 and separated in November, 1943. The attorney said the couple's children, Robert Jr., 5, and Michael, 4, will reside with their mother.

FRIML OPERETTA DELIGHTS LARGE RADIO AUDIENCE

Air Theater Presents 'Three Musketeers'

BY EDWARD BARRY

To the delight of a large audience in Medinah temple and a much larger one made up of W-G-N and Mutual listeners, the Chicago Theater of the Air last night re-created a diverting world in which love, intrigue, and sword play filled nearly everybody's waking hours.

The piece was Friml's "Three Musketeers." The France it depicted never had any historical existence, and the men and women who swept across its stage were more figments of the imagination than figures of flesh and blood. Yet it appealed strongly to the child who continues to live in the mind of every healthy adult and who occasionally demands an hour in a world like this as a change from the workaday reality.

Three Sing Solo Parts

A singing cast consisting of Marion Claire, Igor Gorin, and Earle Wilkie sang the important solo parts. The W-G-N chorus and orchestra assisted and Henry Weber conducted.

Miss Claire and Gorin, as Constance and D'Artagnan, respectively, effectively presented the love music which softens the boisterous, swashbuckling character of the operetta. They were roundly applauded.

Wilkie, a regular singer of bit parts on these programs, proved in the ditty called "Colonel and Major" that he could handle a major assignment competently. His performance had imagination and humor.

Speaking Cast Employed

To keep the thread of the story a speaking as well as a singing cast was required. Sondra Gair, Laurette Fillbrandt, Henrietta Tedro, William Everett, John Barclay, Forrest Lewis, and other actors helped make the tale vivid as well as comprehensible. Miss Tedro, a long-time favorite in radio, received a huge ovation when she was introduced.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, spoke from New York, and his talk was loudspeakered thru Medinah temple as well as broadcast. Text of his speech will be found on the editorial page.

2 LIQUOR FIRMS LOSE LICENSES IN LABEL MISUSE

Chairman Charles J. Fleck, of the Illinois Liquor Control commission yesterday ordered revocation of all Illinois state licences held by the Sunrise Distributing Company and the Armor Distilled Products company, both of 215 N. Aberdeen st. The two companies, owned by Jerome Natenberg, Stella Harris, Gussie Natenberg, and Jack Harris, are under investigation by federal authorities for alleged OPA violations and possible black market operations. Revocations were based on testimony that the two companies handled a product known as "Old Ark" that was sold extensively before label approval had been sought and after approval had been denied.

W. C. T. U. LEADER ASSAILS ARMY AS 'BOOTLEGGER'

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, president of the National Women's Christian Temperance union, yesterday charged the war department with being "the world's greatest bootlegger." She spoke before a seminar of national and state officers of the union.

The sale of beer in army canteens or post exchanges is a violation of the army canteen law enacted by congress during the McKinley administration and never repealed, Mrs. Colvin declared. She asserted that the law does not, nor does any other federal law, permit sale on army posts of 3.2 per cent beer, "which is really 4 per cent by volume and is not only an intoxicant in sufficient quantity, but is an 'appetizer' for 'something stronger' to tens of thousands of young men who were abstainers in civilian life."

The making of beer in Europe for American troops was attacked by Mrs. Colvin, on the ground that G. I.s in battle areas need "clear heads and thinking."

VISITING CLUB TO GET $15,000 IN ALL-AMERICA

New League Adopts Constitution

BY EDWARD PRELL

The All-America conference had made more yardage toward the goal—the goal of operation—after winding up their fourth meeting last night with the ratification and signing of a constitution and by-laws. Thus they have their governing yardstick, a concise document in which relations between players and their gridiron employers were clearly defined in an effort to insure the athletes' fair treatment.

Conference officials and club owners were concerned primarily with their operational setup. It was a big day for the legal minds of the group. Four attorneys had a hand in setting down the phraseology which governs the league's mode of conduct.

Approve $15,000 Guarantee

Most interesting development was the announcement that visiting teams will be guaranteed $15,000 for each conference appearance. This was unanimously approved by representatives of the seven clubs. At an earlier meeting it had been tentatively agreed that the traveling guarantee would be $12,500. In addition, the visiting team will have the privilege of receiving 40 per cent of the receipts at each game after taxes and stadium rental are deducted.

The coast-to-coast setup of the All-America, entailing long trips, was the prime reason behind the decision to increase the guarantee. With $15,000 assured, it was believed this would be adequate to cover the traveling team's expenses on transcontinental jaunts.

The National Football league operates with a $10,000 guarantee and a 40 per cent rider.

Defer Action on Kansas City

Christy Walsh, vice president of the All-America, who was in charge of the meeting, reported that a decision was reserved on Kansas City's application to become the eighth member of the conference. He explained that there is uncertainty that Kansas City would have an adequate playing site. Ruppert stadium, home of the Kansas City Blues of the American association, has a 21,000 capacity. Dr. D. M. Nigro, the Kansas City representative, said a municipal stadium to seat 40,000 is being planned.

The conference has expressed a desire to operate with eight teams, but it was indicated during the meeting that there is a possibility of 10.

Walsh had no announcement to make concerning the All-America's overtures to the National Football league for a friendly meeting "based on a spirit of conciliation and sportsmanship" to establish agreements for each to operate without conflict on the same general structure. The conference has appointed two of its members, John L. Keeshin, owner of the Chicago entry, and Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, who will be general manager and coach of Cleveland, to confer on this subject with Elmer Layden, National league president.

Lt. Comdr. Meagher Arrives

Attendance at the meeting was swelled yesterday with the arrival of Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher from Iowa Pre-Flight school. He was the fifth coach on the premises. Others included Lt. Comdr. Mal Stevens, part owner and coach of the New York entry; Lawrence [Buck] Shaw, coach at San Francisco; Sam Cordovano, who will be in charge of the Buffalo eleven, and Lt. Brown of Cleveland.

The Chicago coach, Lt. Col. Dick Hanley is with the marines in the Pacific. The seventh member of the league, Los Angeles, has not yet signed a coach, tho Walsh, co-owner of the franchise in that city, said he hopes to do so in the near future.

HAGG WILL RUN MILE HANDICAP IN PENN RELAYS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21 (AP)—The Swedish track star, Gunder Hagg will compete in the 51st annual Penn relays April 27 and 28, H. Jamison Swarts, director of the University of Pennsylvania Relay carnival, announced today.

Hagg, holder of five world records, decided to compete in a special one mile handicap race against the best possible field the relays can muster, while awaiting transportation back to Sweden.

This will mark Hagg's first outdoor appearance since his arrival in the United States early this year.

In indoor meets last winter he defeated Forest Efaw of Bainbridge naval training station after losing to Efaw earlier. Efaw is expected to compete against Hagg in the carnival, Swarts said.

This will be Hagg's last appearance in the United States during his present stay, he said.

Wisconsin Golfers Beat Lawrence, 13½ to 4½

Appleton, Wis., April 21 [Special]—University of Wisconsin golfers beat Lawrence college, 13½ to 4½, here today. Paul Reichardt, Milwaukee of Lawrence, was medalist for the meet with 77. Rex Cappell of Wisconsin turned in the second low, 79.

Chicago Site of N. C. A. A. News Office

Establishment of a central news office for intercollegiate athletics practically became a certainty yesterday when the executive committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association authorized Dr. Wilbur Smith of Tulane, N. C. A. A. president, to appoint a committee to consider and report on the proposition originally proposed by a committee of the American Football Coaches' association.

The football coaches urged inclusion of all intercollegiate sports, altho the idea of a news bureau had originated with their own association, and for this reason submitted a proposition they had worked on for more than a year to the N. C. A. A. executive committee.

Would Center in Chicago

Dr. Smith pointed out that the central news bureau would be for "national interpretation and dissemination of the news of intercollegiate athletics." The organization will be an adjunct of the Chicago office of the secretary-treasurer of the N. C. A. A., K. L. Wilson, who also is commissioner of athletics for the Western conference.

Members of the committee appointed by Dr. Smith are Dr. Karl Lieb, Iowa; Dr. Leroy Mercer, Pennsylvania, and Wilson as N. C. A. A. representatives; Charles Bachman, Michigan State, and Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern, representing the coaches 'association, and W. Henry Johnston of Indiana university, vice president of the American College Publicity association.

N. C. A. A. in Directing Role

"The news bureau, which would centralize the dissemination of news of all phases of the nation's intercollegiate athletic program, would function under the direction of and in accordance with the policies outlined by a standing committee of the N. C. A. A. appointed annually at the convention of the association," Dr. Smith said in yesterday's announcement.

Ray Morrison, Temple university coach and president of the American Football Coaches' association; W. A. Alexander, Georgia Tech; Horance Renegar, Tulane, and Walter Paulison, Northwestern, were other members of the group in conference with the N. C. A. A. executive committee.

MICHIGAN NINE BEATS ILLINOIS, 1-0; 2D IN ROW

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 21 [Special]—Michigan's baseball team scored a 1 to 0 victory over Illinois this afternoon but lost its star left handed pitcher, Bliss [Bo] Bowman, who pulled a shoulder muscle and may be out for three weeks. Michigan shut out the Illini, 3 to 0 yesterday.

Bowman gained credit for the victory altho he left the game with two out in the seventh inning. Ray Louthen, who beat Illinois yesterday

Michigan scored its run in the fifth when Tom Rosema, first baseman, beat out a bunt single, advanced on a sacrifice, and Ecklund's wild throw to second, and came in on Bob Stevenson's hit to right center.

Records Fall as Marquette Wins in Track

Milwaukee, Wis., April 21 [Special]—Marquette university's track team defeated the University of Wisconsin, 67½ to 63½, in a dual meet today.

New meet records were established in the high jump and in the 220 yard dash on a straightaway. Ken Wiesner of Marquette cleared 6 feet 6¾ inches to win the high jump and thus better his own mark of 6 feet 4⅞ inches set last year.

The other new record was hung up by Charles Beaudry, Marquette, with a 21.9 second 220 yard dash.

Beaudry was a triple winner, also taking the 110 yard dash and the broad jump. Summaries:

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Devoe, Wisconsin; Frederick, Wisconsin, second. Johann, Wisconsin, third. Time, 4:46.7.

440 YARD RUN—Won by Chandler, Wisconsin; Kauth, Marquette, second; Duncan, Marquette, third. Time, :53.

110 YARD DASH—Won by Beaudry, Marquette; Wallace, Marquette, second; Jeffay, Wisconsin, third. Time, :10.9.

SHOTPUT—Won by Fuchs, Wisconsin; Richardson, Marquette, second; Pittleman, Wisconsin, third. Distance, 45 feet 7 inches.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Archer, Wisconsin; Sharpe, Marquette, second; Gantz, Marquette, third. Time, :16.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Wiesner, Marquette; Niemuth, Wisconsin, second; Boyle, Marquette, and Thompson, Wisconsin, tied for third. Height, 6 feet 6¾ inches. [New meet record; old record 6 feet 4⅞ inches, set by Wiesner, 1944.]

880 YARD RUN—Won by Zobel, Wisconsin; Devoe, Wisconsin, second; Quinsey, Marquette, third. Time, 2:4.5.

220 YARD DASH—Won by Beaudry, Marquette; Wallace, Marquette, second; Jeffay, Wisconsin, third. Time, :21.9. [New meet straightaway record; old record, :23.1, set by Paukner, Wisconsin, 1943; equals meet record on curve, set by Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette, 1932.]

POLE VAULT—Won by Baerwald, Marquette; Levine, Wisconsin, second; Wick, Wisconsin, third. Height, 11 feet 9 inches.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by McCarthy, Marquette; Lawson, Wisconsin, second; Webster, Wisconsin, third. Time, 9:57.2.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Wiesner, Marquette; McManis, Wisconsin, second; Baerwald, Marquette, third. Distance, 159 feet 7 inches.

WINGS EVEN CUP SERIES; WIN IN OVERTIME, 1 TO 0

TORONTO, Ont., April 21 (AP)—Blond Eddie Bruneteau's 12 foot drive from right wing at 14:15 of the first overtime period tonight gave the Detroit Red Wings a 1 to 0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs to send the Stanley cup final hockey series into a seventh game in Detroit tomorrow night. The eight point series now is tied 3-3 in games, 6-6 on points.

The suddenness of the ending surprised the 13,953 spectators in Maple Leaf gardens. The Leafs had stopped an apparently harmless Detroit rush in their own zone when the puck struck the backboards and bounced out to Bruneteau, who was standing alone in front of Goalie Frank McCool.

Leafs Dominate Play

Firing from a slight angle, the younger member of the Bruneteau family combination picked the far corner to end the sudden-death contest.

Before that stroke of hockey fortune, the Leafs had dominated play in a game that provided only spasmodic fireworks. Five minutes before Bruneteau's goal, Wally Stanowski circled the Detroit cage on a brilliant play and whistled a backhander which Goalie Harry Lumley just managed to deflect.

Dave [Sweeney] Schriner, veteran Leaf wing, missed two close range opportunities in the closing seconds of regulation time when he gained possession in front of Lumley. The Wings, depending principally on one or two man rushes from a tight defensive shell, seldom penetrated into the Leaf zone.

Wings Draw Two Penalties

The Wings drew two of the three penalties. Mud Bruneteau and Bill Quackenbush received the Detroit sentences while Babe Pratt took Toronto's only penalty.

If the seventh game in Detroit tomorrow night ends in a tie, the team will play the eighth game in Detroit. Score:

Senators Deal Yankees First Defeat, 2 to 1

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—The New York Yankees' four game winning streak came to an end today when they lost to the Washington Senators in a 2 to 1 pitching duel between Rodger Wolff and Ernie Bonham.

Each team made four hits, but the Senators bunched three of them in the first inning for all their runs. Harlond Clift accounted for both Senator runs when he singled in George Case and George Myatt, both of whom had hit safely.

The Yankees' run came in the third a walk to Bud Metheny, a passed ball, and a towering triple by Russ Derry. They missed a grand opportunity to tie the score when Joe Buzas doubled in the seventh with one out, but was out trying to stretch the blow. Don Savage followed with a single, but the inning ended when Bill Drescher flied out.

Haynes, Grove to Pitch for South Siders

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Owing to the weather, over which nobody seems to have any control, the White Sox kept their 1.000 per cent mark, as well as themselves, out of public view yesterday.

The St. Louis Browns, who own a title hanging over from last season but can't match the current lofty position of James Dykes' boys also remained in steam heated seclusion, perfectly happy about not having to work in 40 degree temperature and also about what the rest meant to Vern Stephens, their important cripple.

Stephens, according to Boss Luke Sewell, will be back at his regular shortstop job today in the double header in which the Sox will parade Joe Haynes and Orval Grove and the champions Sig Jakucki and Jack Kramer. The latter pair accounted for 30 of the Browns' successes last season.

It's OK with Jim

Manager Dykes, for the first time in years, finds himself in the position of not being able to do what he wishes with his baseball ensemble. However, he won't object if the peculiar situation continues. He wants to install Major Kerby Farrell, recently purchased from Indianapolis, at first base, but is saturated with that old superstition about tinkering with a winning combination. Bill Nagel, who has bee playing first, hasn't hit the ball and his hitting was the real reason for giving him the call over Joe Orengo.

Yesterday's postponement moved Haynes into one of today's starting roles and removed Thornton Lee, but the big southpaw will be heard from again in a few days. He'll be pretty well rested up by Tuesday or Wednesday when the Tigers are at Comiskey park.

Dietrich's Pain Disappears

Bill Dietrich also is figured on as a starter against the Tigers. Bill's right elbow developed a kink after his six-inning joust with the Indians last Thursday and he professed to be worried over the possibilities of a bone chip. The soreness had vanished yesterday so he is included in the Dykes' pitching plans for the next several days.

While Stephens, whose right thumb was injured a few days back will be in action this afternoon there isn't much chance that the customers will see Pete Gray, the Browns' one-armed fly chaser. He bruised his shoulder making a diving catch and the spot was still giving him trouble yesterday.

After finishing here with the Tigers Thursday, the Sox will take to the road for a short stretch. They are scheduled for a single game on Saturday and a double header Sunday next week-end in St. Louis. From there they'll move to Detroit for games May 1, 2, and 3. They'll be back in Comiskey park May 4 for a long stay that will include a series with the Indians, as well as the four eastern teams.

BY EDWARD BURNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 21—Paul Derringer won his second victory of the year, also the Cubs' second, this afternoon, attaining a 4 to 3 decision in which the big thrill of the day was delayed until a freakish Pirate ninth, in which the Cubs had to work like everything to avert a tie or worse.

Before we tell you how the Cubs accrued their 4 runs and 13 hits, their tallest total of the season, we'd like to tell you about what the Cubs went thru in the ninth before icing the victory.

Nicholson Balks Tying Run

Bill Salkeld, first up, lined one off the right field wall which was held to a single by Bill Nicholson's agile work. Rip Sewell was sent to first to run for Salkeld and Bill Rodgers was sent up to bat for Nick Strincevich, second Pirate pitcher. Expecting a bunt, the Cub infield ran in with the first pitch to Rodgers and the latter popped a fly that plunked on the infield grass but back of the huddle of players in front of the plate. So it was a hit and Sewell was on second and Rodgers on first, with none out. Frankie Zak bunted to Derringer and Paul threw to Stan Hack in time to force Sewell at third. Johnny Barrett lined a single to right and Rodgers tried to get home with the tying run. He was out at the plate, Nicholson to Mickey Livingston. Jim Russell then sent a grounder straight at second base. Roy Hughes ran over, picked up the ball and stepped on the bag, forcing Barrett and ending the game.

The Cubs, of course, were eager for victory in the normal course of events. Added to this urge was the memory they won the opener last year, then lost 13 straight. They won the opener this year, then lost two straight. Today's victory thus blotted out a chance for an encore of last year's horrible state of affairs.

Cubs Play Errorless Ball

The Cubs made only four hits to win for Derringer last Tuesday. They had made 10 today off Preacher Elwin Roe, who beat them four times last season, before Bill Nicholson drove home Phil Cavarretta in the seventh with what proved to be the winning run. With two out in the seventh, Cavarretta singled and rode home on Nick's double to set the score at its final ratio.

The Cubs for the third time in four games, played errorless and at times brilliant defensive ball. The Pirates made three errors, but oddly enough, none of the mishaps contributed anything to the production of a Chicago run.

The first inning today had points of similarity with yesterday's opening inning in that Hack, first batsman of the day, scored on a single by Cavarretta. Today Stan opened the contest with a triple to the 406 foot marker in left center, stayed on third while Hughes tapped to Roe, then scored on Cavarretta's single to left. Cavarretta was forced by Nicholson and Eddie Sauer bounced to Bob Elliott.

Pirates Score Two in First

In their end of the first inning the Pirates made as many runs after two were out as the Cardinals were able to negotiate off Derringer in the entire season opener in Chicago. Zak, first up for the Pirates, fouled to Livingston but Barrett singled to right. Russell popped to Hack, then Barrett stole second and scored on Elliott's single to left. Elliott took second on Sauer's ill advised throw to the plate and scored on O'Brien's single to center. Cavarretta made a nice stop and toss to Derringer to retire Dahlgren.

Things were rather quiet after the first inning until two were out in the third. Then Elliott tripled to right center and again scored on a single by O'Brien. The latter was caught trying to steal second base.

At the start of the fourth Nicholson dribbled a single in front of the

ARMY SURGEON SAVES ARM OF HANDBALL STAR

Victim of Fire and Eleven Operations Seeks Title

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Among the original 64 contestants in the National A. A. U. Senior handball tournament which goes into its second day's schedule this afternoon, is a very rugged individual named Anthony Gentile of Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentile accompanied the victorious section of the field into the second round by defeating Robert Yodice of Cleveland, 7-21, 21-9, 21-6 in the first round of play yesterday.

Gentile, an American of Italian parentage, recently discharged from the navy, is handball's parallel to Kansas' great track star, Glenn Cunningham, who overcame apparently insurmountable physical obstacles to become one of the greatest milers of all time.

Cunningham in 1917, when 8 years old, suffered burns on his legs from a gasoline fire that prompted his doctor to say he never would be able to walk again.

Undergoes 10 Operations

Gentile, who is 36, the same age as Cunningham, met with his accident just a year later. He was 9 years old and was building a pushmobile in the basement of his home. He had lighted a large candle, stuck it in its own wax on the floor, and then bent over his work. Before he realized it his shirt was afire, the blaze centered on his right armpit. It was several minutes before he could reach his mother, who smothered the flames and got him into a hospital.

The youngster spent 13 months in a ward bed, underwent 10 operations after gangrene had set in. Finally the surgeon told his father he'd have to amputate the arm. An army surgeon, just returned from overseas duty, asked if he might try another operation. He did and a month later little Tony was getting the healing effects of the sun and salt water at Atlantic City.

Then He Tries Handball

He still had his arm, but it wasn't much good to him. He couldn't participate in sports. He couldn't get in on the good old neighborhood fights. In fact, he had no fun at all and he just gave up—until he had grown a bit older. Then, during the depression years, he tried swimming and boxing, but they didn't help. At last some one suggested handball.

That did it. It took a long time, but eventually he regained the use of his right arm with daily sessions in the Central Y M. C. A. in Philadelphia.

Now Gentile is in Chicago as the Middle Atlantic champion in both singles and doubles. Yesterday's results:

FIRST ROUND

Frank Boyle, New York, won by default from William Ranft, Los Angeles.
Paul Strobbe, Detroit, beat Morrie Meyer, Milwaukee, 21-3, 21-19.
Erskin Good, Detroit, beat Anthony Palmieri, Cleveland, 21-17, 18-21, 21-15.
Paul Merlo, Detroit, beat Les Friedman, Chicago, 21-8, 21-13.
Anthony Gentile, Philadelphia, beat Robert Yodice, Cleveland, 7-21, 21-19, 21-6.
Lt. Paul Turner, U. S. A. A. F., beat Max Thomas, Detroit, 21-6, 21-2.

Sailor Track Team Beats Purdue, 67-54

Lafayette, Ind., April 21 [Special]—Strength in the pole vault, mile and two mile runs enabled Great Lakes to defeat Purdue, 67 to 54, in a dual track meet this afternoon.

The Bluejackets were led by Les Eisenhart, veteran middle distance star, who won both the half mile and mile runs with comparative ease and tied for high point honors with Ben Harvery, Boilermaker sprinter, who won both dashes.

Bothe teams competed without the services of their quarter mile specialists. Wallace Desterhaft, for Purdue, and Grover Klemmer, of Great Lakes, who were kept idle because of leg injuries.

Great Lakes won seven first places, while Purdue was winning six and the one mile relay, but a slam for the Bluejackets in the pole vault, coupled with first and second in the one mile and two mile accounted for the Sailor triumph.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Eisenhart, Great Lakes; Timmerhaus, Great Lakes, second; Hawk, Purdue, third. Time, 4:30.4.

440 YARD DASH—Won by Weber, Purdue; Cara, Great Lakes, second; Nielsen, Purdue, third. Time, :50.3.

100 YARD DASH—Won by Harvey, Purdue; Place, Great Lakes, second; Dimancheff, Purdue, third. Time, :10.3.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Merchant, Great Lakes; Foster, Purdue, second. Third place disqualified. Time, :16.7.

880 YARD RUN—Won by Eisenhart, Great Lakes; Goeb, Purdue, second; Kellar, Great Lakes, third. Time, 2:00.

220 YARD DASH—Won by Harvey, Purdue; Place, Great Lakes, second; Dimancheff, Purdue, third. Time, :23.3.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Kammer, Great Lakes; Timmerhaus, Great Lakes, second; Davis, Purdue, third. Time, 10:12.

220 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Parker, Great Lakes; Foster, Purdue, second; Merchant, Great Lakes, third. Time, :26.9.

ONE MILE RELAY—Won by Purdue [Major, Nielsen, Harvey, Weber]; Great Lakes, second. Time, 3:29.2.

SHOTPUT—Won by Schatz, Purdue; Churches, Great Lakes, second; Rarig, Purdue, third. Distance, 37 feet 8 inches.

DISCUS THROW—Won by Haas, Purdue; Churches, Great Lakes, second; Klemmer, Great Lakes, third. Distance, 115 feet 5¼ inches.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Kilpatrick, Purdue; Heintzman, Great Lakes, second; Miller, Purdue, and Gullett, Great Lakes, tied for third. Height, 6 feet 1⅝ inches.

POLE VAULT — Won by Churches, Great Lakes; Bruney and Gillett, Great Lakes, tied for second. Height, 11 feet.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Heintzman, Great Lakes; Masterson, Purdue, second; Churches, Great Lakes, and Kilpatrick, Purdue, tied for third. Distance, 20 feet 9 inches.

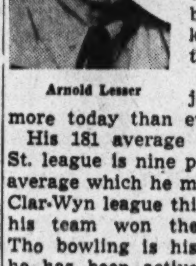
The Home Front

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

ARNOLD H. [LES] LESSER, who this year won the individual championship in the Division St. Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league for the second straight season, is an example of the theory that practice makes perfect. Les, factory manager for the Hammond Instrument company, on whose team he bowls, has been knocking over the pins for 30 years and enjoys the sport more today than ever before.



Arnold Lesser

His 181 average in the Division St. league is nine pins short of the average which he maintained in the Clar-Wyn league this year, in which his team won the championship. Tho bowling is his favorite sport, he has been active in others too, having managed Hammond Instrument softball teams which have won several championships at Hamlin park.

The Division St. Industrial bowlers completed their schedule Tuesday night, with the Thordarson Flashtrons winning the team title for the second straight year and Gus A. Gitzke of Churchill Cabinet taking the night's special sweepstakes. The season standings:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Thordarson Flashtrons	63	27	Int. Ptg. Ink	45	45
Ekco Products	54	36	Milled Scr. Pro	44	46

The individual leaders and their season averages:

Arnold H. Lesser, Hammond Instrument, 181; John Shall, Guyer Metal, 175; John Schmidt, International Printing Ink, 175; Frank Ryba, Flashtrons, 175; Fred Schans, Rauland, 175; Joe Dubiel, Milwaukee Av. Bank, 174; Richard Helmer, Flashtrons, 172; Art Naskrent, Ekco, 171; Nick Notardonato, Milled Screw Products, 169; Jim Miles, Chicago Rawhide, 169.

Gahl, Wright Share Austin Industrial Bowling Honors

William Gahl of Templeton, Kenly & Co., and Walter H. Wright of Revere Copper & Brass were the top men for the season in the Austin Industrial Bowling league, sponsored by the Austin Executives club, each having an average of 176. The league finished its season Thursday with its annual sweepstakes. Others in the top 10 for the regular season:

Wally Trapp, Pheoll Mfg. Co., 175; R. Murray, Polhemus Co., 175; Paul Whittenburg, Polhemus Co., 175; Walter Hallberg, International Harvester, 174; H. C. Landsell, Hubbard & Co., 172; Stanley Miezio, International Harvester, 171; Thomas Tomchek, Harrington & King, 171; John Sylvester, Revere, 170, and Harold Fandorf, Hubbard & Co., 170.

The team standings at the close of the schedule:

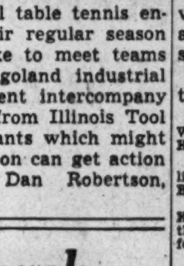
Telephone Girls to Hold Volleyball Tourney Thursday

Another division of the Illinois Bell recreation program will reach its climax Thursday night when finals of the company's girls' volley ball tournament will be played in the University of Chicago fieldhouse, 56th st. and University av. The Illinois Bell setup is the largest girls' volley ball league in the country, 34 teams having played during the winter.

The feature game will be the class A championship contest between Lawndale, the defending title holder, and Hyde Park. There will be two preliminary matches in which the pairings are: Class B, Plant Accounting-State Area vs. Stewart Office, and class C, Lawndale-Crawford vs. Disbursements Accounting. League officials predict a crowd of 1,000, mostly company employes, will see the games.

Inland local 1010, United Steel Workers of America [CIO] has closed its books on another successful basketball season with two championships to its credit. One of these was in the East Chicago Industrial league, in which it finished on top for the second straight year, and the other in the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. tournament. The team was made up of workers in the Indiana Harbor plant of Inland Steel, most of them being employed in the tin mill. John Makis was the coach and Stanley Kolakowski the manager.

WHEN it comes to dominating the field in his particular sport, Dan Robertson did a right good job of monopolizing the honors in the Illinois Bell Telephone company's table tennis league during the winter season. Not only did he win individual honors during the regular season with a perfect record of 126 games won and none lost, but he also won the championship in class A in the post-season tournament, held at the North Town Table Tennis club. Top ranking players in the tournament:



Dan Robertson

CLASS A—Dan Robertson, E. R. Garage; Al Myers, Longbeach Commercial; Ralph Reinhofer, Lakeview Office, and Henry Rosenblatt, Belmont Office.

CLASS B—Harry Zebolsky, Rogers Park Office; Fred Gunther, Lakeview Office; Don Terry, Lakeview Garage, and Clarence Koelling, Austin Commercial.

CLASS C—Paul Grubb, Lakeview Office; Fred Harbeck, E. R. Garage, and Bill Helbich, Longbeach Office.

The Illinois Bell table tennis enthusiasts, tho their regular season is over, would like to meet teams from other Chicagoland industrial plants. In a recent intercompany match they won from Illinois Tool Works. Other plants which might like to take them on can get action by telephoning Dan Robertson, Longbeach 9936.

Spotting the Pins

BY ROBERT BEACH

MEMBERS of the National Bowling Writers' association—or a part of them, at least—have selected the sixth annual All-American bowling team, announced thru the organization's secretary, Mort Luby, editor of the National Bowlers' Journal.

The six men selected on the first team include three Chicagoans, Pvt. Joe Wilman, Buddy Bomar, and Paul Krumske. Also on the team are Joe Norris of the Detroit Strohs, Therman Gibson, firebrand of the Detroit E. & B. team, and Russ Gersonde, the tall Milwaukeean.

Not having participated in the election, this correspondent has no position to defend and probably wouldn't attempt to defend it had he participated. With the selection o' Bomar, Wilman, Krumske, and Norris, there can be small argument. In fact, there can be small argument, regardless of whom is chosen, all choices representing, as they do, personal opinions to which we all are entitled.

John Crimmins Appears to Merit First String Rating

The ommission from the first team of Ned Day, the former champion from West Allis, is natural since Ned has been more or less inactive since losing his title to Krumske. There are three men, however, who might fit well into the first string scheme of things. Most notable of these is one John Crimmins of Detroit, who has been shooting 800 series and other spectacular scores, including a perfect game, to gain national acclaim for a great comeback. Then, too, Gibson's teammate, Fred Bujack, is a smooth performer, as are Marty Cassio of Rahway, N. J., and Harold Asplund of Denver, Colo., all on the second team. Down among the honorable mentions is George Young of New York, a mighty polished bowler, and Nelson Burton of St. Louis is excluded altogether.

Selection of Teams Presents Conversational Material

The announcement of this annual team always serves the admirable purpose of keeping the tenpin fires smouldering with conversation. Here are the selections, folks, so start stokin':

FIRST TEAM—Joe Norris, Detroit; Paul Krumske, Chicago; Therman Gibson, Detroit; Pvt. Joe Wilman, Chicago; Russ Gersonde, Milwaukee; Buddy Bomar, Chicago.

SECOND TEAM—Joe Sinke, Chicago; Marty Cassio, Rahway, N. J.; Johnny Crimmins, Detroit; Harold Asplund, Denver, Colo.; Bill Flesch, Chicago; Buss Fazio, Akron, O.

THIRD TEAM—Fred Bujack, Detroit; Bill Granieri, San Antonio, Tex.; Hank Gavie, Detroit; Ralph Smith, Los Angeles; Ned Day, West Allis, Wis.; Billy Sixty, Milwaukee.

Bomar, Flesch Make Big Gain in Title Match

Winning six of seven games and scoring seven of a possible eight points, Buddy Bomar and Bill Flesch of Chicago, national two-man match game bowling champions, cut sharply into the advantage of Wally Reppenhagen and Bill Kenet of Detroit in the fourth episode of their 42-game title series in Faetz Recreation, 5961 N. Ridge av., last night.

Bomar and Flesch totaled 3,055 to 2,806 for the visitors to bring their total pins for the 28 games to respective scores of 11,575 and 11,576. While the champions trail by one pin in total points, they are behind seven points by the system employed which awards one point for each game won and one point for higher total pins in each seven-game block. The Detroiters now have 19.5 points to 12.5 for the Chicagoans, last night's point score having been 7 to 1.

Bomar led last night's shooting with a 1,611 total for the seven games, averaging 230 plus; Flesch was next with 1,444, averaging 206 plus; Kenet was third with 1,421 for a 203 percentage and Reppenhagen got 1,385 for a little over 197 per game.

The highest team total of the 28 games thus far came in the fourth contest when Flesch shot 257 and Bomar 259 for 516.

The match will be resumed this afternoon at 3 o'clock with the fifth seven game block and will be concluded with the final set, tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Last night's scores:

TIGERS DEFEAT INDIANS, 3-2, ON NEWHOUSER HIT

Hal Yields Five in 11 Inning Stretch

Detroit, Mich., April 21 (AP)—Pitcher Hal Newhouser provided his own batting support today, driving in two runs as the Detroit Tigers won an 11 inning 3 to 2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Newhouser's single thru the right side of the drawn-in Cleveland infield scored Shortstop Ed Borom from third in the 11th with one man out to break up the game.

The game played in 42 degree temperature, attracted 4,374 fans.

A'S BEAT RED SOX, 8-2

Boston, Mass., April 21 (AP)—Ford Garrison's third inning homer with two on and a similar drive by Frank Hayes in the seventh with the bases loaded today gave the Philadelphia Athletics an 8 to 2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The homers told the story of the game, the fifth in succession the Red Sox have dropped this year without scoring a victory.

Ed Busch's double started off the Philadelphia fireworks in the third. Then George Kell singled and Garrison drove out a long one over the left field fence to bring in the three runs.

CARDINALS WIN HOME OPENER; BEAT REDS, 3-2

St. Louis, Mo., April 21 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of a ninth inning lapse in the Cincinnati defense today to score a tie-breaking run and win the opening game of their series, 3 to 2.

Arnold Carter, the Reds' only left hand pitcher, appeared to have the game tucked away on his fine seven hit job until Marty Marion opened the final inning with a single. Emil Verban bunted and Steve Mesner threw wide to first, both runners being safe. Relief Pitcher Ken Burkhardt sacrificed both runners a notch, and Augie Bergamo walked, filling the bases and setting up the situation for the game winning single by Johnny Hopp.

GIANTS BEAT DODGERS, 3-2

New York, April 21 (AP)—Altho stung for 11 hits and coaxed for five bases on balls, Bill Voiselle was as tight as a drum in the pinches as the Brooklyn Dodgers left 11 men on bases, to drop their second straight to the New York Giants, 3 to 2, today before 10,260 rain drenched fans.

Steve Filipowicz, ex-Fordham football star, provided the Giants with the margin of victory with a two run homer in the fifth inning.

News and Notes on Men Who Direct New All-America

The men of the All-America conference—what they talk about and little items of interest:

Lt. Comdr. Mal Stevens, who will be the driving force of the New York club, has the physique and the face of a matinee idol. . . . And a midwestern drawl that surprises folks who recall that he once was Yale's head coach. . . . Mal, a native of Osborne, Kas., worked his way thru Washburn college in Topeka, Kas.

Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, general manager and coach of Cleveland's entry, telling Miami's Harvey Hester he should be ashamed at getting out in front of all rivals by signing 20 players. "I've got only two lined up," Paul told the portly southerner. In a more serious mood, Lt. Brown said, "I'm not going to depend too much on name players. I'm going to get together a group of athletes who are team players."

James Brueil, the Buffalo oil man who holds the All-America franchise in that city with Sam Cordovano, flew to Chicago from Washington in his own plane Friday, the only way he could arrive on time. On the way, his pilot ran into sleet and at times flew at an altitude of 11,500 feet.

George Trafton, who left the Green Bay Packers after they had won the National Football league title, was a visitor at the All-America meeting. George has a couple of college coaching offers, but would prefer to continue in pro football. He believes Miami has acted wisely in obtaining two former National league stars—Ensign Hamp Pool of the Bears and navy Lt. Jim Poole of the Giants—to help coach the team. Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher is the head coach. "There's a vast difference between college and pro football," says George. "Any former college coach coming into a pro league should not make the mistake of failing to get at least one assistant who has had experience in the professional game."

George still is living in Green Bay, which he describes as the most livable town in the country.

Miami, home of race tracks and dog tracks, is a sanctimonious spot on Sundays when the ministerial union holds sway. For this reason, Hester has decided to hold his home games on Monday nights. All the games in Miami will be under the lights. Hester has selected Asheville, N. C., as the training grounds for his team.

Dr. D. M. [Mike] Nigro of Kansas City, who made application for an All-America franchise, has been a close friend of President Truman for more than two decades. Dr. Nigro reveals that the President is an ardent football fan. The Kansas Citian believes that his town and the surrounding area would have sufficient drawing power to support a big league football team. It is strategically situated, an ideal jumping off place for eastern teams going to Los Angeles and San Francisco for games. Marchy Schwartz, the former Notre Dame star, probably would be general manager of the Kansas City entry. Dr. Nigro represents a group of wealthy Kansas Citians.

Great Lakes

THE Great Lakes baseball team is to open its home season May 8 against the White Sox. . . . Several young recruits have caught the eye of Chief Specialist Bob Feller, who has charge of the Bluejacket nine. . . . One is John Groth, 18 year old lad who played with Chicago Latin last year. . . . He doubles as a pitcher and infielder. . . . "For a youngster Groth looks awfully good," Feller said. "He has a strong throwing arm." . . . Chris Bauman, Chicago boxer representing Company 437, beat Christopher Coomes in a show sponsored by the 27th regiment here. . . . Among the wrestling winners on the program was Gordon McLennan, native of Evanston. . . . Lt. Comdr. W. D. Esser won the men's singles title and shared the two man crown in the officers' bowling tournament. . . . Comdr. Esser, with an 81 point handicap, rolled a 582 total in singles play. . . . He then won the doubles with Lt. H. C. Matson as his partner.

VARIETY MARKS CHICAGO SOCCER PROGRAM TODAY

BY OFFSIDE

Regardless of the variety of competition he or she prefers, no Chicagoland soccer fan will be denied today.

National Open cup competition? The Swedish Americans and Slovaks will provide this as they meet in a third round game in Sparta stadium, 21st st. and Kostner av.

National Amateur cup play? The Hakoah Centers and Guisti Italians fill the bill here, meeting in a first round game in Key Branch stadium, 5400 W. Roosevelt rd.

League soccer? Three games are to be played in the major division of the National league, with Hansa opposing Sparta, the Schwabens fighting it out with the Chicago Sport club, and the Rangers battling the Vikings.

The cup games are to start at 2:30 p. m., and the league games at 3 p. m.

Power Open to Debate

Many other games are on the day's schedule, but the meeting of the Swedish Americans, who recently defeated the Vikings for the Illinois state title, with the Slovaks and the battle which pits the Hakoahs against the Guisti Italians shape up as standout attractions.

Despite their state championship victory, the Swedish Americans have left the measure of their power open to debate. In ending the long winning streak of the Vikings [who were without the services of Jimmy McDermott, their leading goal getter] the Swedish Americans were extremely impressive, but in being able to gain no better than a tie with the lowly Rangers, they were equally unimpressive. Either they are inconsistent or the Rangers are a powerful dark horse. The answer will be revealed as they meet the Slovaks today.

Hakoahs Are Ambitious

Manager Harry Field and the Hakoahs propose to go far in the National Amateur tournament this season, and their battle with the Italians is virtually certain to be well attended. Manfred Lehman, star center forward from Detroit, was absent as Hansa held the Hakoahs to a scoreless tie last Sunday, but he will be in the lineup today—and so will Alfred Strouss.

Today's schedule:

St. George's J. McMahon Proves Star on Cadet Five

San Antonio, Tex., April 21 [Special]—Sgt. John McMahon, former St. George High school basketball star, is en route to Mexico with the San Antonio aviation cadet center basketball team. The cadet center Warhawks, champions of the San Antonio Service league, accepted the invitation of the Mexican War department to participate in the annual Presidential Cup competition to be played in Mexico City, April 23-30, inclusive. McMahon has been a valuable cog in the cadet center basketball machine, which has emerged on top in the army loop on two successive years.

NORTHWESTERN GOLFERS DEFEAT PURDUE, 21 TO 3

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Northwestern's Wildcats, who have serious designs on the Western conference and National Intercollegiate golf championships, yesterday scored their second victory of the season and their first conference triumph by defeating Purdue, 21 points to 3.

Coach Ted Payseur, at the outset of the season, had placed most of his hopes on the youthful shoulders of Jack Atten, Edgewater star, and Bob Abrahams, 1944 state high school champion from La Grange, but yesterday's doings produced another valuable hand in the team's acting captain, Jim Stotter, who won a letter last year. James turned up with a 71, even par for the new Northwestern university course, and came back with an afternoon 78 for the best 36 hole medal score of the day, a 149.

Howell Leads Boilermakers

Stotter was out in 37 on his morning round, redeeming bogies at the second and eighth with a birdie on the 535 yard sixth. He needed a five at the 415 yard 11th, but came back with birdies on Nos. 15 and 17.

Sox Howell of Purdue led the Boilermakers in scoring with a neat matinee 78 which gave his team its only points in a victory over Northwestern's Ed Malenius. The Wildcats swept all of the other five singles matches, Atten taking three points from Jim Samis; Abrahams three from Bob Plank; Stotter three from Dan Ruddy, and Jack Cooper and Dick Krapfel three each from Paul Busch, who worked two singles matches for Purdue.

The victory, which avenged a 16 to 2 trouncing by Purdue last year, also included two doubles decisions. Stotter and Malenius took three points from Ruddy and Howell in their morning argument, while Atten and Abrahams did likewise against Samis and Plank. Atten and Abrahams each had 79s in the doubles contests.

The Wildcats will engage Wisconsin's Badgers next Saturday, Notre Dame and Minnesota in a triangular argument on May 5, and Michigan's defending Big Ten champions on May 12. The team will take its only trip of the conference season on May 19, when it will meet Illinois at the Champaign Country club.

Dedicate Course May 12

The 1945 Big Ten individual and team titles will be decided in a 36 hole medal play examination over the Northwestern course, the 132 acre tract which was formerly operated as the Wilmette Country club and was purchased by the university last autumn. The spacious clubhouse is now undergoing complete repairs, and memberships will be sold to faculty and staff members, with playing privileges being granted to students.

The course will be officially dedicated during the Michigan match on May 12. In addition to the singles and doubles between the Wildcats and Wolverines, a special exhibition match also is planned. Two players in this foursome already have been named. They are Chick Evans, former Northwestern student who fathered the Evans caddy scholarship fund at the university, and Phyllis Otto, the young Iowan who was twice runner-up for the women's western Open crown, and who is now a junior in the university.

Friday's announcement of the dates for the N. C. A. A. tournament was greeted by Payseur with a promise that he will send a full team to the big show to be held over Ohio State university's Scarlet course on June 25, 26, and 27. It will be the second time in five years that the N. C. A. A. has been played over the Scarlet course, Earl Stewart and his Louisiana State mates having won both championships there in 1941.

MICHIGAN GOLFERS WIN

Detroit, Mich., April 21 [Special]—University of Detroit golfers lost their opening match today to the University of Michigan's defending Western conference championship team, 15½ to 2½.

John Tews, number one man of the Wolverines, was medalist with a pair of 40s, followed by Phil Marcellus and John Jensvold with 82s. Sal Tomanto was low for the Titans with 43—43—86.

LEMMER STARS IN MILWAUKEE TRACK VICTORY

Milwaukee State Teachers college defeated Wilson and Morton in a triangular track meet yesterday in Key Branch stadium mainly thru the efforts of Ken Lemmer who scored 36 of Milwaukee's 65½ points. Wilson was second with 55 and Morton made 42½.

Lemmer won the 220 and 440 yard dashes, the shot put, pole vault, discus, broad jump, and placed second in the javelin throw.

880 YARD RUN—Won by Walsh, Morten; Luckey, Wilson, second; Fiasco, Milwaukee, third; Jones, Wilson, fourth. Time, 2:18.2.
JAVELIN THROW—Won by Staughn, Wilson; Lemmer, Milwaukee, second; Miller, Morton, third; Beem, Milwaukee, fourth. Distance, 132 feet, 7 inches.
BROAD JUMP—Won by Lemmer, Milwaukee; Keence, Wilson, second; Dahlgren, Morton, third; Brockman, Milwaukee, fourth. Distance, 19 feet.
220 YARD DASH—Won by Zupic, Morton; Therman, Wilson, second; Magna, Milwaukee, third; Scott, Wilson, fourth. Time, :23.7.
220 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Lemmer, Milwaukee; Therman, Wilson, second; Tuma, Morton, third; Brackman, Milwaukee, fourth. Time, :27.
TWO MILE RUN—Won by Foster, Wilson; Lavesser, Milwaukee, second; Keence, Wilson, third; Fiasco, Milwaukee, fourth. Time, 11:52.6.
880 YARD RELAY—Won by Morton [Zupic, Dahlgren, Riha, Kellington]; Wilson, second; Milwaukee, third. Time, 1:40.5.

LINDBLOM HIGH FIRST IN STATE GYM TOURNEY

Lindblom won the state high school gymnastic tournament at the University of Chicago yesterday by scoring 416 points. Senn, with 382, and University High, 300, were next. Bill Roetzheim, Lindblom, won the all around title.

Chicago Roller Team Beats New York, 21-19

Forty points were scored in the roller derby contest in the Coliseum last night as Chicago defeated New York, 21 to 19, in the highest game of the series. Chicago now leads by ten points, 371 to 361, in total points.

plate and went to third on Sauer's single to center. Nick scored on Pafko's fly to Barrett. Johnson lined a single to left, Sauer stopping at second. Livingston flied to Russell but Derringer singled to center, scoring Sauer with the tying run. Johnson went to third on Derringer's hit and when Barrett's throw got away from Elliott, Derringer got to second tho Johnson had to stay on third. The rally ended with Hack's drive to Russell.

Double Play Ends Cub Threat

The Cub sixth afforded one of those instances when they would have scored if there had been two out instead of only one. With one out Johnson doubled to left. Livingston then sent a drive to Barrett and Johnson, feeling certain of the catch, held second. Barrett dropped the ball, however, and Livingston reached first, with Johnson still on second, instead of home as he would had he been running with two down and Derringer then hit into a double play, Zak to Dahlgren. The Cubs took a 4 to 3 lead after Hack and Hughes had been retired in the seventh inning. Cavarretta singled and scored when Nicholson rammed one to the top of the right field screen.

Roe yielded to pinch batter Al Gionfriddo in the Pirate seventh and Strincevich was the pitcher at the start of the Cub eighth. Pafko singled to center, advanced on Johnson's sacrifice and held second while Livingston was reaching first on Zak's throwing error. Derringer was called out on strikes, but Hack walked, loading the bases. Zak then threw out Hughes.

RUBICONS WIN NORTH AV. OPEN BASKET TITLE

The Rubicons, representing the Woodlawn African Methodist church, won the championship in the North av.-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. open basketball tournament last night, defeating Gits Molding in the final game, 51 to 42. It was the second tournament title won by the Negro stars this spring, the other being in the 111th st. Y. M. C. A. meet. They also took runner-up honors in the St. Sabina A. A. U. tourney.

Roos's All-Stars took third place in the tournament standings by defeating Milwaukee Road, 71 to 63, despite the efforts of Steve Trotier, who made 51 points for the losers. In the finals of the consolation bracket, for teams eliminated in earlier rounds, the Hawthorne A. C. won from the Freeland A. C., 52 to 26.

LT. GREENBERG, NET STAR, NOW IN GREENLAND

Lt. Seymour Greenberg, former national clay court tennis champion, now is stationed in Greenland with the army airways communications system, according to information received by his family in Chicago.

A former Big Ten champion while at Northwestern university, Lt. Greenberg—for lack of tennis courts—finds recreation in table tennis. He recently won a singles and a doubles table tennis tournament held among army personnel in Greenland.

TROUT SEASON IN MICHIGAN TO OPEN SATURDAY

BY BOB BECKER

The opening of the pickerel or northern pike fishing season in Illinois on May 1, the start of trout fishing in Michigan next Saturday [April 28], and the sport of catching white bass and trout in Wisconsin are events for which fishermen long have been waiting.

Anglers who are familiar with the Mississippi river fishing between Illinois and Iowa also will be keeping an eye on that area during the next few weeks. There is a possibility that white bass and wall-eyed pike fishing can be had in the big river starting May 1. It depends on the water level of the Mississippi.

Michigan Streams Stocked

They've been dumping legal size trout [more than seven inches in length] in the streams of Van Buren county, Mich., this spring, so trout fishermen who want to catch a mess of fish not a great distance from Illinois should be able to realize their aims in that area. The town of Paw Paw would be the logical base for a trip to hit the streams of Van Buren county.

This spring there is a definite "fish for food" angle in any trip that a rod and reel enthusiast may be able to take a short distance from home. But for the thousands of wounded war veterans in hospitals in this country the use of fishing tackle makes for fun and health.

The only trouble is that there isn't much tackle for these boys. We wrote the special services division of the army some days ago calling attention to the need for fishing equipment for men all over the world, and we were advised that the division was trying to get rods and reels. But it can get only a fraction of the rods and reels needed.

Have Special Services Branch

At the same time we wrote the United States marine corps about the requests for tackle coming to us from marines in rehabilitation barracks. Civilians are pretty well stymied in efforts to fill such requests, with rod and reel stocks at their lowest ebb in years.

We're glad to hear from the marine corps that it has a special services branch, one of the duties of which is to expedite the procurement of recreational and athletic material for the men in service. Col. W. O. Thompson, officer in charge, welfare division, writes us from Washington, D. C., that his office is attempting "to expedite the procurement of fishing outfits." He adds that full coöperation of the navy is being received in this program.

RAIL METHODS MADE SUCCESS IN SHIPBUILDING

Pullman Develops New Techniques

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

F. M. Gunn

Within a few days LSM 353 [landing ship medium] will be delivered to the navy by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company from its Lake Calumet ship yard. In completing its order for 78 ships Pullman-Standard introduced a number of innovations and new techniques which made a contribution to the art of shipbuilding. Forty-three of the ships were LSM's and 35 PCE's [patrol craft escorts].

When LSM 353 moves out of Lake Calumet, a force of "prairie" ship builders that once totaled more than 7,000 will be slashed to a few retained for cleanup purposes. It will mark the end of an operation in which a railroad car builder undertook a job essentially that of an experienced shipbuilder.

Key men for the job were obtained from supervisory posts in Pullman-Standard's regular force. Workers were recruited from every walk of life, including many who had never seen a ship.

"Streamliners on Water"

The success of the Calumet yard's heterogeneous group of workers has been attested by reports from crews that manned the ships overseas.

"We approached the building of the ships from the viewpoint of a streamlined train builder," said F. M. Gunn, works manager in charge of the operation.

"We looked at the ships as streamlined trains that traveled on water. Streamlined trains and ships of the type we built have much in common. They both pack an immense amount of equipment and appurtenances in extremely confined spaces. So we adapted our train building methods to ships.

About 35 per cent of the work on the ships was done out of the weather in a huge shop built by the navy at 111th street on Pullman-Standard property. The completed parts were transported on flat cars about 3½ miles to ship ways at Lake Calumet where the remainder of construction was done.

Building Done by Sections

One innovation was the breaking down of a ship's construction into sections or subassemblies so that a large amount of work could be done on the subassembly bench. This procedure was similar to that in passenger coach construction.

Subassemblies were mounted in strong and ingenious jigs to make it easy to work on them. Every possible fitting or appurtenance, such as piping, brackets, and ventilation sections, was attached to or built into an assembly while it was in the jig. The purpose was to reduce work at close quarters while the ship was on the yard way or after it had been launched. Conventional shipbuilding had called for construction from the keel up.

A large amount of spot welding to attach brackets, clamps, cabinets, and other appurtenances to bulkheads [walls to the landlubber] was another new procedure. Gunn said this not only was speedier than the use of rivets and bolts, but produced smooth surfaces easy to clean.

Special Jigs Aid Welders

The use of jigs specially designed to permit a maximum amount of welding to be done "down hand" also was an innovation, It is easier to weld "down hand" and work so done is of better quality than when the hand is raised to perform the job—just as it is easier to paint a floor than a ceiling.

Other innovations included novel methods for training workers and providing them with patterns to be followed on the job. A mock-up of a full size ship was built so the worker could see exactly how the completed job should look.

Iso-metric drawings [three dimensional] were used instead of conventional blue prints to provide pictures of the parts that were easy to understand.

Employes made 6,386 suggestions for bettering the operation under the Pullman-Standard-suggestion system; 2,044 were suitable to put to use. Donald Cameron, a member of the Calumet yard force, won the Chicago Tribune War Workers award for a clamp that reduced the time required to fabricate steel ribs by 22 hours and eliminated warping and distortion.

Wins Safety Award

Herman Van Der Ness, another employe, developed an improved method for forming or shaping strake plates—the steel plates out of which the ship is built.

An outstanding contribution to ship building practice was the performance of the yard with respect to safety. Using methods employed in building rail cars, it won the Adm. Land safety award in 1943 with an accident rate of one one-seventh that of the average for the 267 yards competing.

Even in planning the yard car building methods were used to expedite the flow from assembly to the launching way. Assembly ways were situated in long rows side by side. As a ship was ready it was pulled on trucks traveling on rails to a central rail and then to the launching way. One launching way thus served many assembly ways.

Sections built at the 111th street shop averaged 16 feet long, 33 feet wide, and 27 feet high and weighed 25 to 30 tons. A hull was composed of 14 sections, a deck house of two.

British Expect Little Change in Heavy Tax

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 21—Chancellor of Exchequer Anderson will present to the house of commons Tuesday a new budget, but judging from the behavior of the stock market this week, financial interests are not expecting important changes in taxation. Business generally was quiet, but industrials were in moderate demand and tobacco and brewery issues were bought on the contention the budget is unlikely to affect them because they are taxed to capacity.

Members of parliament expected few changes would be recommended by the chancellor. These factors did not discourage big business interests, including the British Federation of Commodity and Allied Trade associations and the Engineering Industries association, from sending strong appeals for tax cuts to the treasury.

Attack Excess Profits Tax.

Pressure was brought to bear on the chancellor to provide some relief for industry from the 100 per cent excess profits tax. So far the treasury has obtained approximately 6½ billion dollars from this impost which industrialists have protested has prevented them from building reserves in war time to finance construction for peace production. The treasury has promised to refund 20 per cent of the tax at the end of the war, but neither the time nor the conditions of the reimbursement have been defined.

The impression has gained ground that with the end of the war in Europe approaching and talk of a general election widespread, Tuesday's budget will be an interim measure which will continue to encourage production and discourage consumption, but hint at the better things to come.

Little Reduction Expected.

Last year the government spent approximately 20 billion dollars on the war and 4 billion on civil services. At best expenditure during the present financial year is unlikely to drop more than 2 billion. Under these circumstances anything beyond minor tax adjustments seems to be ruled out.

The political situation, too, favors postponement of tax changes. On strictly economic grounds the excess profits and income taxes on industry call for priority relaxation in order to speed industrial reconstruction and spending power should be restricted until supplies catch up with demand. But as the Manchester Guardian's financial editor explained, "Neither of these courses will commend itself before the general elections. The budget will thus be marked by politics."

ASK EXTENSION OF INTERSTATE TRUCKING PACTS

Madison, Wis., April 21 [Special]—Highway department officials from nine midwest states at a conference today advocated "extension of interstate reciprocity agreements on truck and bus operations." The conference had been called by Gov. Goodland. Represented were Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Farm truck spokesmen and motor carrier association representatives urged continuation of reciprocity agreements on truck and bus taxation and motor vehicle size and weight limit now in force.

Truck and bus size and weight limitations recommended by the conference were an 8 foot width, 12½ foot height, and a 35 foot limit on the length of any single vehicle. Indorsed, however, was a maximum motor vehicle length of 45 feet for "any combination of vehicles" [truck and trailer] and a limit of 18,000 pounds gross weight on any axle.

DPC Arranges 7 State Truck Facility Contract

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—A $70,000 contract with Carolina Motor Express Lines, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind., to provide and operate transportation facilities in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia was announced today by the Defense Plant corporation.

CARRIERS LEAD NEW UPTURN IN STOCK MARKET

Pere Marquette Up 3⅞ in Big Trade

New York, April 21 (AP)—Led by rails, stocks generally resumed the selective rise today after a week of heavy trading in which the averages reached their highest levels in almost eight years.

As in most sessions since the Friday the Truman administration started, buying was based on further hopes of government cooperation with industry, the outlook for post-war prosperity, and the hope that reconversion troubles might not be as serious as some expected. Profit taking on the recent sharp advance, however, continued and the approaching collapse of the Nazis accentuated caution.

Strengthens Toward Close

Prices were mixed early but strengthened toward the close. Gains of fractions to a point and a few larger advances were widely distributed. Transfers of 590,000 shares were the largest for a Saturday since March 10.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was up 0.3 at 64.1 and for the week showed a net advance of 1.7 points. The week's volume of 9,680,000 shares was the largest since the week ended Jan. 13.

Prominent in today's upturns were Pere Marquette, active and up 3⅞; Gulf Mobile, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Hudson Motors, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, Standard Oil [N. J.], Barnsdall, and International Telephone. Lower were American Can, Loew's, Westinghouse Electric, Great Northern, Douglas Aircraft, and Consolidated Edison. Commonwealth & Southern was the most active, traded in blocks running to 55,000 shares, but finished unchanged at 1⅛.

RAIL BONDS PUSH UP

New York, April 21 (AP)—Rail issues continued their long advance in today's bond market, with some gains ranging from 1 to 3 points. Other groups showed little activity and narrow price changes.

Strongest of the rails included Buffalo, Cedar Rapids & Northern 5s, Delaware Lackawanna & Western incomes, and various obligations of the Milwaukee, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Lehigh Valley and New Haven. Loans of Southern Pacific were moderately higher.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE

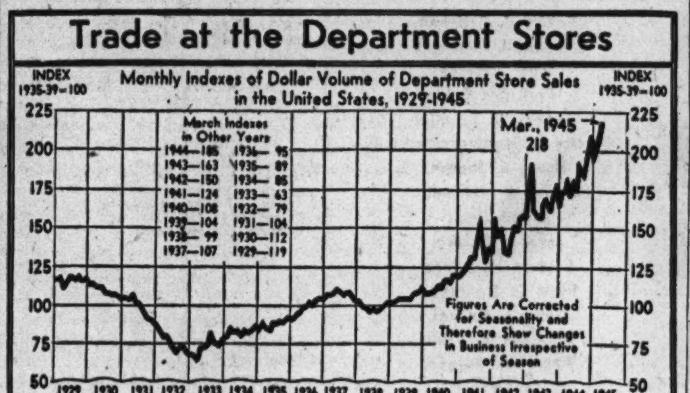
Prices were higher yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Leaders in a 17,000 share turnover included North Western railway, up ⅞ to a 1945 peak of 35½; Admiral corporation, up ¾; Cities Service, up ⅝, and Central and South West Utilities, unchanged.

LIFE INSURANCE SERVICE LAUDED BY GOV. GREEN

Gov. Green told a sales congress of the Chicago Association of Life Underwriters yesterday in the La Salle hotel that in this era of high taxes, "which may be with us for many years" life insurance becomes increasingly important to the individual as a method of saving. Perhaps the most important service of life insurance money is the work which it does between the time it is paid in as a premium and paid out as a benefits in maintaining business, he said. Life insurance companies have an average of $585 in investments for each of 70 million policyholders, he said.

Charge Cabbage Grower Gets $16, User Pays $300

Valdosta, Ga., April 21 (AP)—A complaint that Georgia farmers are receiving only $16 to $20 a ton for cabbage later sold to New York consumers at $300 a ton was forwarded today to the senate committee investigating the food situation by Tom Linder, state commissioner of agriculture. A price of 70 cents a 50 pound bag of No. 1 grade cabbage was fixed this week by the war food administration.



Rent, Eviction Pleas Swamp OPA Offices

Demands by tenants for rent reductions, complaints by others because of curtailed services, and petitions by landlords to increase rents have swamped the Chicago rent control office which is lagging far behind in its work, John Joseph Ryan, office of price administration rent executive, said yesterday.

A rise in real estate values and a large gain in sales have resulted in 1,700 eviction petitions a month filed with the OPA by landlords. Ryan said more than 75 per cent of them were filed by new owners, who must give tenants a minimum of 90 days notice after getting OPA permission, and then must occupy the premises at least six months or reoffer to the evicted tenant.

Enforcement Actions Rise

"Actions by the rent division to enforce compliance with regulations mounted from 601 cases in February to 1,872 in March, and the rate is increasing," Ryan said. "Total cases received in the office from all causes went from 20,300 in January to 27,300 in February, and then soared to 37,000 in March."

Ryan said his office had made a field check of landlords seeking to evict tenants, and that out of 55 inspections this month only one indicated a possible violation of regulations governing evictions. He said inspections will reach 800 a month by June.

Staff Increased 10 Per Cent

Telephone calls to the rent office jumped from 21,393 in February to 27,839 in March, personal interviews increased from February's 14,458 to 22,448 last month, and tenant complaints filed rose from 12,700 to 20,600 in March.

Ryan said he had been able to increase his staff about 10 per cent last month, but that it would be impossible to get up to date on complaints and petitions until well after May 1.

GRAIN FUTURES UNEVEN; WHEAT UP, BARLEY OFF

The grain futures market was slightly irregular yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent higher, corn ⅛ higher to ⅝ lower, oats ⅝ higher, rye ⅛ to ¾ higher, and barley unchanged to 1⅛ lower with September at a new seasonal low. Buying attributed to milling interests was responsible for the strength in wheat.

Commission houses bought May corn and there were reports of sales of cash corn to the government, presumably for shipment to England. Some time ago the government announced England would need 20 million bushels of corn and purchased several million, but supplies at terminal markets were small and box cars scarce so the buying program was suspended.

NET EARNINGS LOWER IN YEAR, FAIR REPORTS

The Fair yesterday reported net earnings in the 53 weeks ended Feb. 3 were $415,802, compared with $583,942 in the 52 weeks ended Jan. 29, 1944. Profits in both periods were computed after adding $150,000 to the reserve for post-war adjustments. Tax provisions were $1,540,000, against $1,110,000 a year ago. Sales increased 9.6 per cent to $24,932,292. Merchandise inventories on Feb. 3 were $3,438,341, compared with $3,438,341.

K. C. Southern Asks Bids on 7.7 Millions of Notes

New York, April 21 (AP)—The Kansas City Southern Railway company has invited bids on $7,700,000 of notes maturing serially $500,000 each from April 1, 1945, thru April 1, 1949, and $5,700,000 on April 1, 1950, President William N. Deramus announced today. Proceeds and other funds would be used to redeem 21 million dollars of 5 per cent bonds at 105.

PUBLIC UTILITIES

The public utility holding company act has been on the statute books nearly 10 years. Next Aug. 26 will mark the anniversary. In administering the act, the securities and exchange commission has banished certain holding company practices proscribed by congress, but has also sought aggressively to break up holding company systems that extend beyond one geographical area.

Hundreds of operating utilities have been sold by holding companies in an effort to adjust themselves to the "death sentence" provisions of the law or in compliance with orders of the commission. Under section 11 [b] of the act, the SEC has directed some of the largest systems, such as North American company and Middle West corporation, to confine future operations to a single group of subsidiaries. Cities Service must rid itself of its public utility interests. It will retain its oil, wholesale natural gas, and other nonutility properties.

Utility executives have contended that some of the SEC divestment orders are more drastic than the law requires. In addition to a single integrated utility system, the statute authorizes the commission to permit a holding company to control one or more additional systems under certain conditions. Spokesmen for the industry assert that the benefits of geographical diversification of business, from the investors' viewpoint, have not been adequately recognized in the administration of the law.

The commission refused to recognize the war as a valid reason for deferring the dissolution of utility systems. Company executives say that stocks of operating subsidiaries were forced on the market during periods of relatively low prices for such securities—prior to the marked recovery of utility stocks as compared with three years ago. Sales have included large amounts of nonutility assets.

An example of how holding company stockholders react to this form of government "protection of investors" was supplied by Arthur H. Schnell, Philadelphia, in a letter to United Light and Power company, in which he said he holds 900 common shares. "You sold 65,527 shares of International Paper company common at $7 a share in 1942," he wrote, "and today the price is $25.50. Why should strangers benefit from this market appreciation?"

Strike Cases in Hands of Conciliators

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—The United States conciliation service today reported 35 strikes in progress which it was handling as of 6 p. m. yesterday. Incomplete tabulation showed 5,378 workers involved. Other strikes, some handled solely by the war labor board, were not included. None was listed in Iowa or Wisconsin. The eight shown for the midwest, unions involved and number of workers affected were:

ILLINOIS—Briskin Manufacturing company, Chicago, AFL auto workers, 60; Illinois Ordinance plant, Sherwin-Williams Defense corporation, Carbondale, United Mine Workers [independent], 150; D. H. Nayou Roofing company, Ottawa, AFL roofers and carpenters, number of workers affected unknown.

INDIANA—General American Transportation company, East Chicago, CIO steelworkers, 1,000; Josum Manufacturing company, Michigan City, union involved and numbers of workers affected unknown.

MICHIGAN—Associated Truck Lines, Detroit, AFL teamsters, 2; Hubert Motor company, Pontiac, AFL teamsters, 40; Criscraft corporation, Algonac, various AFL unions, 600.

TIRE RATIONING HIKE BELIEVED LIKELY IN JUNE

WPB Lifts Output Quota 65 Pct.

Washington, D. C., April 21 [Special]—Liberalization of civilian tire rations by June was implied tonight by a war production board action increasing passenger tire manufacturing goals about 65 per cent.

The increase, covering the April-May-June quarter, was accompanied by boosts in production schedules of tires for trucks and buses, aircraft and tractors. It was made possible by prospects of increased supplies of carbon black and tire cord.

Office of price administration officials said that the increased production rate would not permit larger tire rations next month, but probably would be reflected in larger supplies in June.

The May allotment of civilian tires probably will be close to that of April, or about 1 million, compared with 1,600,000 in March.

Other Items Increased

W. J. Sears, deputy director of the WPB rubber bureau, said that the total estimate for the three months beginning April 1, had been boosted from 5,085,604 to 5,775,307 truck and bus tires, but that the largest increase was made in expected output of passenger and motorcycle tires, for which the quarterly schedule was increased from 3,165,604 to 5,200,000 tires.

Production schedules of tractor tires were increased from 5,085,000 to 5,775,000 and of airplane from 330,000 to 450,000. Output of camelback for recapping was set at 90 million pounds, compared with 72 million.

"It has been possible to revise the schedule upward," Sears explained, "because it is expected that additional amounts of critical components, particularly carbon black, will be available to the rubber manufacturing industry.

"Should present scheduled supplies of carbon black, rayon and cotton tire cord, rosins, chafer fabric and bead wire not materialize the production schedules outlined today will not be met."

Use Less Carbon Black

The rubber bureau said the revised production schedule is based on continued use of smaller quantities of carbon black in each item than that needed to make the most efficient product. This reduction is an emergency measure undertaken to stretch the short supply of carbon black as far as possible, the agency said.

Altho some products "will not give the most efficient usage," officials warned, the rubber bureau has endeavored, after consultation with industry, to adjust the percentage of carbon black so that "no item is inferior to the extent that it will not give adequate service."

STRIKE HOLDS UP PRODUCTION OF MILITARY TIRES

Akron O., April 21 (AP)—More than 16,000 employes were idle today as the result of a strike at the B. F. Goodrich company plant. Company and union officials reported production of military tires probably would not be resumed until Monday.

Paul W. Fuller, United States labor conciliator, said he was "making progress" at meetings between representatives of the company and CIO United Rubber Workers. The strike began yesterday when three tube workers, joined by 200 others, refused to work in protest against a new wage rate schedule, company spokesmen said. Lack of tubes for military and civilian tire production has "completely shut down" the plant.

May Petroleum Output Rate Set at All-Time High

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—The petroleum administration for war today authorized oil producing states to produce petroleum liquids at the all-time record rate of 5,198,480 barrels daily in May, 41,520 barrels a day more than the previous record authorization, fixed for April.

Jewelers Fail to Get Their Silver Quotas

Jewelry manufacturers in the Chicago area have not been able to obtain their quotas of silver altho use of the metal has been limited by the government to about 50 per cent of pre-war consumption, members of the industry said yesterday.

In some quarters reluctance of the treasury to release sizable amounts of the metal not needed for war production or monetary purposes was blamed. In others it was said the lack of man power to process the silver into forms suitable for use by jewelers and allied tradesmen was the cause of the shortage.

Boost Termed Logical

"Altho it is true there has been some improvement, the situation would be better if the treasury released some of its silver to us," one jewelry maker said.

Another said he believed the treasury was holding too much silver," and that a release of some of it would "not hurt the war program." He proposed that the jewelers "borrow some of the metal now and pay it back after the war."

Two other interests contended that the "man power situation is a more important factor than supplies." They said that the processing of silver for jewelry manufacturing is done only when processing of the metal for war production purposes is halted or interrupted for some reason. This prevents allocation of full quotas or "finished" silver, they said. Arbitrary rations have been imposed in many instances, they explained.

Get Two-Thirds of Quotas

It was estimated that jewelry makers are receiving an average of two-thirds of their quotas, and that all could use more, in some instances, two or three times as much.

One manufacturer estimated he turned down $50,000 in business last year because of the shortage, and he and several others said it has not been uncommon to delay delivery of orders four to six months. They agreed that plenty of gold was available, but said the use of plastic substitutes was negligible.

EXTEND CONTROL TO FOUR TYPES OF PHOTO PAPER

Washington, D. C., April 21 (AP)—The WPB today brought four types of sensitized photographic paper under distribution control. It announced issuance of a new limitation order, L-233-A, to make certain that military agencies receive allocated supplies and that needs of essential civilian users are met.

The order establishes control over manufacturers' deliveries for the April-June and July-September quarters of 1945. The four types are contact and enlarging paper for pictorial or tonal reproduction purposes, waterproof paper for the same purposes, paper for reproduction of V-mail letters, and photocopy or reflex copy paper for line reproduction. Exempted are blueprint, whiteprint, brownprint, ozlid, Van Dyke sensitized reproduction paper, stripping film and X-ray paper.

Authorizations to deliver photographic paper in the current quarter will be issued to manufacturers soon, WPB said. For third quarter deliveries each manufacturer will be required to file a letter with the WPB by June 15 stating the number of square feet of each type of paper he plans to sell to users in each group during that quarter to fill orders on hand.

PREDICTS FAST OUTPUT SHIFT TO APPLIANCES

Ranges and Water Heaters First

Ward R. Schafer

Limited production of appliances by Edison General Electric Appliance company will begin within three months after reconversion starts and pre-war output levels will be reached within nine months, Ward R. Schafer, vice president, said yesterday.

He explained that the first products to reach the market will be electric ranges, automatic water heaters, and dishwashers. A "trickle" of refrigerator production will start within six months after restrictions are lifted and pre-war output will be equaled within a year.

Little Price Change Expected

Schafer said he believed consumer prices of his company's products probably will be less than 10 per cent higher than those of 1942, even tho the company will pay higher wages, because of increased production efficiency and lower distribution costs.

Schafer termed prospects good for sales of garbage disposal units and automatic dishwashers. The latter reached full development just before the war and their price will be substantially lower or about $200. "As volume increases the price may drop to $150 within three years after the war," he added.

"The automatic dishwasher saves more labor than any other home appliance," he said. "One deterrent to its sale before the war was that the dealer paid it little attention."

Farms to Offer Market

Expansion of rural electrification will provide a wide market, he said, and many distributors are increasing rural outlets because the farm more than any other place needs labor saving devices.

"Edison General Electric has no immediate plans for new products, but some thinking has been done along that line," Schafer said. "Anything in the way of new products would be in lines that would fit in with present appliances."

The company's dual temperature refrigerator, he explained, will be made in one model, providing eight cubic feet of normal refrigeration and two of zero temperature for freezing foods, and equipped with two compressors. The price has not been determined, but it will be "fairly" close to that of the standard refrigerator.

REQUESTS BOND OF 12 MILLION IN PENNROAD SUIT

Philadelphia, Pa., April 21 (AP)—A 12 million dollar bond must be posted before Federal Judge Guy K. Bard will order a halt in a proposed 15 million dollar settlement of claims in litigation between the Pennroad company and the Pennsylvania Railroad company, Bard announced.

Bard, sitting in United States District court of Delaware, ruled the bond must be posted to protect Pennroad in event the railroad withdraws its offer. In asking the restraining order Mrs. Matilda J. Felsman of New York, owner of seven shares of Pennroad, contended the 15 million dollar offer is "grossly inadequate."

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

IDENTIFY BONES FROM HAMMOND AS FIVE INDIANS

Five skeletons unearthed three weeks ago in the Robertsdale area of Hammond are those of four adults and one juvenile, believed to be Indians buried at least 100 years —possibly 150 years ago, Dr. Harry Brandman, deputy coroner of Lake county, announced yesterday after receiving a report from the anthropology department of the University of Chicago.

The report to Dr. Brandman by Dr. W. M. Krogman of the university faculty stated that the adult skeletons were of three men and one woman, three in their 20s and one 40 to 50 years old. The juvenile was about 12 years of age.

Dr. Brandman said that on the basis of this report he is convinced that workman who unearthed the skeletons were working in an old Indian burial ground. First discovery of the bones brought reports of recent gangland slayings.

A friendly home in a friendly neighborhood, convenient to schools, stores, transportation. $10,500.
DISTINCTIVE in design and excellently planned is this nearly new colonial style brick residence in finest location. The 13x23 ft. living rm. has an antique Italian marble fireplace and built-in bookcases flank the French doors leading to the garden. There is a beautiful dining rm. and powder rms. The streamlined kitchen is complete even to an electric dishwasher and a many-windowed circular breakfast nook. A gracious slate floored hallway and open staircase leads to 3 excellent bedrms., one with extra dressing rm., cedar closet, and sun deck. There is a dream of a tile bath with modern square tub. A wood paneled rumpus rm. with fireplace, automatic water heater, softener, incinerator, low-cost oil heat, all add to the appeal of this fine home. Priced at $22,000.
PRICE REDUCED TO $13,000.
This California ranch type home is a distinguished example of the best in modern architecture. The 24 ft. living rm. has a beamed ceiling, wood paneled walls and a huge floor length plate glass window overlooking the screened terrace and landscaped garden. Each of the 3 spacious bedrms. has large corner picture windows. There's an attractive cream and black bathrm. with shower, natural finish wood cabinet kitchen, and unusual closet and storage space. So exceptionally well insulated the gas heat costs but $100 yearly.

CHICAGO WON'T BUDGE ON MAY 1, EX-MOVING DAY

Homes 99.9% Occupied; Leases Renewed

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor.]

May 1, once Chicago's great moving day, will be just another day on the calendar, with practically no shifting of families except in cases of urgency, a survey disclosed yesterday. No one will give up his flat because the family upstairs makes too much noise. The 1945 flat dweller will take any kind of neighboring annoyance and like it because that's about all he can do. There's no place to move to.

Chicago is 99.9 per cent occupied, realtors said, and 107 per cent occupied if double and triple occupancy of some areas is considered, said Charles Huggett, executive secretary of the Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders' association.

5,000 Leases to Be Renewed

Families in 5,000 apartments managed by Swan-Lorish, Inc., all indicated that they intended renewing their leases. This is the first time in the history of the realty firm, said Fred M. Lorish, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, that such a situation has developed. During the years 1935 to 1940 approximately one out of every five apartment dwellers with leases expiring in the spring changed living quarters, he said.

"Each year fewer families have replied that they intended to move," Lorish said. "Last year the ratio had dropped to one family out of every 100 whose lease expired."

Must Store Furniture

"The only thing they can do is store their furniture and move temporarily into loop hotels, which have some space available since conventions were cut out," he said. "There isn't a flat to be had anywhere and the outlying residential hotels are packed full."

Daniel Healy, secretary of the Movers' association of Chicago, said that the federal rent freeze also has kept tenants in their flats. With no chance of landlords getting more rent or tenants paying less, everybody's sitting tight, Healy said.

Utility corporations also agreed that there would be little residential shifting on May 1. The Illinois Bell Telephone company reported that so far this month it has received only 2,657 "move orders."

1940 Last Normal Year

This total compares with 6,140 for the same period in 1940, which was called the last normal year, and with 3,184 last year. The number of telephones in operation in Chicago, however, is now at the highest point in the city's history—1,171,593. There are 56,257 more in use now than a year ago.

The Commonwealth Edison company said it had received 5,114 orders to turn on electricity as compared with 9,888 in 1940 and 5,571 last year.

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company said "turn on" orders were so much less than in previous years that they "amounted to practically nothing."

Break Ground for G. I. Home

Ground has been broken for the above home in Green Valley, Lombard, one of the first two G. I. homes to built in Du Page county. Designed by H. Viktor Hoyer, president of Green Valley Homes, Inc., it will cost $10,900 for house and lot, of which $900 was down payment and the balance a $10,000 mortgage. Priorities were obtained thru H-3 (service men's homes) national housing agency program.

7 TAX PAYMENTS OR REPORTS ARE REQUIRED IN MAY

Seven Chicago or Illinois tax payments or reports are due in May, the Association of Commerce told business men and property owners yesterday. On May 1 Chicago business licenses must be renewed, and first instalments of 1944 real estate and personal property taxes must be paid. Also due on that day are Illinois capital stock tax returns. May 10 is the last day for employers who deducted more than $100 in withholding taxes in April to pay the amount into an authorized depositary. On May 15 Illinois retailers must file and pay April occupation tax, and on May 31 the federal excise tax return and payment for April is due.

BILLS REALTY WILL MOVE ITS LOOP OFFICES

Bills Realty, Inc., and Bills Mortgage company will move their offices next Saturday from 134 S. La Salle st., where they have been for the last 15 years, to larger quarters on the second floor of the Westminster building, 110 S. Dearborn st., Benjamin F. Bills, chairman of both companies, said yesterday. F. W. Bills is president of both. In the new offices a gallery will be provided for the exhibit of various types of homes to be built in subdivision properties the firms are developing in Northbrook, Glenview, and other suburbs.

Osteopaths Lease New Headquarters in Loop

National headquarters of the American Osteopathic association, now in the Michigan Square building, will be moved on May 1 to the City Hall Square building, 139 N. Clark st., Dr. R. C. McCaughan, executive secretary, announced yesterday. Nearly double the present space has been leased. The entire 20th floor will be occupied.

Arthur E. Fossier, builder and treasurer of the Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders' association, was nominated for president of that organization to succeed John Cummings Lindop. Other nominees on the only ticket in the field are: First vice president, Edmund J. Sullivan; second vice president, Charles E. Joern; secretary, Laurance H. Mills; treasurer, Nathan Manilow. New directors named are: Robert J. Bluett, Louis C. Burgener, Roy Davis, Joseph B. Ford, Hilding Johnson, and Louis Schorsch. Election will be held on May 8.

R. E. Stritch has been appointed assistant district director of the federal housing administration for Illinois, Edward J. Kelly, district director announced yesterday. Stritch has been associated with FHA since 1934. He was executive assistant in the Memphis office for six years and in a similar capacity in the Chicago office since 1940. Prior to his FHA work he was in the mortgage loan business in Memphis. He lives at 7821 Chappel.

Four Leases Negotiated on Near No. Side

The former home of Robert Hall McCormick at the northwest corner of Rush and Erie sts. was leased yesterday by Vernon-Stephens-Hall, recently organized advertising art, magazine illustration, and photography organization, thru W. F. Little of Hogan & Farwell. Members of the leasing firm are David T. Vernon, Barry Stephens, Tom Hall, and Reno Biondi.

Sidney D. Bayer, operating as Franklin-Bayer, the Linen Shop, at 900 N. Michigan av., leased from the Cook estate the store at 671 N. Michigan for occupancy as soon as remodeling is completed. Marlene, Inc., children's wearing apparel shop at 908 N. Michigan, leased the store at 675 N. Michigan from the Cook estate and will remodel the space. Everett Cook of the Cook estate and Little were brokers in both deals.

Robert T. Frycek leased the old residence at 874 N. Wabash av. from the Lake Shore National bank, trustee, and will remodel it into offices, said Little.

EVANSTON FLAT BUILDING SOLD FOR $400,000

The 42 flat building at the southwest corner of Sheridan rd. and South blvd., Evanston, yesterday was sold for approximately $400,000 by the American National Bank and Trust company, trustee, to R. E. Thyken, thru Earl E. Shipley, broker.

Garage Property on E. Erie Is Purchased for $45,000

The property at 405-23 E. Erie st., formerly occupied by THE TRIBUNE as a garage was sold yesterday by Frank Gustafson to Cathrine Kuhlman for $45,000. Seibert & Daniels was attorney for the seller. Frank Schofield represented the buyer. The property is 245x109½ feet.

VILLAGE TO RAZE GAY RIVERSIDE HOTEL OF 1870

The old and famed Riverside hotel, one of the first buildings constructed in Riverside and the only hotel the community ever had, has been purchased by the village and will be torn down to make room for a new building to house municipal property, George L. Opper, village manager, said yesterday.

Constructed in 1870, the hotel consisted of three frame buildings, two of which were on the south side of Riverside rd. They were connected by an enclosed bridge with the third section of the hotel, located on the north side of the road on the bank of the Des Plaines river at a bend.

North Section Becomes Home

The south section, with is 124 rooms, burned 40 years ago, and the spacious north section, which was the refectory, was closed. Later it was purchased by E. A. Ferguson, general agent for the Aetna Life Insurance company, Chicago, and was used as their home. Mr. Ferguson died six years ago and his widow, a former New Orleans beauty, lived alone until her death two months ago.

Opened for occupancy in 1870 by the owners—William T. Allen, Seneca Kimbark and Henry Seelye—the hotel was filled immediately.

Guests were amazed by the outside rooms, a fireplace and running water in each. In front of the north building, which served as the entrance, stood a circular pavilion in which an Italian band played each afternoon and evening and for the weekly balls. Visitors rode bicycles, drove horses and buggies and took excursion trains provided on the Burlington railroad.

An Elaborate Refectory

The refectory, a part of which served as the Ferguson home for 25 years, contained 40 rooms, including parlors, cardrooms, dining rooms, a kitchen, and a large ballroom. There are no records to indicate the date of sale, but sometime after the three original owners sold the property to Charles May, a Riverside butcher, the hotel was closed.

The land on which the hotel originally was built sold for $30,000, but the building and land were purchased by the village from the Ferguson estate for $10,000. Opper said that the foundation, said to be six feet wide and of brick, would be used as the base for the new one story city building.

The hotel will be used for the last time this week, when it serves as a depot for the campaign to collect old clothing for shipment to liberated countries, Opper said.

Post-War Legion Post

Proposed home of Billy Caldwell Post No. 806, American Legion, designed by Architect Arthur J. Sir. It may be erected on Central av., north of Devon av., in the Edgebrook district. It will cost an estimated $100,000.

INTEREST RATES ON MORTGAGES AVERAGE 5 PCT.

Five per cent was the prevailing interest charge on real estate mortgages and trust deeds recorded in Cook county during 1944 for which a definite rate was specified, a survey by the Chicago Mortgage Bankers association showed yesterday.

The survey covered 29,126 recordings of which 13,215 indicated an interest rate of 5 per cent, 2,545 at 4 per cent rate, 2,433 at 4½ per cent, 1,123 at 6 per cent, 258 mortgages at 3 per cent, 141 at 3½ per cent, and 544 at 5½ per cent. The remaining 8,687 indicated that interest payments were included in the mortgage note and no rate was specified.

William G. Nelson, association president said he did not expect any marked change in interest rates soon.

SOUTH SIDE TRANSACTION

A $45,000 loan, 15 years, at 4½ per cent, was negotiated yesterday by Dovenmuehle, Inc., on the East View hotel, 4943 Lake Park av.

BUY 3,354 LOTS IN MARKHAM FOR POST-WAR SALE

Title to 3,354 lots in the village of Markham was conveyed yesterday by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to the Lakeview Trust and Savings bank, trustee, for $110,000, subject to unpaid general taxes and special assessments running back to 1928. The lots are held in trust for Meyer, Louis W., and David Gensburg of the Genco Manufacturing company, maker of radio war equipment, who expect to market the land after the war. This is said to be the largest number of subdivision lots to be sold in one group in the Chicago area in many years. Ralph D. Price was broker and Philip D. Hoffman, attorney for the buyers.

The original 940 acre subdivision of Markham was laid out in 1925 by Frank Croissant and associates. It was taken over by the title company thru bankruptcy proceedings in 1934. Starting in 1936 the Fred J. Walsh company, as selling agents for the trustees, built to order 500 homes.

S. Michigan Av. Corner Purchased for $70,000

The four story office building at the northwest corner of Michigan av. and 11th st., 56 by 127 feet, was sold by the estate of Margaretta Stearns to an undisclosed buyer for $70,000 cash thru Dibblee & Manierre. Title was taken by Downer McCord, attorney

JAPAN'S FATAL WEAKNESS!

Natural Deficiencies Illustrate Fallacy of Her Military Program

By GLENN THOMAS TREWARTHA
(Professor of Geography at the University of Wisconsin)

NATURE did not cut the resource pattern of Japan on a scale befitting a great power. Small in area; hilly and mountainous in terrain, with a minimum of low, level land fit for agriculture, and sparingly endowed with many of the basic economic materials, Japan in her climb to a position among the world powers has been beset with many handicaps growing out of this resource poverty. That these deficiencies and lacks in natural endowments did not prevent her from attaining rank as a world power only serves to illustrate the fallacy of the doctrine of environmentalism. On the other hand, she has not been able to escape the effects of her scanty natural heritage, for military power and a measure of economic greatness have been achieved in resource-poor Japan only by sacrificing the well-being of her people. The country's physical endowments scarcely permit an abundance of both butter and guns.

The natural endowments and resources of a nation do not determine the degree and character of its economic development. It is the people of a country who chart its destiny, altho, to be sure, the physical environment may set certain limits and offer certain handicaps to be surmounted. Surface, climate, forests, soils, minerals, etc., are, however, the tools with which a people fashions its civilization, and these elements of the physical earth are therefore of great national importance.

According to Japanese legend, their mountainous archipelago resulted from the heroic gesture of one of their gods, who thrust his heavenly jeweled spear into the sea, and upon its withdrawal the shower of drops that fell from the spear were transformed into the dragon-shaped island group of Nippon.

Its actual origin is scarcely less spectacular, however, since the rugged islands of Nippon were in reality thrust upward from mighty ocean deeps, for they are but the rugged crests of submarine mountains which have risen from the floor of the Pacific ocean. Only a few score miles off the eastern side of Japan are submarine trenches 20,000 to 30,000 feet deep, while the country's mountains rise more than 10,000 feet above sea level.

Where there are such great differences in elevation within small lateral distances, enormous strains and stresses are developed, with the result that these areas become weak and unstable portions of the earth's crust. Like the rest of the unstable and mountainous circum-Pacific margins, the Japanese islands are an area of numerous volcanoes and frequent earthquakes. Japan has on the average about 1,500 earthquakes annually, or approximately four shocks a day. Since 1596 there have been 21 major earthquakes, each of which has cost the lives of more than a thousand persons.

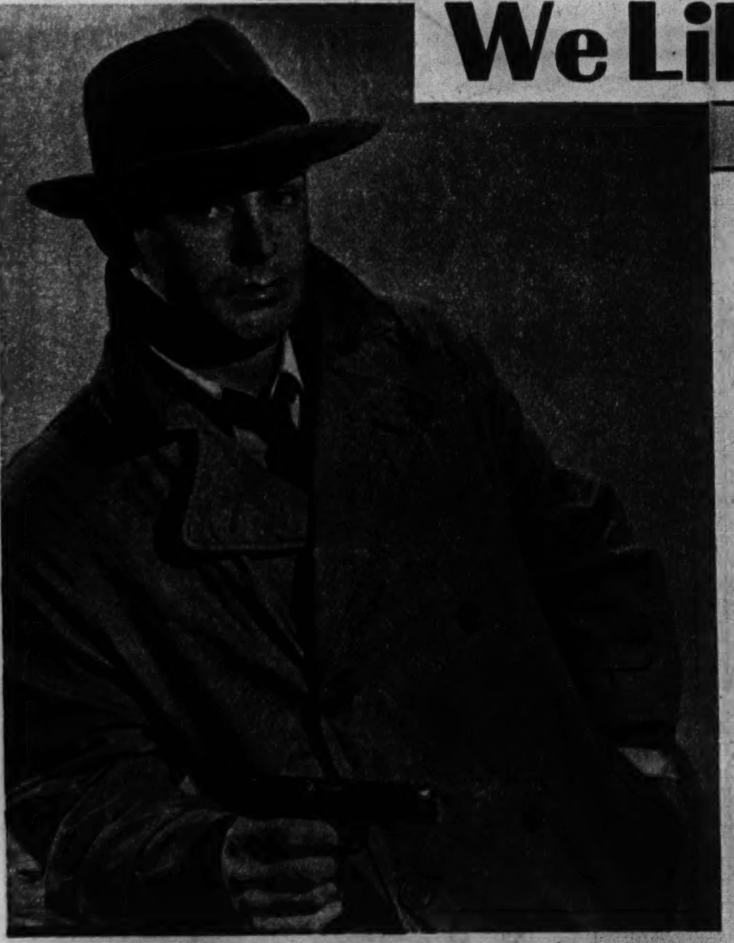
Japan proper has an area of only about 147,000 square miles. This is the size of the state of Montana and somewhat less than that of California. A core of moderately rugged hill and mountain land forms a large part of the area of each of the major islands. Seventy-five per cent of the country's surface is hill land whose average slopes exceed 15 degrees and is hence unfit for normal cultivation. Only 16 per cent of the total area is actually under cultivation. Most of the rugged, hilly interior is forest or waste land.

Extensive lowlands are lacking, and those that do exist are small river-deposited alluvial plains—deltas, flood plains, and fans. A large majority of the lowlands lie along the seaward margins of the mountains and therefore have frontage upon the ocean. And since most of the Japanese people live on plains, it becomes clear that a large percentage of the population must be situated very near the sea. For Japan the seaway is a very important local highway.

The largest lowland of Nippon is the Kwanto or Tokyo plain, whose area is about 5,000 square miles, or approximately six Wisconsin or Illinois counties. The other relatively large plains are usually from 500 to 800 square miles in extent, but much the larger number are greatly smaller. Seldom are the plains continuous along the coast for any distance, because of the frequent interruption by spurs and larger masses of hard rock hill land that extend down to the sea margins.

The mountain streams which descend from the interior highlands to form the plains are short and swift. Of little use for transport, except possibly at their extreme seaward ends, where in the vicinity of large cities they may have been dredged, the rivers are nevertheless of unusual importance as sources of hydroelectric power and of (Continued on page four.)



Alan Ladd tops the Paramount fan mail list as a result of such roles as that of the Raven in "This Gun for Hire."

We Like Them Good and Bad!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

Hollywood

HOW evil can you get? The answer seems to be—go as far as you like. Look at the cinematic cads who have become idols of millions all because they gave out with that certain schmaltz when they smiled and got tough.

Squish a grapefruit in a lady's pan and become an international idol; tell her to go you-know-where and she'll cling to you like poison ivy the rest of her days. Pull that chair from under an old aunt and win the cheers of the mob. Frighten the wits out of Ingrid Bergman, Joan Fontaine, or who have you. Fight the frails, fool 'em, kick 'em in the teeth. That's right, boys, be a gold plated heel. You won't be sorry. There's fame in being infamous; success in being snide; luxury in being a louse.

Alan Ladd, who hauls home more fan mail than the rest of the Paramount boys, collected his claque thru rugged, hair-on-the-chest snarls and being quick on the draw. He was an overnight sensation in the role of the Raven, with more complexes than a strip tease star has "grinds." "This Gun for Hire" put Ladd in the top money class, and he's still there.

"Mask of Dimitrios" brought immediate celebrity to Zachary Scott, who played the most baleful bum possible. He wasn't even nice to his mother. Now Scott has another opportunity in "Hold Autumn in Your Hand," altho this time he's an upstanding, gentle Texas farmer with a love for the land and for Betty Field, who plays opposite him.

But if it hadn't been for superb villainy in the previous picture the producers wouldn't even have thought of him.

"Evil appeals to the romantic," said Scott, who's right back being swinish in "Strange Honeymoon," since he's finished "Hold Autumn in Your Hand."

"It's human nature to want to kick over the traces and be unconventional. Don't ask me why. But so few people have the nerve. Cases of wishful thinking are universal. There are far more biographies about bad boys than about good ones. Evil somehow is regarded as colorful and evildoers are thought to have intestinal fortitude for daring to be what they are. Actually it doesn't take nearly as much nerve to push a gun in the face of your neighbor as it does for your neighbor to face it.

"The public seems to find escapism in pictures about evil, and the sinners themselves are looked upon as fascinating because they're dangerous, and danger appeals to the multitude because it offers respite from routine," says the new devil hero, Scott.

"Bad boys are romantic. They capture the imagination. They're remembered long after the doer of good deeds, I'm afraid. So an actor who plays these roles can't help but find popularity."

Altho "Public Enemy" was produced years ago, that touching sequence wherein James Cagney wallops Mae Clarke with a grapefruit is still recalled but lovingly by the baddies. At the time Cagney received loads of letters from maidens requesting the pleasure of being socked by him—"just like you did to the girl in that gangster movie." Cagney did not oblige, it might be added hastily.

But that performance definitely established Cagney in motion pictures. Today he's starring in independent productions produced by his brother Bill, and has just finished a new rugged portrayal in "Blood on the Sun."

Clark Gable owes his start to dirty doings in a sagebrush thriller, "The Painted Desert." The picture might be out of sight and out of mind, but the tang of Clark's portrayal still clings.

Gable hadn't even been heard of when he was hired for that job. But with the release of "The Painted Desert" all worries ceased for Gable. He snagged an M-G-M contract and everlasting fame.

From Pasadena Playhouse obscurity to a dynamic bit as a downed Nazi aviator who provided Greer Garson a few horrible minutes in "Mrs. Miniver" is the tale of Helmut Dantine.

His name was on every casting director's lips once his nasty Nazi interpretation was seen. Warners cornered the newcomer's signature on a term deal and he's been causing the heroines panic ever since. All of which hasn't affected Dantine with the girls of the world. They think he's just divine, even when in an exuberant moment he bit and scratched a few females in real life. He was locked up for his pains, but was smilingly released next day, with all the ladies saying it was all a great mistake, and Warners, I'm told, telling him his contract was over if he repeated. That, I'm afraid, was a more powerful weapon than being put in jail.

Once in the dead long ago, Bogey was one of those tennis racket juveniles who bounced in and out of drawing room sets with jaunty Rachel Crothers quips. Bogey had a crack at movies in the early sound days, but then gave it up to go back to New York. It took his sinister killer in "The Petrified Forest," with Leslie Howard, to put him over with fans. Those cast iron tactics of Bogey are still thrilling them. Look at his popularity. He's really a grown up Dead End Kid with tricks.

As a menace in "Ship Ahoy"—a Red Skelton conglomeration of nonsense—John Hodiak arose from the multitude of contractees. That he-man quality brought him "Lifeboat" opposite Tallulah Bankhead. The rest has been gravy for Master Hodiak, whose M-G-M future is really bright.

Gene Kelly realizes the value of being a heel. From being a personable no-good in "Pal Joey," a Broadway musical, Kelly attracted Hollywood's eye. His introduction to the camera was as a guy you loved hating in "For Me and My Gal." What a dirty life he gave Judy Garland! And what heartbreaks he caused among the onlookers, judging by the rise-and-shine story of Gene Kelly ever since.

That good looking Irishman, Barry Sullivan, would like to get his hands on another heavy role at Paramount. He was doing only fair to middlin' when the studio loaned him to Harry Sherman, who wanted him to play a devil-may-care cowboy scoundrel in "Woman of the Town."

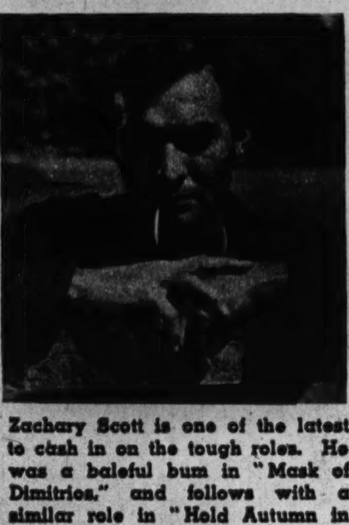
Sullivan went into the preview showing at Inglewood completely unknown. At the end of the show, the manager had to call the cops to help him thru the mob of ga-ga girls. Another villainy opportunity in the still unreleased "And Now Tomorrow" has led to exciting doings in his behalf by studio execs.

The champion nasty character of them all is George Sanders, who saunters back and forth between the devil and the angels. George's hateful dandy in "Lloyds of London" brought him to our notice. It was his first big splash. He's been splashing ever since, and I don't mean in a bathtub, either.

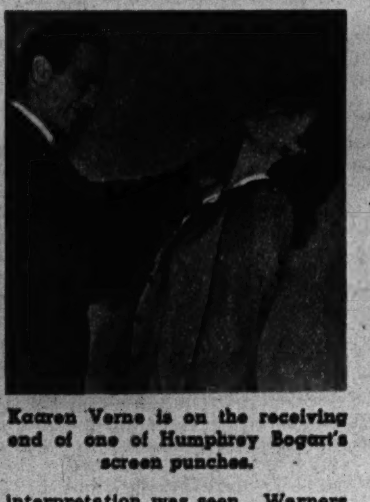
Louis Hayward's vividness as the disturber of Ann Harding's peace of mind in "Flame Within" served as an excellent introduction to Hollywood. Now that Hayward's out of the marines, he's returned to the films, and is up to no good in "Ten Little Indians."

Yes, it pays to be bad.

Jimmy Cagney got an early start on the business of socking women in films with this grapefruit scene, involving Mae Clarke, in "Public Enemy."



Zachary Scott is one of the latest to cash in on the tough roles. He was a baleful bum in "Mask of Dimitrios," and follows with a similar role in "Hold Autumn in Your Hands."



Kaaren Verne is on the receiving end of one of Humphrey Bogart's screen punches.

Dennis Morgan did this to Bette Davis in "In This Our Life."

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Baton Rouge, La.

THE HISTORY of L. S. U. has been somewhat hectic since 1859, when the state legislature of Louisiana, after the delay and political bickering that usually attended such projects in education, actually got around to the opening of a seminary of learning for young men, ordaining that it should be a "literary and scientific institution, with a military form of government." Its site then was Alexandria, and its first president, ironically enough in the light of later events, was West Pointer William Tecumseh Sherman, who served it well, resigned with regret when the state seceded, and was its stanch friend until his death.

Its site now is the capital, Baton Rouge. It is no longer a strictly military seminary for the state sons, but a co-educational institution, with the unwieldy official title of the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College. It is a large university, an important one, and, after its occasional and troubled baptisms by political fire thru the years, a serene one. And it has by all odds one of the finest plants in the United States.

One of the handsomest, too. When it began to build on its present site two miles from the heart of the city it built magnificently. Huey Long's benevolence to his state university was lavish, mixed tho his motives may have been; today the efficiency and beauty of its campus and the scope and character of the university's service to the state are impressive. It operates two junior colleges, one at Monroe and one at Lake Charles, and a school of medicine at New Orleans.

All its other divisions—arts and sciences, agriculture, commerce, education, law, engineering, chemistry and physics, music, etc.—are on the 5,000 acre campus two miles from the heart of the city, most of them in buildings grouped around two broad quadrangles and almost all of them in a harmonious, bright-roofed Italian style of architecture. Its dormitories are exceptionally fine; so is its outdoor theater, stone benches sloping down to a reflection pool which mirrors the moss-draped oaks which are its green-gray backdrop.

In one sense L. S. U.'s campus has probably never looked less military than it does now. There is a basic R. O. T. C. program for undergraduate men, but the school is no longer swarming with army uniforms, as it was in the recent years when it maintained on the campus, among other war projects, an army administration school, a specialized training and reclassification unit, and a large A. S. T. unit. Now there are only a small number of medics and dents in uniform.

Veterans are filtering back, of course; there are now more than 150 on the campus. And L. S. U., as always, has a very large contingent of Latin American students, probably the largest in the country. One of its newer buildings is a beautiful Spanish Pan-American house for men students, accommodating an equal number of Latin Americans and boys from the United States who are taking courses in the field of Latin American affairs.

But for the most part at L. S. U., as everywhere else, women are in the majority. There are 2,000 on the campus now, and there would be more if housing were available. For the first time Reveille, the student newspaper, is staffed entirely by women students, even to its sports editor, Patsy Livingston, a junior in journalism, who heads her column "A Skirt at the Sports Desk." But no one will be happier than the girls to see it restored to its pre-war balance.

'HAM AND' as LUXURY

By MARY MEADE

WHAT is the object in the center of the larger picture accompanying this article? Why, it's a slice of ham. H-A-M, remember? Ham used to be one of our favorite meats in the days when we could just call up the market and say, "Send me a five pound standing rib roast, two pounds of lamb chops, and a couple of center cut slices of ham, Joe." Ham and eggs was our favorite American breakfast dish.

There's still some ham to be found outside of black markets. A center cut slice costs 12 red points a pound, but you may be able to get shank slices for five points or butt end slices for eight points. When you do have a chance to clutch a slice of ham and hurry home with it, resolve to treat it more tenderly than you've ever treated ham before.

Ham and eggs is a dish that deserves to star at luncheon or dinner these days. It deserves more than the customary hurry of breakfast eating.

Here's how to broil that precious slice of ham: Place the meat two to three inches from the broiler heat — the thicker the slice the farther from the heat. Keep the heat moderate and turn the slice as soon as the fat and meat have browned. In pan broiling keep the heat low and turn the slice occasionally to insure even cooking. Pre-cooked or canned ham needs only to be heated thru. Fry the eggs in ham drippings for best flavor.

If ham and eggs is served as a "brunch" specialty, corn sticks, margarine, jelly, and plenty of coffee are the only other needed accompaniments besides the usual fruity introduction to the meal.

If ham and eggs is a luncheon or supper dish, add a green vegetable and perhaps a salad and follow with a simple dessert.

When ham was plentiful, ham and eggs was a breakfast dish; now it stars at heartier meals.

All right, so there wasn't any ham to be had. Take the frankfurters, then, and fix them up in a fancy casserole with kidney beans and wine flavoring.

KIDNEY BEANS SUPREME (Serves six)

- 6 cups cooked kidney beans
- ¼ cup margarine
- 6 small green onions, chopped
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- ½ cup celery, chopped
- 6 frankfurters cut in ¾ inch slices
- 1 can tomato paste
- 1 cup claret, burgundy, or other red table wine
- Salt, pepper

Melt margarine and saute onions, green pepper, celery, and frankfurters until lightly browned. Add tomato paste and wine and cook slowly about 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Arrange beans in greased casserole. Pour wine sauce over beans. Bake at 350 degrees about one hour.

A pound of dried kidney beans makes six cups or a little more when cooked. That is the weight to use for the preceding recipe. To cook the beans, simmer gently until tender in salted water to cover.

BOLOGNA CASSEROLE
(Serves four)

- 1 pound bologna, sliced or cubed
- 2 cups sliced or cubed raw potatoes
- 4 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons margarine
- 2 cups milk

Arrange bologna, potatoes, flour, salt, and pepper in alternate layers in a greased casserole. Dot with margarine and cover with milk. Bake 1 hour and 15 minutes in a moderate oven, 350 degrees.—MRS. MADELINE PAGAC, 1630 N. 20th st., Milwaukee, Wis.

Japan's Fatal Weakness

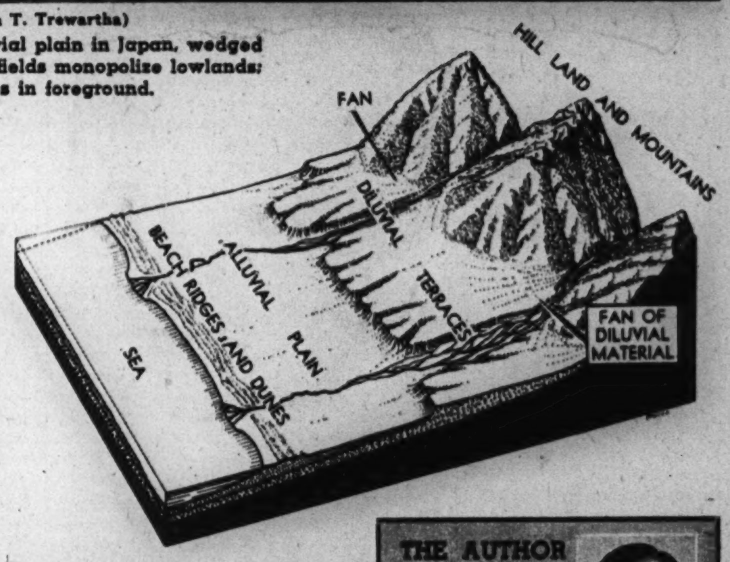
irrigation water for the rice fields on the lowlands.

The size of the islands comprising Japan precludes the existence of large streams. Of 24 principal rivers eight are less than 100 miles in length and only two are more than 200 miles. Necessarily the volume of such streams is small. The restricted areas and the steep slopes of their drainage basins cause the rivers to respond quickly to local rains and hence to vary greatly in flow. They often flood seriously after heavy rains. Characteristically the rivers are on the plains rather than in them; that is, the stream channels and their levees are the highest parts of the plains and the land slopes downward away from the rivers. Such elevated streams are both asset and liability—an asset in that a simple gravity system ordinarily serves to distribute their waters for irrigation purposes over the rice fields on the plain; a liability in that they often break their levees in time of flood and do an inordinate amount of damage.

The outer or seaward margins of the alluvial plains are commonly flanked by belts of sandy beach ridges and dunes, arranged in rows parallel with the coast. Between the lines of dunes or beach ridges are linear troughs, most of them wet and swampy. Many of the sandy ridges have been planted with pine forest to prevent the blowing of the sand and the migration of the dunes. Where cultivated, these sandy coastal ridges are devoted not to irrigated rice, but to such unirrigated crops as vegetables, winter grains, and mulberry. The highest and the widest belt of dunes is to be found on the Japan sea side facing Asia, where the winter winds from out of the continent are unusually strong.



Representative arrangement of coastal terrain feature of Japan. Diluvial terraces are remnants of what were formerly sea level plains that have been elevated.

Altho Japan is insular in character, its climate is not moderate like that of the ocean. Quite the contrary, it has a relatively severe climate considering the latitudes in which it is located. In this respect it is unlike the British Isles which have a mild and moderate marine climate, given to them by the westerly winds from off the Atlantic ocean.

Japan, on the other hand, lies on the eastern or leeward side of the world's largest land mass where a monsoon system of winds prevails. In winter cold, dry air masses of continental origin flow out from Asia over Japan, while in summer warm, tropical air masses originating over the seas to the south and east of Asia move over Japan into the continent. Relatively cold winters and hot, humid summers are the consequence. Extending from about 31 to 45 degrees north latitude, Japan has a range of latitude comparable with that along the American Atlantic seaboard from about Georgia to Maine and her climates are relatively similar to those along the Atlantic seaboard between these two limits.

Winters in Japan are distinctly colder than is normal for those latitudes, altho it is to be expected that there will be marked contrasts between the far north and the extreme south. Thus Hokkaido, the northern island, has January temperatures of about 15° to 21°, which are comparable with those experienced in south central Wisconsin or in central New England. Mid-Japan in about the latitude of Tokyo is like Virginia or North Carolina with a January mean temperature of around 36° or 38°. In the extreme southern part of Kyushu the January temperatures of 43° to 45° resemble those of the American cotton belt in Alabama and Georgia.

High temperatures combined with high humidity make the summer weather of much of Japan extremely sultry and oppressive. July and August mean temperatures in central and southwestern Japan range from 77° to 80°. This approximates tropical heat. The northern part of the main island, Honshu, has summer month temperatures a little above and below 75°. This resembles the American corn belt in central Illinois. In Hokkaido, the northern island, the July and August temperatures are under 70° so that the climate is like that of Maine or central Minnesota. Summers are particularly cool and foggy in coastal eastern Hokkaido, which is washed by the cool Oyashio current. Normally there are only 120 to 130 days between killing frosts in central and east-

I REVISIT THE SCENES OF MY "JOURNEY UNDERGROUND"

By FLIGHT OFFICER DAVID G. PROSSER

Flight Officer David G. Prosser, whose thrilling story, "Journey Underground," is appearing serially in The Chicago Daily Tribune—to be concluded tomorrow—has had the good fortune to return to France, the scene of his adventures as a fugitive airman, and to visit some of the members of the French underground who befriended him and made it possible for him to escape to England by way of Spain.

In the first article of this two part series Prosser described his return to Paris and the welcome accorded him by his French friends, who at great personal risk hid him from the Germans, provided him with food at great expense to themselves, and finally engineered his escape across the border into Spain.

Characters mentioned in these articles are among the chief ones of the story appearing in serial form in The Daily Tribune. They include:

PERE MAURICE—Head of the Maurice family of a suburb of Paris, which hid Prosser and another fugitive airman, Herk, for 53 days in their home.

MERE MAURICE—His wife.

LOUIS—Son-in-law of the Maurices.

MME. MARIE—A Belgian woman who helped Prosser on his going to Paris from the country shortly after he had been forced to bail out of his plane.

MERE LOUISE AND MARCEAU—Country folk with whom Prosser lived after he dropped in France and before he went to Paris.

THE SECOND evening I spent at the Maurices' some friends, a middle-aged man and his wife, called on us. The woman had been an active member of the underground, and she told us how she and two other friends had been caught by the Gestapo and put into a prison outside Versailles just before the allied landings in France. She stayed there all thru July and August, when large numbers of political prisoners were being deported to Germany. Her friends were taken away on Aug. 18. She was scheduled to leave the next day, but the American advance to Versailles stopped the deportation of prisoners and our forces set her free shortly afterward. If liberation has lost its meaning for many people, it never will for this woman.

No word has come from her underground friends (all communications between political deportees, conscripted workers, and prisoners in Germany and their families in France had ceased to function). These deportees left as they were dressed—in summer clothes. In view of the present clothing shortage and the fact that they were allowed no parcels, they must have suffered greatly during this hard winter.

Her husband joined in the conversation to give us a description of the Germans' actions in their quarter at the time of the liberation. Altho the F. F. I. held most of the residential section of this suburb, the Wehrmacht was firmly entrenched in the center of town and particularly so at the Chateau de Vincennes, where they held a fairly large number of hostages. On two or three occasions during the fighting some of these hostages were executed. Then toward the end the Germans blew up part of the chateau—the library, I believe.

In those confused days German tanks cruised thru the streets machine-gunning—sometimes at random, sometimes at the partisans. There were barricades in all the roads, but no one in the room spoke of much street fighting as having taken place. Several persons had been killed in the Bois de Vincennes when these tanks shot into it au hasard.

When the French occupied the chateau they found the bodies of their dead countrymen who had been killed. From some eyes had been torn out and teeth extracted. Other corpses showed similar signs of incredible barbarity. The man had described these incidents, and when he stopped speaking a short silence fell over the group. It was interrupted by Mere Maurice, who said, "Les boches did many terrible things when they left."

The husband of the woman who had been in prison said, "I'm afraid the Americans are too good to the Germans—that is, to the prisoners."

Only that morning I had read in the Paris press that German prisoners of war in United States prison camps in France were given chocolates and oranges. The writer of this article ended: "Surely the Geneva convention does not require the issuing of oranges and chocolates to these Germans. It is a difficult action to justify when French mothers and babies are in dire need of these foods."

Pere Maurice changed the subject by telling me about the people who had lived next door to us. They were found out to be collaborators. German soldiers often drove up to the house at night to see them, a father and his daughter.

"You would have been very nervous had you known they were there, n'est-ce pas, David," le Pere said. Mme. Maurice answered for me, saying that naturally I would have been and that she had been scared herself when she heard this news. Just after the liberation the F. F. I. arrested the father and cut off the girl's hair; nothing more had been heard of them.

I asked Pere Maurice what he thought of the F. F. I. raids and arrests—were most of them just, or had many been arbitrary? He said the F. F. I. had been just in most cases, but admitted that many innocent people were arrested—most of whom, however, were released shortly afterward.

On the second day Louis took me into Paris. Starting out early in the morning, I hoped we would have time enough for the short trip to the north of the city where Mere Louise and Marceau lived. They were the people with whom I first stayed after I was shot down. We went to the railway station and waited about 50 minutes for the train to leave. When it still had not gone by the end of that time, and as it probably would have lost more time in starting and en route, we would not have had the chance to see my friends. A rail trip I made later during my stay in France convinced me that we were right—in one hour I traveled 10 miles.

After abandoning our expedition to the country Louis took me for a long walk and shopping tour thru the capital. We passed many of the famous Parisian clothing stores. I was surprised to see the shop windows decorated so smartly, altho sparsely, with frocks, hats, underwear, silk stockings, etc. When looking at the extremely high prices of these articles one felt this was a false display and had no relation to what the people could afford.

Nevertheless one of the most striking sights in Paris is the relatively large number of well dressed women, and hats above all are the most chic. Coming from London, where shop windows are for the most part blown out and boarded up, and where women are conspicuous, or inconspicuous, for their austerity of dress, the change is most delightful.

As we walked thru the center of town and then along the Seine embankment to the Ile de la Cite in the warm sunlight which was beginning to drive away the cold of the morning, Paris could not have been more beautiful, exhilarating, and exciting.

Here and there we passed a building that had been raked by machine gun fire, or, less frequently, one hit by light cannon. In general, however, one saw very little damage. Buildings that were burned or bombed during the occupation and the fighting in August had been demolished and cleared away, and their foundations, covered with thick snow, gave no evidence of warfare.

While I was in Paris I wanted to investigate the possibilities of having "Journey Underground," or extracts from it, published there. Friends had recommended that I see the poet Paul Eluard, whom they presumed would know all about publishing. No one knew his address, and I was instructed first to call on Miss Sylvia Beech, who probably would have it.

Miss Beech is an American woman who has lived in Paris many years, running a small book shop called the Shakespearean Library. It specialized in English and American works. After the Germans occupied France she was forced to trade clandestinely, for selling these foreign books was declared illegal by the enemy. She continued doing this almost a year, but eventually the Gestapo heard of her and raided the shop. Fortunately she had been warned in time to hide the forbidden books. Afterward, realizing that the Germans probably were watching her, she went out of business.

When America entered the war Miss Beech was interned for six months, and again shortly before the allied invasion she was imprisoned—this time to be liberated for good by the American army.

As my friends had said, Miss Beech was able to help me find Paul Eluard. During the occupation he had moved constantly and only those well known to him were aware of his whereabouts. He is called by many "the poet of the resistance." In L'Editions du Minuit, the literary journal of the underground movement, he wrote unrelentingly against the Germans, and at great personal danger distributed many copies of it himself.

Perhaps, having a romantic vision of "the poet of the resistance," I was surprised to find him in appearance so unlike the conventional idea of a poet. Altho the conditions in Paris had damaged his health, he was a robust looking man, heavy and yet tall. He was very pleasant and showed an interest in a story told by an American airman associated with the underground. M. Eluard promised to read it, hoping to find some extracts that, as he said, "would serve to combat the slight resentment felt by some Frenchmen toward the Americans because of the terrible food and fuel shortages."

In view of this remark about American administration and others about the conduct of American troops, which has prompted some Frenchmen to refer to us as "les sauvages" (the savages), I was very interested to hear the opinions of an army friend stationed in Paris.

This man had lived there many years before the war and thru his acquaintances had a good opportunity to discover what the French attitude actually was. He said that our soldiers too often drank more than they were accustomed to having and that many unpleasant incidents resulted between them and the civilian population when they were drunk.

But the main cause of friction was the lowering of the standard of life under the American occupation. Before the invasion our propaganda agencies made great promises to the French that abundant food and supplies would follow in the wake of our armies. Not only were those promises unfulfilled, but conditions under the United States administration are far worse than they had ever been under the German, and naturally there had been disappointments, resentment, and misunderstanding when the Parisians were hungrier and colder than before.

As I mentioned earlier, however, the relief felt that the Germans have been driven out compensated in many ways for the present misery, and on the whole our G. I.'s are popular and well liked by the French people.

I spent my last night in an army billet which was a requisitioned

Choose Your Colors Carefully

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

FOR a business engagement, when you want to appear intellectual, imaginative, self-reliant, do you know what color costume would best contribute to that impression? A tone of yellow is the answer, such as corn silk or yellow-beige. If you'd give the impression of being a cautious one, conservative, a good executive, then appear in a grayed normal blue.

If you are dressing for a large evening function, with crowds of people, brilliant lights, lots of competition, and you want to feel confident, the center of all eyes, all-conquering, you'd don the red-orange, flame color, in strong intensity, because it is the most advancing hue in the spectrum. Your jewels would be aquamarine, the blue-green complement of red-orange, or of pale gold.

Such was the information we gleaned at a recent luncheon. The speaker was the distinguished color authority, Julian Ellsworth Garnsey, Princeton university.

A fascinating subject, color, not the least of which is its differing emotional effects. Here are a few significances of hues our authority offers, to which your own sensitivity will add others:

Red—Courage, generosity, vigor.

Maroon — Charm without passion, controled strength.

Orange—Action, love for life, friendliness.

Yellow—Intellectual power, imagination, self-reliance.

Green—Tolerance, liberality, calculated courage.

Blue-green—Discrimination, maturity, capability.

Violet or purple—Indolence, self-satisfaction, amicability.

Brown—Obedience, conservation, deliberation.

White—Naivete, innocence, trust.

Gray—Calm, restraint, regulation.

Black—Mystery, conceit, sophistication.

In costume choice for a given occasion Garnsey suggests a woman must make up her mind whether her intent is to flatter her own charms or do a psychological job on some one else. Sometimes both results may be achieved by the same color.

"It would seem to me important to establish feminine complexion at its proper place on the hue circle, and the hair also, and to proceed from there," says our authority. Since every color affects its adjacent color by shedding a tinge of the complementary upon it, you can make a sallow skin greener thru the use of a warm red near-by. To relieve the sallowness, chartreuse or any yellow-green will do just that.

The girl with the flawless pink and white complexion cannot wear everything, as popularly supposed. Black, gray, and white will have no effect on her skin color, but she'd better beware of cerise, shocking pink, any oranges, which force her skin toward green. She may wear soft greens and blues of weak intensity, however.

In connection with playing up her principal color attraction, as large, luminous black eyes, say, the clever woman will avoid black gowns and hold to hues mixed with black and white, like olive, russet, cadet blue, cinnamon, Lincoln green, or, best of all, much-grayed yellow or violet, for these emphasize the depth of her eyes.

The completely neutral girl with gray-brown hair and no particular complexion is the hardest problem of all and the most frequent. She usually is forced into an analogous scheme of seal browns, burnt oranges, pale yellows, all much grayed. Any attempt to force her hair and complexion into a better hue often is unsuccessful, our authority adds.

The wise woman studies her skin coloring as an initial step in selecting costume colors. (Posed By Janet Blair)

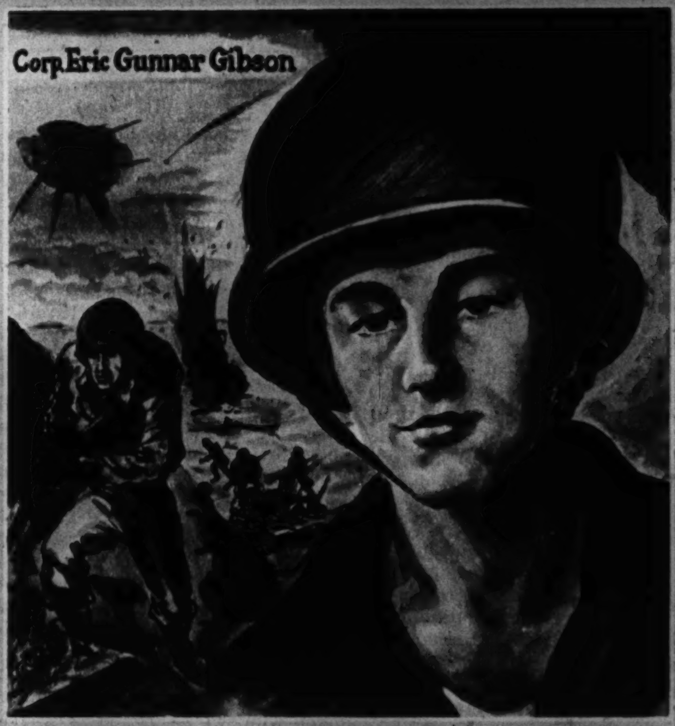
AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of a series on outstanding American heroes of the present war. Subjects for the series are chosen from among heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Vernak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

WAR on the Anzio beachhead in Italy produced countless American heroes, but none, perhaps, any braver under fire than a young army cook who deserted his pots and pans to fight in the front ranks when advances were being made or when the Germans counter-attacked.

Corp. Eric Gunnar Gibson, a veteran of the North Africa, Sicily, and Italy invasions, had made a deal with his company commander whereby he was to stick to his cooking when no fighting was on the program but to be allowed to fight when his unit was in the line.

On Jan. 28, 1944, Gibson took over the job of a squad leader who had been wounded. At the head of his new command he advanced into a ravine called the Fossa Femina Morta (ditch of the dead women). There he ordered his men to lie low while he went ahead to flush the enemy. Before he had gone very far the Germans opened fire with a machine gun, and Gibson, instead of taking cover, rushed up the side of the ravine, poked his submachine gun into a clump of bushes, and killed the machine gunner.

At this point the squad came under fire of German artillery, but Gibson, altho knocked flat by a shell burst, arose and raced forward to attack another machine gun nest. When his men came up to him they found he had killed one German and captured another.

Advancing upon a third enemy machine gun, Gibson crawled 125 yards thru heavy fire and knocked it out with grenades and submachine gun fire. In doing this he killed two more Germans and captured another. He was not yet finished. As his squad remained behind again at his orders, he advanced once more. There was a burst of fire from a German machine pistol which was answered by a burst from Gibson's weapon. When his men finally reached him they found him lying on the ground dead beside the body of another German he had slain.

In all he had destroyed four enemy positions, killed five Germans, and captured two in securing the left flank of his company.

At Camp McCoy, Wis., on the following Sept. 15 the medal of honor (congressional medal) was awarded posthumously to him, being presented at a review of the 76th infantry to his father, Erland Gibson, of near Rice Lake, Wis.

Corporal Gibson was 24 years old. He was born in Sweden and as a small boy brought by his parents to Chicago, where he grew up and was graduated from Senn High school. His parents moved from Chicago to a Wisconsin farm after his death.

COLD GOT YOU IN BLEARY-EYED MISERY?

Do This Quick for Relief!

If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold ... all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach ... back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids ... and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

"TONIGHT AND EVERY NIGHT"

1 London's most glamorous chorines are rehearsing a new Music Box revue when Tommy Lawson (Marc Platt), amateur dancer, asks May Tolliver (Florence Bates), owner of the show, for a job.

2 Thanks to Judy Kane (Janet Blair) who shows him how to start his audition, he goes into the cast. Together they work out a spectacular routine, but Judy loses her heart as she learns her steps.

3 Star of the show, exciting Rosalind Bruce (Rita Hayworth), dazzles Tommy and he ignores Judy.

4 War blacks out the show and raids send both audience and cast to the theater's cellar. Mrs. Tolliver decides they must close but her actors and actresses offer to live in the theater to keep the show a refuge from the blitz.

5 Backstage during a raid, Rosalind meets R. A. F. Squadron Leader Paul Lundy (Lee Bowman) and falls in love. Tommy is disconsolate.

6 After a few dates they quarrel. Paul attempts a reconciliation when the show plays his base. In the midst of it he is called out for a flight and Rosalind confesses her love for him.

7 A bomb hits the theater. Damage is slight but a stagehand, once known as the Great Waldo (Prof. Lamberti), trots out his old act to keep the audience quiet during equipment repairs. Rosalind, to hold attention, does a strip tease.

8 She has had no word from Paul. Learning that his father, the Rev. Gerald Lundy (Philip Merivale), is in the audience, she is sure he will forbid her to see his son. Instead he tells her Paul has been on a secret mission and conveys his proposal.

9 Paul arrives backstage, and from the opposite wings Tommy witnesses their joyous reunion, knows there is no hope for him.

10 They announce their engagement, together with the news that Paul is being sent to Canada and is permitted to take Rosalind with him.

11 Tommy flees to a bar to drown his sorrows. Judy follows, and Tommy finally realizes that Judy is the girl for him.

12 A near hit breaks up the party. Rushing to the street, they discover the bar is blasted. Tommy and Judy are killed. Rosalind postpones her marriage to stay with the show—a soldier on the home front. (THE END)

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I'm getting slightly confused. Is Paul Muni's new picture (with Marguerite Chapman) "Counter-Attack" or "One Against Seven"? Having seen many notices, I would appreciate straightening out. And please, just for luck, find space for a picture of the famous gent. Thanks. B. H.

Paul Muni

Paul's latest movie started out to be "One Against Seven," but it has recently been renamed "Counter-Attack." These changes in titles are confusing. Here's that picture you wanted.

Dear Miss Tinée: I wonder if you would answer this question for me. There are some stars that I would like to write to, but I don't have their addresses. Do you think if I just wrote on the envelope, for example, "Bing Crosby, Hollywood, Cal.," that he would get it? Thank you. RUSTY.

Uncle Sam's mail men are pretty smart, but war time mail is heavy. Full addresses always are better, so address your letter to Bing in care of the Paramount Studios, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Cal.

Dear Miss Tinée: Could you please tell me which studio made "The Adventures of Mark Twain"? Thank you.

JEROME J. MULVIHILL.

Warner Brothers made the picture.

Dear Miss Tinée: A friend of mine and I had an argument. I say Van Johnson is married and she says he isn't. Which one of us is right? B. B.

The one who says he's a bachelor is the winnah!

Dear Mae Tinée: I have been reading and enjoying your column for ages, but I have never written in to you. A few weeks ago I saw "Rainbow Island." I thought every one in the cast did a wonderful job, but Barry Sullivan was out of this world. He was wonderful as the doctor in "Lady in the Dark," but even better in "Rainbow Island." I hadn't any idea he could sing like he did. Would you please be kind enough to print a picture of him and tell something about him? This is the first time I've bothered with any movie star, so you can see how much of an impression he made. STILL WONDERING.

Barry Sullivan

HAVERING WONDERFUL TIME

WHEN "The Dolly Sisters" finally hits your local screen you'll see blonde and dynamic June Haver as one of the famous actresses. She'll have Betty Grable as a screen sister, but they say June is holding her own well in spite of that competition. It is an important role for June, who recently has been seen in "Where Do We Go from Here?" and who has worked hard from those days when as a child prodigy of 6 she first appeared on the stage in a Cincinnati little theater production. June is the daughter of Marie and Fred Stovenour—born in Rock Island, Ill., on June 10, 1926, but took the name of her stepfather, Bert Haver, a draftsman in a California plane plant.

When June was 7 she won a music contest, the prize for which was the chance to play a piano solo with the Cincinnati Symphony. At 8 she was screen-tested, but her mother deferred any contracts until June could get more education. By the time she was 11 June was writing and performing in a juvenile program on a Rock Island radio station. She soloed with Dick Jurgens' orchestra in 1939, and when she was 13 she toured with Ted Fio Rito's band, landing in Hollywood, where the old screen test and her new talent won her parts in several shorts.

But there was to be more school for June. Her part in the senior class play at Beverly Hills High led to her first real screen contract.

Before After

"I lost 77 pounds in 6 months!"

—says Mrs. Jane Ende of Rock Island, Ill.

"Most women worry when their weight goes up just a few pounds," says Mrs. Jane Ende. "Can you imagine, then, how I felt—watching those scales go up...up...UP! until I actually weighed 202! I think my greatest jolt came when I went to buy a dress and had to take a size 44. Right then was when I decided to start the DuBarry Success Course at home.

The first six weeks Mrs. Ende lost 30 pounds. She kept right on and went through her Course again and again. Today she weighs just 125—is slim, trim attractive.

"Life is very different now," she declares. "I look and feel as a young woman of 28 should. I can wear smart, stylish, youthful dresses in size 14 instead of a matronly 44. I have the pep and vitality to keep up with and enjoy my two children. And I know that following the DuBarry way, I need never be overweight again."

HOW ABOUT YOU? If you have worried about your personal appearance, find out about this simple plan that has helped Jane Ende, and more than 190,000 other women to be fit and fair, ready for strenuous wartime living. Yes, women and girls of all ages from 12 to 60—more than 11,000 of them in Illinois, 6,000 in Indiana, 4,000 in Wisconsin, 12,000 in Michigan. The DuBarry Success Course brings you an analysis of your needs—then shows you how to bring your weight and figure proportions to normal, to care for your skin, use make-up for glamour, style your hair becomingly. You follow at home the same methods taught by Ann Delafield at the Richard Hudnut Salon, New York.

THREE, FIVE, AND SIX ADD UP TO GRAND JAZZ

Teddy Wilson... with Goodman he's good man.

TRIOS, quintets, and sextets make up today's portion of elegant jazz—and it is significant that the best jazz usually comes from such small groups. That's the nature of jazz—it lends itself to the coöperative malleability of a limited group. Best of the two trios under consideration is Benny Goodman's. His COLUMBIA waxing of "Body and Soul," with Teddy Wilson at the piano and Morey Feld on drums, is a slow, moody bit of virtuosity. I must admit that Goodman sounds even better on the other side with his sextet (adding Slam Stewart, bass; Red Norvo, vibes, and Mike Bryan, guitar). "After You've Gone" is a fast, mad display of extreme talent, with Wilson's miraculous piano a shade the best of several wonderful solo jobs. The other trio is King Cole's, on CAPITOL, and when the King does "If You Can't Smile and Say Yes" in his husky voice, and with that persuasive piano-guitar-bass combination, he's very good indeed. "Bring Another Drink" is neat, too, with the guitar at its best. Artie Shaw has brought us his Gramercy Five, and his VICTOR waxing of "The Grabtown Grapple"—"The Sad Sack" is the best Shaw we've had in a long, long time. The Grapple is a fine mess of music, with Shaw getting his licks in thruout, helped by a wonderful guitar and bass. "The Sad Sack" is a good blues tune, with very neat unit work. In passing I want to recommend Goodman's new full orchestra disk for COLUMBIA—"Close as Pages in a Book" and "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me." Good commercial stuff, with Jane Harvey singing.

They are here! VICTOR has just issued the first of its great jazz anthologies—three albums, one each of old masters by Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Lionel Hampton. More about them later.—W. D.

HIT has given an album treatment to Pat Flowers' tricky and delightful piano work, and most of the sides are eminently worth having. Pat has a fast and facile treble, and when he matches it against his boogie bass it is fun. "Eight Mile Boogie," with traps and bass, demonstrates this technique well. There is wide variety to the Flowers interests. He does "Ain't Misbehavin'," improvisations on Chopin's E minor Waltz, Bach Prelude and Fugue (variations), "Canteen Honkytonk Boogie," and such.

Conversation's a Two Way Deal

By SHEILA JOHN DALY

SHEILA JOHN DALY

KITH AND KIN BY BECKY

IT CAN HAPPEN to the best of characters. Even the most glib, fast-talking smooth operator in the senior class can find himself at a loss for the right words. It may happen during recitation in history class, while talking with your mother's friends, or when applying for a job. But more probably it happens just when a fellow is on a date with the gal of his dreams, or to a girl who has stopped to talk to some special hunk of heartbreak who makes her pulse go on the double. Good conversation takes practice and is a fifty-fifty combination of good talking and good listening. Both take genuine interest.

Being a good listener involves more than a nod at regular intervals, smiling occasionally, and slipping a frequent "O, really?" or "No kidding!" into the conversation. An overly anxious character may be so eager to react correctly to what some one else is saying that he loses track of the train of thought.

A gal may worry so hard about rolling her eyes and registering surprise or incredulity at the right time that she forgets to listen to what her date is saying and winds up saying "no" for "yes" and smiling at the wrong time. Or a doting date may spend so much effort trying to look fascinated that he forgets whether his girl is talking about the war in Europe or the last movie they saw. He isn't sure whether her gushing "Isn't he wonderful?" is meant for Eisenhower or Van Johnson.

Real interest can be sensed, and feigned interest is just as disconcerting as no interest at all. Try to listen because you are interested, not just to be polite; genuine interest will put an honest look of interest on your face.

But it takes more than a good listener to make a good conversation. A timid character may think it sufficient just to listen attentively, react accordingly, and never offer an opinion himself. He is so taken up with trying to be agreeable that he adds nothing new to the conversation. It may be shyness or reticence, it may be that the guy or gal simply does not have anything constructive to offer and therefore turns into a nodder and automatic yes-man.

It is these fellows and girls who should give some thought to the subject of what to say and when. The dictionary defines conversation as the interchange of thoughts and opinions. So let's brush off a few versatile thoughts and opinions and put them to use. Who are we to argue with Webster?

School or schoolwork is always a good warm-up subject for date talk, especially if Joe and his gal go to the same school and, better still, have a few classes or activities together. Girls don't usually like to hear boys talk about other girls, and boys don't usually like to hear girls talk about other girls, either—unless the gal has something kind to say.

Try some safe subject—who will probably be elected president of the student council next year, or that war veteran who talked at the last assembly, or the band that has been picked to play at the spring dance. Reminisce together about the last and lost basketball game and plan next year's football team between the two of you. School is a mutual interest, and that subject can lead you off on a tangent that will make you forget your talk trouble and just talk.

If it's to be a nonschool conversation, be prepared for anything. All fellows and girls like to talk about themselves, and all parents like to talk about their sons and daughters. Or try to steer the conversation to movies, books, or sports. You're bound to hit on something.

Keep yourself aware of what goes on—scan at least one newspaper a day and several magazines a month to keep up on current world affairs and news of more than local interest. All this is not only a preparation for one-night chatter but becomes a part of your post-war planning to keep up with boys in service, who will expect you to know where they have been and why.

But suppose you've tried every approach and still can't get the conversational ball rolling. You try this subject, then you try that. You fill in gaps with a laugh and start off with another story before that laugh dies down. You are doing plenty of talking, but it still isn't conversation. You might be trying too hard and finding too much to say.

Remember that conversation is a fifty-fifty proposition, and with you going like sixty, how can the other fellow get a word in edgewise? Silence is golden—learn to cash in occasionally.

I'll never age beer flat!

We keep it live and sparkling all through the ageing by retaining wholesome Carbonation

BY RICHARD SEIBOLD,
Meister Brau Brewmaster

and...

It's beer that's aged straight
we won't blend during ageing

It would be as easy as pie to take flat beer and add carbonation to it. But try as we might, we could never put back the flavor that always escapes when beer goes flat.

To guard against this, I insist on keeping Meister Brau live and sparkling all through the ageing. For the tiny bubbles of wholesome carbonation enclose precious flavor and aroma. Once these flavor elements escape they never can be restored.

To put extra flavor in Meister Brau, we use only the most fragrant hops—those grown on imported roots.

We process these hops right through the brew just long enough so they'll yield their top delicate flavor but without harshness.

I also insist that our beer be aged straight. Time has proved these old time methods, so that's the only way we'll brew Meister Brau. Taste and compare. You'll discover why thousands always ask for Meister Brau at their retailers or favorite taverns.

TAKE OFF UGLY FAT

MANY LOSE 20 POUNDS AND MORE YET EAT PLENTY

THOUSANDS now take off pounds of ugly fat quickly, easily, without harmful drugs, exercise or strict diets, following the Easy Reducing Plan of Dr. Edw. Parrish, physician and former state public health officer, as given over the radio to millions.

Here's all you do: For lunch, take 2 teaspoonfuls of Cal-Par in glass of juice or any beverage. For breakfast and dinner eat as usual, but eat sensibly. Don't cut out fatty, starchy foods; just cut down on them! Thus you cut down your caloric intake, lose weight naturally. You needn't suffer a hungry moment.

Cal-Par is not a harmful reducing drug, but a dietary product fortifying your diet with certain essential minerals and vitamins. Most overweight people are helped by the Plan. Try it. Your friends will marvel at the improvement in your figure. Get $1.25 can of Cal-Par (30 day supply) at any health food or drug store.

If your dealer hasn't Cal-Par, we will mail you postpaid a SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY CAN FOR ONLY $1.00. First box must satisfy you or money back. Pin dollar bill to coupon and mail today. We'll include FREE DR. PARRISH'S BOOKLET on reducing containing important facts you should know, including weight tables and charts of food values.

Doctor Writes: "Enclosing check for 12 cans Cal-Par."

Nurse Says: "Lost 46 lbs. in 31 days. Never felt better."

Who's afraid of big bulldogs? Jon Wayne Eccleston, age 16 months, plays with this "sourmug" named McCrevanspring, which was benched at the 1945 New York dog show.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS By BOB BECKER

ALTHO DOGS are accepted members of society, then behavior on the streets, in our homes, and elsewhere is unusual in this respect: While they are required to have manners and know how to behave themselves around people, and more of them do conduct themselves in a proper way today as compared with a few years ago, they are really not responsible for their behavior.

The owner is the one who has to be held responsible for a dog's actions in the home or on the street, for a dog is no better than the training it has received from its owner. Take a dog that misbehaves in town or country and trace its ownership and in practically every case you'll find that the pet belongs to a careless or indifferent owner who never has taken any time to teach it how to conduct itself like a gentleman.

It's only fair that dogs should have to meet certain standards of behavior when on the street. In the first place, dogs can cause trouble when on sidewalks if not under control. There is always the chance that an uncontroled, aggressive pet will want to fight another dog. Then all of us who like dogs must remember that there are many people who do not care for dogs at all. They don't want them as pets, nor do they want them rushing up to them on a sidewalk.

Some people are afraid of dogs. Children unaccustomed to pets of any kind may be frightened by the friendliest pets which rush up to them for attention and an affectionate pat on the head.

All of these people, including those who pay taxes to keep the sidewalks open for pedestrian traffic, have their rights. If they want to take a stroll on a spring day they certainly have the right to walk without being bothered by dogs, cats, Shetland ponies, or other domesticated animals. That's why the question of a dog's manners on a street is quite important.

We are conscious of the wonderful impression that an obedient, well mannered dog makes upon people every time we see one trained to walk at heel and sit down as soon as the owner stops. We noticed it when we visited wounded service men in Vaughan General hospital a few weeks ago to talk to them about dogs. Two trained German shepherds in our visiting group that gave an obedience exhibition made a big hit with the boys.

To walk at heel and sit down when the owner stops is (in our opinion) one of the most useful bits of training any dog can have. Such training eliminates the obnoxious habit that the untrained dog may have of jumping up on everybody it meets. Another thing all of us who own dogs ought to watch out for is getting some innocent pedestrian tangled up in a leash. Here again the untrained pet that lunges and bucks on a leash like a wild horse of the Osage is the one that may throw a pedestrian for a five yard loss. Contrast this hard-to-handle pet to the dog taught to walk at heel at the left side of the owner and again you see the pleasure of owning a pet taught good manners and simple obedience.

The pets that walk along quietly without pulling on the leash are fun to take out for a stroll. Frankly, we doubt if we would have much patience with the tug-of-war canines which almost pull your arm out of joint when you try to enjoy a walk on a beautiful spring day. Of course such tugging is a fine way to get some exercise, especially if you own a 60, 70, or 80 pound dog, so strong that he can dig in and really haul you along or wrestle with you. But this type of untrained house pet certainly does make you keep your eyes on your work, and he gives you no quiet moments on a stroll. We'll take the other kind, the ones that come to heel when told to and walk obediently without the pull-and-haul performances.

Street manners in a dog (for which the owner is responsible) also mean much at this time of the year, because such manners (founded on obedience) mean that the owner can keep his dog off the neighbor's new lawn or other horticultural efforts. For example, we find it necessary to put our big hunting dog at heel until we get past some new lawns and flower beds, and then when we reach the wide open spaces for exercising the dog we give the "hie on" signal so she can run.

Here again we get a big dividend out of the obedience training given this dog. In fact, obedience and good manners in our dogs give us so much fun that we've come to this conclusion: If it came to a choice we'd almost rather spend only $25 for a dog and put another $65 or $75 on its school work to teach obedience, instead of buying a $100 pup and giving it no obedience training.

The smooth fox terrier has been overshadowed in recent years by the popularity of the wire-haired variety. This picture shows the neat, trim conformation of the smooth variety, which used to be a very popular dog in this country.

ern Hokkaido; in Tokyo's latitudes this is up to 215 days and in the extreme south 240 to 250 frost free days are characteristic. Clearly there are great temperature contrasts between northern and southern Japan.

No part of Japan suffers from a yearly or seasonal deficiency of rainfall. In spite of the fact that it is under the influence of cold Asiatic air masses in winter, these winds have passed over the sea of Japan before reaching Nippon so that they have been sufficiently humidified to be able to produce adequate precipitation even in winter. The hilly and mountainous terrain results in a very confused and patchy rainfall distribution. The largest amounts, 80 to 120 inches a year, are to be found along the Pacific side of southwestern Japan and along the Japan sea coast of Honshu north of about latitude 35 or 36 degrees. The lowest rainfalls, 40 inches or less, are characteristic of central and eastern Hokkaido.

Over much the larger part of the country precipitation is heaviest in the warm months of the year and lightest in winter. This is what would normally be expected in a region under the control of continental winds in winter and moist, tropical winds in summer. Still, winters are by no means dry, for the continental winds from Asia have been humidified considerably over the Japan sea by the time they reach Japan. And the numerous cyclones cause a good deal of overcast weather with rain and snow in winter.

In one fairly extensive region —that is, the Japan sea side of Hokkaido and Honshu — winter precipitation exceeds summer. Here the modified continental winds of the winter monsoon are forced upward along mountain flanks resulting in excessively heavy cool-season precipitation, much of it in the form of snow. Winter weather here is dark and gloomy and snow may fall on as many as 25 days in each of the midwinter months. In some mountain villages snow reaches a depth of six or seven feet and snow sheds are necessary to protect the rail lines.

Japan rivals such countries as Finland and Sweden in the percentage of its land in forests. About 55 per cent is classed as forest land and an additional 8 or 9 per cent classed as wild land may be regarded as potential forest land. But in spite of the relatively large area in forests, domestic production of timber amounts to only 75 per cent of the country's requirements. The fact that over half of a country that has been occupied for more than a millennium is still in forest is explained by the unusual proportion of rugged hill land. So altho these extensive regions of steep slopes cannot be used to any large degree for agriculture, they are, on the other hand, not to be thought of as completely unproductive land. It is not only a source of valuable timber, but of charcoal, wood fuel, wood pulp, and a number of foods such as nuts, fruit, and bamboo shoots. It is in these forested mountain lands, too, that a large part of the country's water power is generated.

About three-fourths of the Japanese forest land is still in its natural state; nearly half of this is composed of dwarf species and shrub which are valuable chiefly for fuel. Broadleaf or hardwood forests predominate, occupying 44 per cent of the forest area. Coniferous or needle-tree forests comprise a little over a quarter, and mixed forests about the same. The conifers, however, supply approximately 85 per cent of the domestic lumber.

In the lower latitudes of Japan or from about Tokyo southward, the forest at the lower elevations is largely of a subtropical broadleaf type with several varieties of oak predominating. Eastern and northern Hokkaido have a forest consisting largely of needle trees, while in that part of Japan in between the two types above mentioned is a region of mixed forest.

The double-tracked main Tokaido railroad passes thru tunnels under bed of an elevated stream.

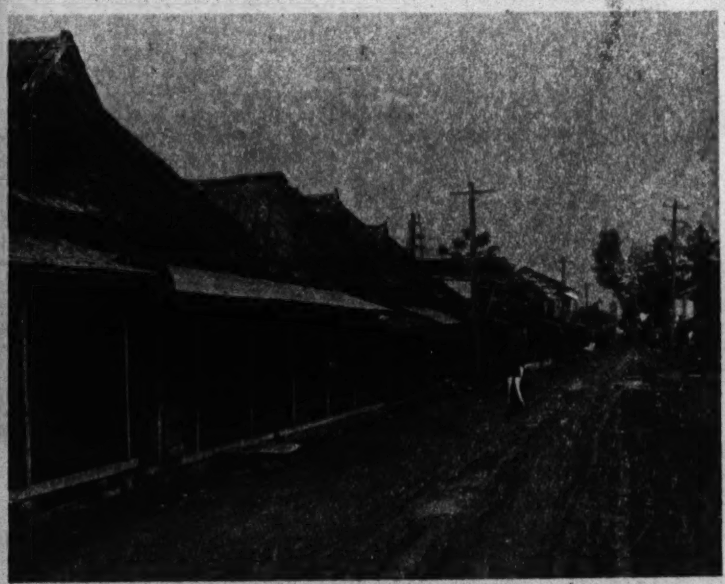
Japanese soils in general are infertile. The abundant rainfall tends to dissolve out the soluble mineral plant foods and remove them in solutions. They are particularly deficient in lime and nitrates. In addition most of the soils are low in organic matter, for in Japan there were no extensive grasslands whose root mats would have provided abundant humus. As a consequence most soils have yellow and reddish colorations and the darker hues characteristic of more fertile soils are largely lacking. Large additions of poor volcanic ash in some regions have done nothing to improve soil quality.



Covered sidewalks, or gangi, are characteristic of many settlements along the western side of northwestern Honshu.

It is the young alluvial soils of the deltas and flood plains that are most fertile and consequently it is on them that human life is concentrated. But even the diminutive river deposited plains have diverse soils, varying from plain to plain and also in different parts of the same plain. Because the cultivated lands of Japan are so limited in extent, comprising only 16 per cent of the total area, great care is taken to prevent the washing down of gravels from the surrounding slope lands onto these precious rice soils of the plains.

Japan proper is poor in most mineral resources. Only in a few items such as coal, gold, copper, iron pyrites, chrome, and sulphur is she largely or wholly self-sufficient. Coal normally accounts for 50 to 60 per cent of the value of Japan's total mineral output. Nevertheless the country is not affluent in reserves of coal. Estimates of reserves vary from about 6 to 10 billion tons and at the 1938 rate of production this would last from 120 to 200 years. But a century or two is not so long in the life of a nation and long before there is a serious coal shortage the increased costs of mining thinner seams at greater depths will affect industry adversely.

At the rate coal is consumed in the United States Japan's reserves would be depleted in 10 to 20 years. It appears, therefore, that Japan is only moderately well supplied with coal, and tho there is no danger of an exhaustion of reserves within the immediate future neither is her supply bountiful or accessible enough to make careful conservation unnecessary.

It is misleading, however, to express reserves or production of coal in tonnage only, for much of Japan's supply, and more than 90 per cent of that mined currently, is of mediocre quality. It is not suitable for high grade metallurgical coke and usually it must be mixed with hard coking coal from the continent in order to get a satisfactory product. Still another handicap is that much of Japan's coal exists in the form of thin seams and is associated with complicated geological structures which make mining difficult and expensive.

The two principal coal areas, measured either in reserves or in current production, are in northern Kyushu and in western Hokkaido. In 1936 about 70 per cent of the output was from Kyushu fields and 22 per cent from Hokkaido.

Japan's annual production of petroleum is less than the daily production in this country. In 1936 only 9 per cent of the nongovernment requirements of the country was from domestic wells. What is more, the reserves are very meager. This serious deficiency in such a strategic mineral as oil was a matter of grave concern to a country bent upon territorial expansion as Japan was during the '30s decade. The principal oil producing region lies along the Japan sea side of northern Honshu in the vicinity of the cities of Akita and Niigata.

Two physical features, the predominance of hill and mountain land and the abundance of precipitation, are responsible for Japan, after the United States and Canada, being the world's largest producer of hydroelectric power. The short, swift mountain streams are not capable of supporting very large power plants, but on the other hand the large number of plants compensates for their small size. Thus on one river alone there are 90 plants, nearly all of them small, 80 on another, and 69 on still a third.

Japan's greatest hydroelectric output is in that broadest and most mountainous section of Honshu in about the latitude of Tokyo. In fact the great Tokyo-Yokohama and the Nagoya industrial centers profit considerably by their proximity to this focus of hydroelectric generation.

In 1936 Japan's domestic production of iron ore was scarcely 13 per cent of her requirements, and the figure increased to only 19 per cent when the contributions of her colonies were added. That her reserves are pitifully small is indicated by the fact that a single year's production (1940) in the United States was nearly equal to her total supply. Fortunately a considerable part of the reserve is high grade ore. Nearly 60 per cent of the annual output of domestic ore is from the Kamaishi mines in northeastern Honshu, while 31 per cent is from the Kutchan mine in southwestern Hokkaido.

Next to coal, gold was the most important mineral produced in the mid-'30s, altho normally copper occupies second rank. All others are of much smaller value and in most of them Japan is greatly dependent upon outside sources. Of the lead requirements in 1936 only 8.5 per cent were domestically produced; of zinc 39 per cent; tin 29 per cent, and manganese 30 per cent. Only very small amounts of mercury, molybdenum, vanadium, and antimony are available in the homeland.

From the foregoing review it is clear that Japan proper is poorly endowed with most of the important economic minerals. What is more, her empire does not greatly ameliorate the situation. For a nation determined to play the game of world politics her mineral situation was almost fatally weak.

To the controling military and industrial cliques an expanded empire in eastern and southeastern Asia seemed like the obvious solution. Political and economic control over these lands would, to be sure, have corrected many of Japan's critical mineral deficiencies. It was such an empire that Japan set out to conquer.

hotel. Expecting something cold and drab, I was very surprised to have a room that was pleasantly furnished, as warm as the average American hotel, and that had a bath with hot water. It was hard to believe that I had found as much or more comfort here in a cold, starving Paris than was possible in London. Altho I greatly enjoyed my bath, I could not avoid feeling uncomfortable when thinking of the Maurices and the conditions that prevailed in almost all other Parisian homes.

The discrepancy between our food and the civilian rations was equally as great as the heating. For instance, my breakfast consisted of a stewed fruit and fruit juice, porridge, eggs (powdered), bacon, white bread toast, and limitless quantities of butter, jam, and coffee. A French person would be considered extremely lucky to have real coffee, a bun, and butter. It seemed incredible that such abundance could exist in the midst of such general want.

I left France by air—taking off from the air field that had been the target for my first bombing mission in 1943. It was interesting to see some of the actual results of our raid—the twisted wreckage of hangars, aircraft, and other installations, but there, as everywhere else, the snow greatly modified these signs of war.

Shortly after returning to England I received two letters telling me of those French friends I had not been able to see.

Le Pere Maurice, who had insisted on going to see Mere Louise and Marceau after our abortive endeavor, described his trip:

"I went to the police station as you told me and found the brother-in-law, who gave me your identity card. He remembered you and telephoned Marceau, who dropped everything to rush in town for all my news. He was very happy to know that you had escaped and also to have the parcel you gave me for him. He said his mother and other members of the family were all well."

Marie wrote from Nevers in uncertain English slightly mixed with schoolbook German: "We passed the summer 1944 with no losses. My brother Raymond and I joined the Maquis. . . . Evonne and the others are in good health. How happy it is we are fry [confused with the German version, Free-frei."]

Discovery by Noted Veterinarian STOPS DOG-ITCH

For years, veterinarians were baffled by a common skin disease that caused untold agony to dogs and cats. Starting as a burning itch, it soon develops dandruff-like scales and brownish-edged sores with a mouldy odor in ears, on paws, under-body, back or around tail. Treatments for mange, fleas, allergy or faulty diet result only in costly care or actual loss. Now, noted veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Merrick, has positively identified this disease as a fungus infection comparable to "Athlete's Foot." He has named it "Fungitch" and has also developed SULFADENE, a treatment proved amazingly effective in thousands of clinical cases. Applied externally, Dr. Merrick's SULFADENE stops the itch in a few minutes—scales and sores vanish in a few days. A CULOTTE SKIRT is a new spring ensemble, by Marcelle Alix Tinson, is made in black and white checks. The long-sleeved bolero jacket is of red crepe; a white silk blouse with a turnover collar and a black tie complete the costume.

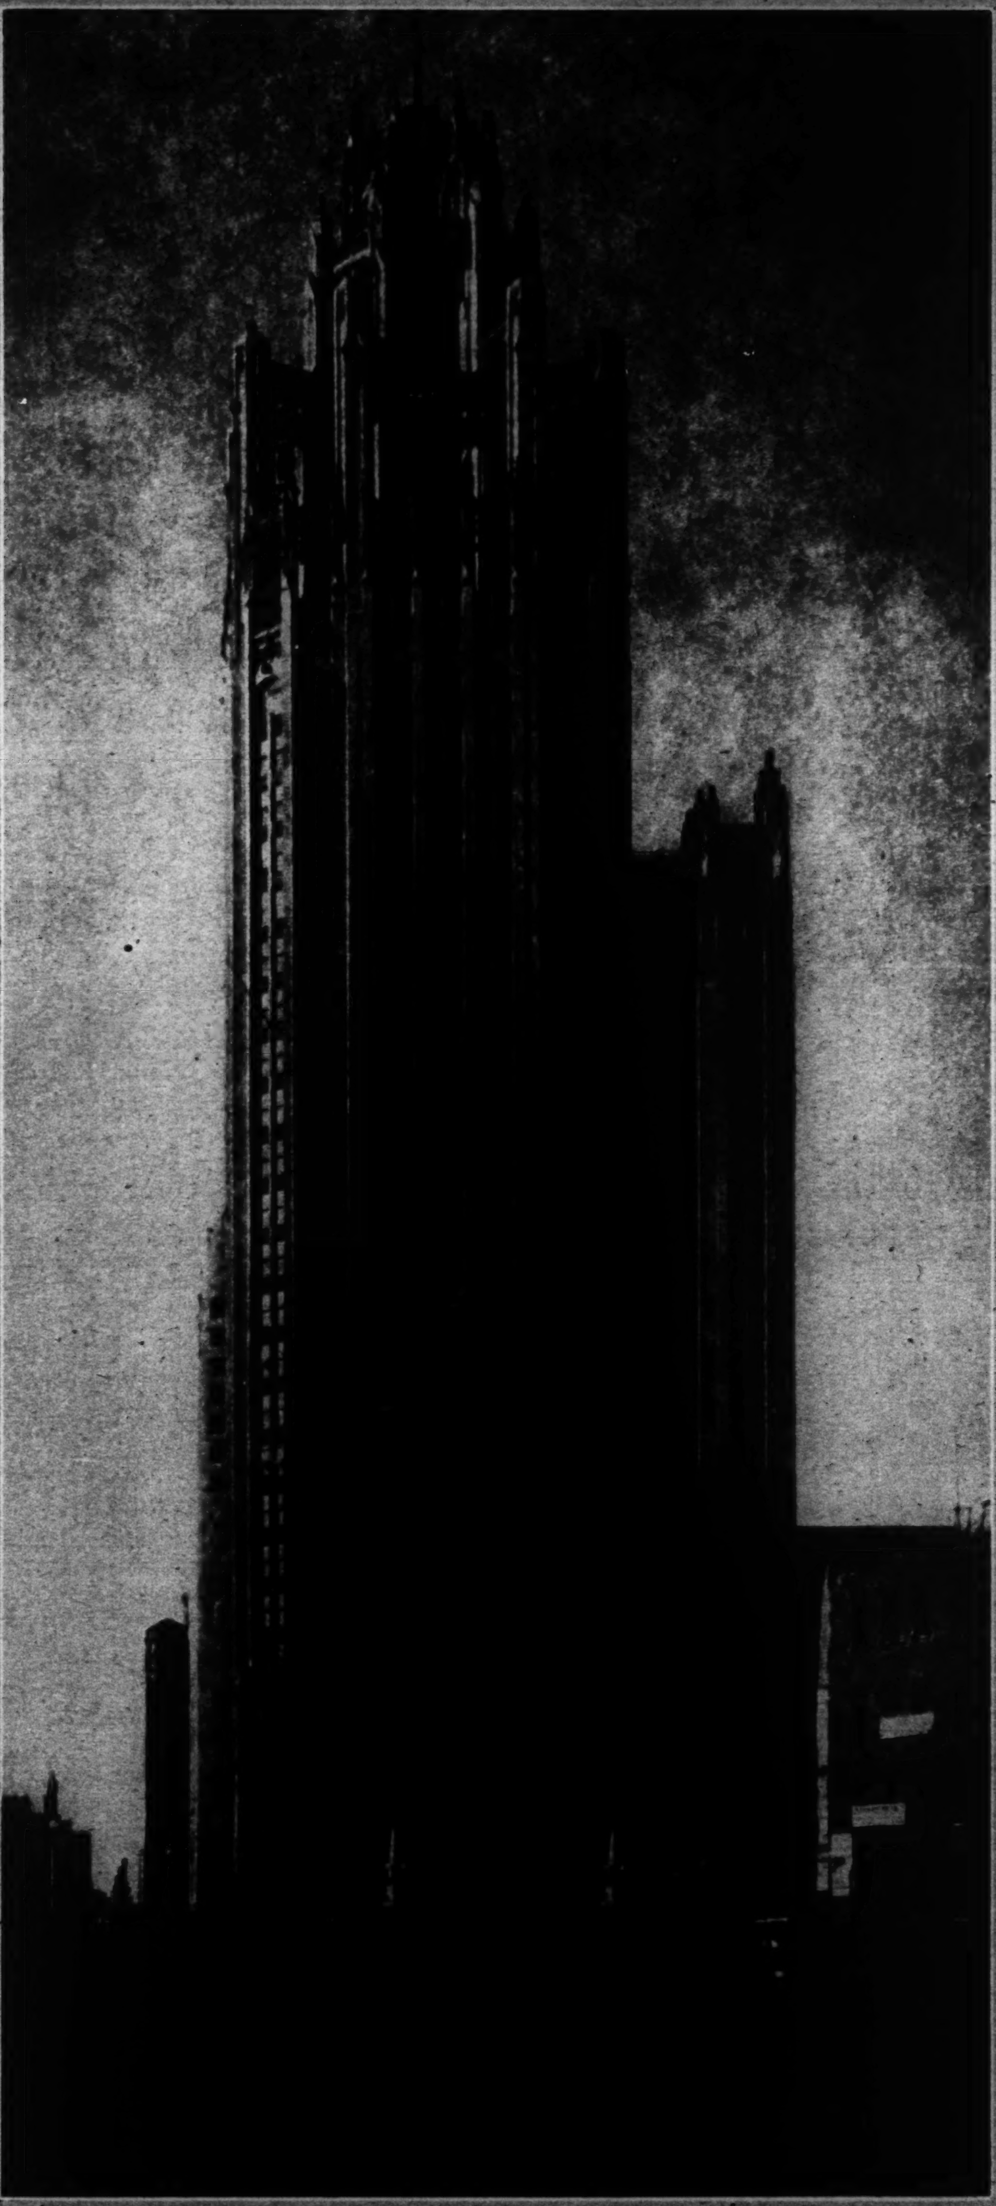
PARIS FASHIONS

Photographs of these two new fashions were executed exclusively for The Tribune by Scaioni, noted Paris illustrator, and rushed to Chicago by air mail.

A bright multi-colored scarf covers the crown of this new spring bonnet by Gabrielle.

TRIBUNE TOWER IN PHOTOGRAPHY AND ART



This is the eighth of a series of outstanding pictures of Tribune Tower. The view is by the late Raymond W. Trowbridge, a professional virtuoso who found such inspiration in the Gothic beauty of the tower that he photographed it repeatedly, always with consummate art. Readers are invited to submit pictures of Tribune Tower they themselves have made—photographs, sketches, etchings, paintings. For any such views accepted and reproduced here, The Tribune will pay $5. Mail pictures to Roto Editor, Chicago Tribune; inclose postage for return (return is not guaranteed).

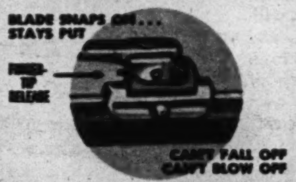
ANCO RAIN-MASTER "Dead-Locker" WINDSHIELD WIPER ARMS and BLADES



(A war-born invention—by ANCO—first for military aircraft—now for your car.)

DON'T SHOOT YOUR GAS-PUMP MAN!

He's doing the best he can. Sure, he knows how dangerous it is for you to drive your car . . . in stormy weather . . . with your dull old windshield wipers that smear and smear. He'd gladly put on for you quickly a pair of keen new ANCO RAIN-MASTER Wiper Blades and Arms. He has them. But he forgets to remind you? Too busy? It's the war! You can't shoot him for that.

After all, it's your car to protect. So you remind him. Get RAIN-MASTERS...patented features... original equipment on many makes of high grade peacetime cars...used on our fighting tanks and trucks and ships and bombers too . . . because ANCO RAIN-MASTERS clean quicker, clean cleaner . . . last longer. May save you a costly smashup.

Ask for RAIN-MASTER Windshield Wiper Arms and Blades next time you buy gas.

See THE DIFFERENCE! Feel THE DIFFERENCE!

My one cream instantly beautifies your skin—and the "Patch Test" proves it!

See and feel your skin become fresher, clearer, younger-textured!

I don't just SAY that Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream does wonderful things for your skin. I PROVE it—prove it by means of the "Patch Test"!

Just choose a part of your face that is too oily, or too dry—or where you have a few blackheads or big pores. Rub Lady Esther Face Cream on that one part of your face, and wipe it off. Wipe it off completely. Then see how that patch of skin takes on new freshness and clarity! Touch it—feel it! Feel how the dry rough flakes are gone!

What happens to that one patch of skin will happen to your entire face when you use Lady Esther Face Cream. For it does the 4 things your skin needs most for beauty! (1) It thoroughly cleans your skin. (2) It softens your skin. (3) It helps nature refine the pores. (4) It leaves a smooth, perfect base for powder.

Make the "Patch Test" Tonight!

Prove to yourself the difference Lady Esther Face Cream makes in your skin! See it with your own eyes! Make the "Patch Test"—and compare results with the results you get from any cream you've ever used, regardless of price! Remember, the proof is in your own mirror. Make the "Patch Test" and compare!

...when cleaning aids come in CANS

That ready-set-go feeling does a lot to lighten spring-cleaning chores! And cans certainly do a lot to keep your spring-cleaning aids always ready for instant use.

So you can put down, on your list of post-war-things-to-be-thankful-for, the glad day when protective cans will again be available for scores of such household items as furniture polishes and sewing machine oil, paints and varnishes, insect sprays, floor waxes, and cleansers of all kinds.

One reason why you have been getting these products in substitute packages is because billions of cans are being used to protect the food . . . the medicines . . . the plasma . . . needed by our armed forces. Such tin cans as are available for civilian use are needed to protect home-front supplies of foods.

America's women well know why the steel-and-tin can is such an ideal container. Cans don't break, crack, tear, or split. They give lasting protection to their contents and are easy to carry, store, open and to dispose of.

Hail the day when all of the more than 2,500 products normally packed in cans by over 135 different industries will again have the protection unmatched by that of any other container.

No other container protects like the CAN

CAN MANUFACTURERS' INSTITUTE, INC., NEW YORK

WARTIME NEEDS restrict the civilian use of cans for certain products. But stocks on dealers' shelves are yours to buy freely. And remember, foods packed in cans come to you with their vitamins, minerals, and nutritional values sealed in.

We've set our needle in a new groove

Just eleven years ago, when we first began to record, we made our decision. We decided to set our needle in a new groove... the exciting, adventurous groove of today!

Eagerly we listened for new sounds, new melodies, new ideas. From across the countryside... across America... across the hemisphere... even from the old world itself... poured a torrent of vibrant, colorful music, the music of living people.

We heard the strumming of a guitar in a lonesome mountain cabin ... a trumpet solo on a Mississippi steamboat... a cowboy lament... a throbbing Latin rhythm. We heard... and recorded.

A likeable fellow named Bing Crosby was singing his way into the hearts of more and more listeners. Decca's recording needle brought his voice into the homes of millions.

The lilting songs of brilliant Broadway musical shows like "Oklahoma!", "Bloomer Girl", "Song of Norway", "Carmen Jones" and many others will never be lost. These tunes... usually recorded by the original casts... have been captured in Decca albums.

We are pioneering in other fields of sound... such as the spoken word. For the first time, millions of people will be able to derive new enjoyment from great literature, history, poetry, drama... rendered by such competent artists as Ronald Colman, Charles Laughton, Herbert Marshall, Ginger Rogers and Orson Welles.

In our new groove, you make the rules. Decca insists that every word of a song be pronounced so you can understand it. Every beat of a dance record must be pure rhythm you can dance to... the way Jimmy Dorsey, Guy Lombardo and other Decca artists play it for you.

Decca will continue to record the music America likes... the way America likes it. We intend to keep our needle in this new groove... out of the rut!

A VILLAGE PEST

THE young chicken which the Teenie Weenies had hatched from an egg was rapidly becoming a troublesome problem. It kept the entire tribe of Teenie Weenies busy feeding the chicken when it was very young, but when it grew older and was able to find bugs and worms for itself the little people had to keep a sharp eye on it, for it was continually getting into trouble.

Once it popped its head thru the open kitchen door and ate a whole lima bean which the Cook had baked for supper. It was continually upsetting the Teenie Weenie garbage thimble, and it drank the rain thimble dry as fast as it filled. It began to eat the young blades of grass as fast as they came up out of the ground, and the Teenie Weenies were afraid to leave a baby alone outdoors, lest the chicken swallowed it for a fat bug.

"That chicken is a village pest!" exploded the Policeman one morning after the bird had awakened the entire village at daylight by upsetting and picking morsels from the garbage thimble on the back porch. "It eats all the time, and if its appetite grows with its size it's going to eat us out of house and home."

"Yes, and there is more chicken trouble ahead, too," put in the Old Soldier with a wooden leg. "The garden seeds we planted will be growing in a short time, and if we don't build a fence around the plants that chicken is going to gobble up the plants as fast as they come out of the ground."

The Teenie Weenies had found a whole spool of strong, black thread, and with that and a few twigs to string the thread on, the little men began building a fence around their tiny garden. The men cut long poles for the fence posts, and they strung the thread so high they had to stand on Teenie Weenie ladders to drive in the tiny staples which the Turk had made; but the chicken grew so fast it was able to hop over the fence within two weeks after it was built.

The General called a meeting in the town hall and it was decided there to tie up the chicken in order to keep it from destroying the garden. The men tied a stout string around the chicken's leg and fastened the other end to a bush. That saved the garden, but it kept half the Teenie Weenies busy carrying feed to the chicken, now that it couldn't find its own food. The larger the chicken grew the more it ate, and it began to look as tho the Teenie Weenies would have to start rationing.

OCD, CITY TO AID SCOUTS IN GEN. IKE CAMPAIGN

Comb City Saturday for More Paper

Boy Scouts, members of north side OCD division 6 and OCD workers thruout the city will participate Saturday in a concerted paper salvage drive in the metropolitan area.

Seven hundred trucks supplied by the city, army, and navy are expected to pick up between 5,000 and 7,000 tons of paper. This total will be added to the Boy Scout Gen. Eisenhower campaign collections.

Will Use 90 Trucks

Staffed by approximately 2,000 Scouts from the north shore sector, 90 trucks will make collections in the 19 communities of division 6. Lee Ross, division director, has announced that routes will cover every street and avenue so that no curb deposits will be overlooked.

Total collection figures for the division will be turned over to the Boy Scout salvage chairman for the north shore district. He will then divide the total equally between the troops of his division, giving each credit toward the troop Eisenhower award of a shell container inscribed by Gen. Eisenhower.

Police to Patrol Area

Official collection trucks will be supplied with double banners as identification. The police department has assigned squad cars to patrol the communities to prevent scavangers from making pickups.

Thursday and Friday nights cub Scouts will cover the section, hanging reminder and instruction tags on doorknobs of homes and apartments. Waste paper donations must be deposited on the curb by 8 a. m. Saturday. Manufacturing firms, stores, and all institutions have been asked to coöperate in the drive.

List Salvage Leaders

Salvage chairmen and their communities are: Near north side, John Gorman; Lincoln park, Mrs. Eugene Birmingham; Lincoln Fullerton, William A. Hoyer; Clark Diversey, Elmer Balaban; East Lakeview, Norman Harold; West Lakeview, Charles Jacklin; Sheridan center, Richard J. Voorhees; Ravenswood, Sal Russo; North Center, Joseph Grein Jr.; Central Uptown, Al Meyer.

Uptown Clark, Dr. Joseph Adler; Lincoln Square, Clyde Emrich; Edgewater, John Jones; Northtown, L. K. Edmondson; Devon Sheridan, A. L. Johnson; Clark Devon, Mrs. Hugh Scott; Rogers Park Clark st., James de La Motte; Indian Boundary, Wilbur Kellogg, and Howard business district, Edward Welch.

Will Supervise Trucks

In the Lincoln park community four women have accepted assignments as truck crew captains: Mrs. Birmingham, Mrs. Pat Flannigan, Mrs. George Heidel, and Mrs. Clarence Whittier.

To facilitate weighing in of loads, the city street department, under supervision of Loyd M. Johnson, has arranged for the use of privately owned platform scales. These have been made available in every community in the city. More than 70 unloading points also have been arranged to prevent serious delays experienced in previous pickup drives.

Proceeds from the drive will be distributed between the Red Cross, service men's centers, and accredited veteran organizations.

15 NORTH SIDE WOMEN CAPPED AS NURSES' AIDS

In recent ceremonies at Cook county and St. Anne's hospital 15 volunteer day time workers were capped as members of the Red Cross nurses' aid corps.

Mrs. Arthur M. Spiegel, nurses' aid corps chairman, was mistress of ceremonies and presented credentials to northsiders Mrs. Wallace Baker, Lake Bluff; Mrs. John Beach, 7679 Rogers av.; Mrs. Edward Berkley, 1333 Birchwood av., and Mrs. John L. M. Brentano, 2135 Ridge av., Evanston.

Others in the group were: Mrs. Thomas McNaughton, 1830 Henderson av.; Miss Pat Daniels, 1157 Columbia av.; Mrs. John Quirk, 2035 Farragut av., and Mrs. John Wanless, 240 Delaware pl.

MASTER SGT. KUEHL AWARDED SOLDIERS' MEDAL FOR HEROISM

The soldier's medal for heroism at great risk of life has been awarded Master Sgt. Lester M. Kuehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kuehl, 4231 Broadway.

Sgt. Kuehl

Stationed at a 15th air force base in Italy, Kuehl was a member of a group who risked their lives last Aug. 21, when a B-24, heavily loaded with fuel and bombs, burst into flames. Heedless of the intense heat and imminent danger of explosion, the group courageously battled the spreading flames. When unable to bring the fire under control, they warned personnel and taxied aircraft from the area.

Sgt. Kuehl is a graduate of Lake View High school and attended Wright college. He entered the service in February, 1943, and has been overseas 14 months.

Toothpicks and Hard Boiled Eggs Draw Crowds at Highland Park Hobby Show

When does a toothpick cease being just a toothpick? When the skilful fingers of Peter Ohlwein, 13, of Highland Park take over. This 7 foot reproduction of the Eiffel tower in Paris was constructed in three months from 36,000 toothpicks. The model took a special purple ribbon award at the recent Highland Park Hobby show sponsored by the Highland Park Rotary club.

Attracted by the other fellow's hobby, exhibitors look over model planes shown by George Chernay, 16, of Highland Park High school. George was the oldest of 100 exhibitors. Youngest was 6 year old Barbara Brandriff. The show has been sponsored yearly since 1931 by the Rotary group.

Proudly showing the cookie that took first place, Karen Johnson, 9, gives the hobbyists a big smile. Karen likes to cook "if mommy gets out and puts away the makings afterward."

Introducing the Whoozit family in the lower section of the box she holds, Sue Lawrence, 13, creator, said she took seven days to complete the little group of Mr. and Mrs. Whoozit and son, Willie.

EPISCOPALIANS TO MARK 100TH YEAR OF REVIVAL

Bishops, clergy, and members of orders in the 13 midwest Episcopal dioceses will observe the 100th anniversary of the revival of the religious life in the Anglican communion with a choral evensong service at 5 p. m. today in St. Luke's church, Evanston.

The Rt. Rev. Spence Burton, bishop of Nassau, will speak, and Bishop Conkling of the Chicago diocese will officiate. The first profession of vows in the Church of England after dissolution of the monasteries in the 16th century was made by a nun in March, 1845.

St. Luke's members will attend a prayer service for the success of the San Francisco peace conference at 8 p. m. Wednesday. The Rev. Michael Coleman, formerly of All Hallow's church, London, will speak. Similar services will be held at 7:30 a. m. daily for the duration of the conference.

SGT. FRED MEYER TO END 33 YEARS ON POLICE FORCE

Serves on Town Hall Station Desk

Altho Police Sgt. Fred A. Meyer, 1236 Eddy st., will retire May 6 after 33 years as a member of the Chicago police department, his family, which has been represented on the force for the last 51 years, still will include one policeman.

The sergeant's father, Reinhold Meyer, joined the force in 1883 and served 28 years, retiring the year before Fred became a policeman in 1912. Sgt. Meyer's son, Fred R., now with the infantry in England, is on military leave from the Damen av, police station.

Sgt. Meyer served his entire tenure at the Town Hall station, the last 25 years of it as desk sergeant. His father was desk sergeant there for 15 years, having been transferred from the detective bureau.

Sgt. Meyer concluded his duties April 14 and is now on furlough. His pension will begin in May. He was made a detective sergeant in 1915, and when the rank was abolished in 1920 he became a member of the uniformed force.

The Meyer family has lived on the north side since the Chicago fire, in which the loop jewelry store owned by the sergeant's grandfather was burned. Reinhold Meyer was born in a house which stood at Market and Madison sts.

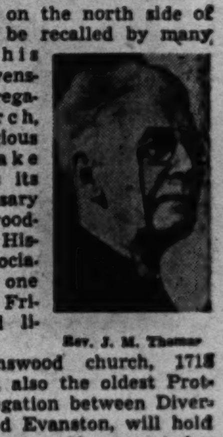
OLDEST CHURCH IN LAKE VIEW TO CELEBRATE

3 Members for 66 Years to Attend.

Early days on the north side of Chicago will be recalled by many old timers this week as Ravenswood Congregational church, oldest religious body of Lake View, marks its 75th anniversary and Ravenswood-Lake View Historical association opens a one week exhibit Friday in Hild library.



Rev. J. M. Thomas

The Ravenswood church, 1718 Montrose av., also the oldest Protestant congregation between Diversey pkwy. and Evanston, will hold special services at 11 a. m. today and 8 p. m. Wednesday. Three members of the church for the last 66 years will attend — Mrs. Fannie Knight Young, Glencoe; Mrs. Hattie Meacham Knight, 4343 N. Wolcott av., and Miss Charlotte Reynolds, 4449 Dover st.

Choir Director Long at Post

Most of the church leaders are veterans of many years of service. The Rev. J. Morriston Thomas has been pastor for the last 32 years. William Newey became choir director in 1899 and, except for six years, has served continuously. J. Arthur Wirth has been organist since 1901. Virginia Holland has been soprano soloist 20 years, and Gwynfa Thomas Ogilvie, daughter of the pastor, contralto soloist since 1926.

Dr. Thomas will speak on "Vignettes of the Years" at today's service. The choir will sing "And the Glory of the Lord" by Handel, "Sanctus" by Gounod, and "Gloria" by Mozart. Eugene Dressler, tenor soloist, will sing "My Hope Is in the Everlasting" by Stainer. The Rev. John Gordon, Rockford, Ill., who preceded Dr. Thomas as pastor, will make an opening talk.

Will Give Original Play

Wednesday night church members will produce a play written by Miss Sophie Chandler, 1827 Leland av., temporarily of Washington, D. C. The play is a fantasy in the form of a radio broadcast. Principal characters in the fantasy will be the six pastors who have served the church, and their wives.

Taking the role of the Rev. William A. Lloyd, who organized the church in 1869, will be James C. Stewart. Winnifred Healy will take the part of Mrs. Lloyd. John Menk and Gwynfa Ogilvie will be cast as Dr. and Mrs. Thomas. Others in the cast are Robert R. Buswell, Pauline Schneider, D. B. Ward, Dorothy Kimball, Dr. Edgar Walker, Olive Pugh, Dr. Arnold Fisler, and Vera Ward.

Name Two Soloists

Vincent Yager will be the announcer and Mason Aldrich stage manager. Soloists will be Dressler and Mary Francis Aldrich.

The church was incorporated early in 1870 when Ravenswood was a village far from the thriving town of Chicago. About seven persons

REARS A LOFTY EIFFEL SPIRE IN THREE MONTHS

Toothpick Artist Wins Hobby Show Honor

A toothpick may be just a toothpick to most folks, but to Peter Ohlwein, 13, of Highland Park the little wooden splinters are material of infinite possibilities. Under his skilful fingers has emerged a replica of the Eiffel Tower, which, in the recent Highland Park hobby show, netted him a special purple ribbon award.

One of more than 100 exhibits entered by school children of the suburb and near-by schools, the 7 foot model was completed in less than three months. [The original 984 foot tower in Paris, France, was 14 months in the building.] Peter's working schedule was from 4:15 to 5:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9 p. m. each week day.

36,000 Toothpicks!

Guided by blueprints supplied by the National Pick Builders' club of New York, the task literally had its builder upside down. Each of the 19 separate sections, having first been glued together, were then assembled from the under side out.

Using 36,000 toothpicks for the job, cost of construction together with glue and thread was approximately $5. The purple ribbon was the second such award to be won by young Ohlwein who last year took first place in the hobby show for his model of Highland Park village. Peter is an eighth grade student at Immaculate Conception school. He hopes to become an architect.

She Introduced the Whoozits

Sue Lawrence, 13, of Ravinia school also is a second time winner in Rotary sponsored shows. In March she won the Red Cross poster contest. Together with specimens of her art work, which took a blue ribbon, she introduced the Whoozit family at the hobby showers. Mr. and Mrs. Whoozit and son, Willie, contrived from hard boiled eggs, captured the fancy of judges and were given a red ribbon.

Charley De Leuw's hobby is his business. The 11 year old Ravinia school student, having cast and painted some 250 lead soldiers within the last two years, makes his skill pay. During Christmas season, he designed and cast a soldier on horseback, which he showed to the local hardware merchant. The storekeeper said he would take as many as Charley could turn out.

If it's true the way to a man's heart is thru his stomach, by the time Karen Johnson, 9, is old enough for beaux she should have a super stag line. Karen, who likes to cook if "Mummy takes out and puts away the makings," stepped off with the blue ribbon for her brownie cookies. Brownies aren't Karen's complete repertoire. She proudly stated, "I can make chocolate cake, too."

FUNDS FOR VET HOSPITAL HOBBY SHOP SOUGHT

In an effort to provide recreational and rehabilitational facilities for veterans in the United States Marine hospital, 4141 Clarendon av., West Rogers Park B'nai B'rith lodge will sponsor a dinner at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Stevens hotel to raise funds for a recreational building and hobby shop at the hospital.

Part of the necessary sum already has been donated and the lodge hopes to receive $15,000 at the dinner. Guests and speakers will include: Mayor Kelly; Circuit Judge Fisher; Comdr. P. G. Pettersen, commanding officer of the coast guard in Chicago; Comdr. I. W. Steel, medical officer in charge of the hospital; Maj. Alfred Fleischman, special projects chief of the army air forces convalescent service division in Washington, D. C.; State Sen. Schwartz, and many B'nai B'rith officers in Chicago. Chaplain Ely Pitchuk will give the invocation.

Construction of the building will begin May 1, lodge officials said. It will house a canteen, office, stage, motion picture projection booth, and space for meetings. Occupational therapy equipment will be installed in recessed spaces along the walls.

in the swim
on the sand

You'll love looking quaint in rustling rayon taffeta—charming in chambray—daring as a jack-knife dive in a knitted bra, brief shorts. And what a lovely picture you'll make in any of these from Stevens' beach-bound collection.

1. Plaid rayon taffeta bra and shorts. 32-36. 5.95
2. Knitted bra and shorts (69% wool, 31% rayon) in natural, yucca, melon or white. 10-16. 12.95
3. White cotton twill beach coat. 12-18. 10.95
4. Striped and plain chambray in brown, rose or blue. Sizes 10-16. 9.95

N. SIDERS PICKED BY VAN DRUTEN AS LEADS AT N. U.

His 'Damask Cheek' Will Open Wednesday

Two north siders will have leading roles in John Van Druten's "The Damask Cheek," which will be presented Wednesday night thru Saturday night by the Northwestern university theater. Edward Crowley of the speech school faculty will direct the production.

Florence Schwartz

Brad Macy

The cast was selected by Van Druten from a group of 12 students chosen to read for him when he visited the campus several months ago. On a recent visit to the campus he spent several hours in conference with Crowley and Miss Florence Schwartz, who will play the leading feminine role. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schwartz, 1555 Hollywood av., she is a speech school senior and has appeared in a number of university productions.

Macy a Stock Player

Brad Macy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams Macy, Winnetka, was chosen for the leading male part. He has played several seasons with summer stock companies and frequently appears on programs over Chicago radio stations. He studied dramatics in Pomona college, Claremont, Cal.

Miss Sally Holleb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Holleb, 4248 Hazel st., will assist the director. Also in the cast are Jean Verhagen, David Glismann, Lydia Clarke, Gerri Goral, Jean Morris, Sara Jane Hedgcock, and Eugene Mitch.

Title Quote from Bard

Name of the play is taken from a quotation by Shakespeare, "She never told her love, but let concealment, like a worm in the bud, feed on her damask cheek."

Two other plays by Van Druten are current productions in New York and Chicago.

N. U. DRAMATIC GROUP WILL PRESENT 'NINE GIRLS' IN THORNE HALL

Students on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university will present a mystery melodrama, "Nine Girls," by Wilfred H. Pettitt, at 6:20 p.m. Saturday in Thorne hall. The production is sponsored by the Themis club.

Dorothy Ermoyan.

Dorothy Ermoyan, 837 Wolfram st., will have a leading role. Others in the cast are Lucy Norwick, Lila Cudroff, Pat Flory, Elizabeth Spitska, Peggy Powers, Lois Lawson, Naomi Delaney, Mary Fazzi, and Lorraine Walz.

Miss Muriel Landers of the speech school faculty will coach the play. Others in charge are Jim Anselmo, production manager; Lester Solomon, stage manager, and Tom Shoop, Rokama Kramer, Peggy Powers, and Ted Carlson.

THREE FAITHS TO HOLD RALLY AT ANSHE EMET

The Lake View Council on Religious Action, consisting of representatives of the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish institutions within the area, together with the alumni of Anshe Emet will hold an interfaith and inter-racial rally at 7:30 p. m. today at Anshe Emet auditorium, Pine Grove av. at Grace st.

A symposium on teamwork will be conducted by Dr. Mark H. Watkins, professor of anthropology on loan from Fisk university, Nashville, Tenn., to the University of Chicago, and Dr. Leo Shapiro of the Anti-defamation league, former professor of English at De Paul university.

Pastors to Greet Guests

Dr. James M. Yard, midwest director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will be moderator. The Rev. John R. Heyworth of Unity church, president of the council, and the Rev. Paul S. Bischoff, minister of the Diversey Parkway Evangelical church, will greet guests.

Besides church and synagog organizations, the audience will include students of Northwestern, Loyola, and De Paul universities.

Paul Robeson to Speak

Paul Robeson, actor and singer, will speak before the congregation of Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore dr., at 11:15 today on "A Negro Looks at the San Francisco Conference."

A series of town hall meetings, opening this week with a discussion of the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

V-E day services will be conducted at 8 p. m. on the day victory is announced. Should the news come at night the services will be held at 8 p. m. the next day with Dr. Louis Binstock presiding.

At the 65th annual meeting of Emanuel congregation, 701 Buckingham pl., David M. Riff was nominated president of the board of trustees with Leo Wollins and Ralph Rose, vice presidents; Albert Mecklenburger, recording secretary; A. L. Fader, financial secretary; Samuel Froehlich, treasurer. Other trustees are: Nathan Levin, Richard Unlander, Kurt Goldsmith, Harry Satin, Charles Gordon, Leo Eisenstadt, Harry Landau, J. Harry Salzar, and Julius Solomon. S. S. Hollander, outgoing president, was named honorary member of the board.

CITIZENS SHOW TO HAIL SCHOOL OF 4 GENERALS

Special Tribute Planned by Highland Park

When students of Highland Park High school are saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program at 10 a. m. Saturday over W-G-N they will pay special tribute to four former students now serving as generals in the army.

Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, since the fall of Corregidor a war prisoner of the Japanese, is a graduate of the class of 1901. Lt. Gen. Follett Bradley, silver star winner, active with the armies overseas and now stationed in England, was graduated in 1906. Maj. Gen. Terry Allen attended Highland Park High school during his freshman year in 1902-03. He heads the 104th infantry division of the 3rd army in Germany and holds the silver star and Purple Heart, with oak leaf cluster.

Also Honor Gen. Clark

Gen. Mark Clark attended the school during his sophomore year, 1911-12. In command of the 15th allied army group in Italy, he has seen action in Africa and Salerno. He holds the Purple Heart.

The student body of 1,192 pupils will be in attendance when the broadcast, conducted by Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE, is recorded at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the school auditorium. A. E. Wolters, principal, will be host. The salute will mark another first for the school which granted its initial diploma in 1885 and has been credited in originating the student council plan of student government as well as the home room system.

Names of Marjorie Mann of Highland Park and Eunice M. Guse of Marinette [Wis.] High school will be added to the honor roll. Member of the Honor society, Marjorie has served as secretary-treasurer of the junior class and holds the same office in the senior division.

Participate in Quiz

Harold Allen, Mary Appel, Francis Fiore, Jack Stroud, Mary Lou Tjaden, and John Wood all seniors, will participate in the student quiz on current events and history while Robert Harvey, president of the student council, will be interscholastic news reporter.

The school chorus, conducted by Walter Aschenbrenner, will present "Vesper Hymn" arranged by Fischer, "Dance My Comrades" by Bennett and the school Loyalty song. De Beriot's Concerto No. 6 in A major will be played by Louis Caldarelli, violinist.

CARBOLA

HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS

Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.

TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS

In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.

Hardware, seed, feed, drug stores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write or free handy garden chart.

NEW AIR SHOWS POP UP; MANY ON W-G-N - MUTUAL

Music, Drama, Variety on Spring List

BY LARRY WOLTERS

New shows, one after another, are popping up this spring—the season of the year usually marked by tapering off of radio activity. Many of the newcomers are W-G-N and Mutual productions. Mutual has introduced a group of attractive new half hour evenings productions.

Arch Oboler has been summoned from Hollywood and is writing and producing a new series of plays, aired at 9:30 p. m. Thursday. Oboler is well remembered here for his old Lights Out series and for much subsequent highly original radio drama.

The Freshup show features Barney Grant, a comedian who has met with considerable favor entertaining troops overseas. It's aired at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays.

Revive Broadway Hits

The Brownstone Theater, aired at 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays, features revivals of old Broadway hits. Jackson Beck and Gertrude Warner are regularly featured. The show has just begun a guest star policy with Jane Cowl appearing as the first one.

Jean Goldkette, who returned to the air last Saturday with a 60 piece orchestra, features unusual arrangements of old and new music. He is inviting composers and arrangers to make suggestions. Dell Parker, his songstress, has an unusual voice. This show is aired from Detroit at 8 p. m. Saturdays. Just ahead of it comes a new program titled Symphony of the Americas, devoted to music of the many American nations.

Sweetheart Time, a half hour musical variety interlude, was introduced recently at 1 p. m. Sundays, with Marion Mann and Phil Kalar as vocal soloists.

Calling All Detectives

Calling All Detectives, a thriller already running on Mutual, will be introduced on W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, April 28. Elsa Maxwell, wit and commentator, will preside over a series titled Party Line. Miss Maxwell will be heard at 10:15 a. m. week-days over W-G-N starting Monday, April 30.

The Human Adventure, the dramatic series broadcast by W-G-N in coöperation with the University of Chicago, will be aired shortly under commercial sponsorship.

WGNB, sister FM station, recently introduced many new features and adopted a policy of emphasizing live talent programs.

Other New Shows

New shows on other networks include these:

The Billie Burke show, with Florence Lake, John Brown, and Eddy Howard's orchestra, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday over NBC.

CBS has started a new series featuring dramatization and narration of great novels. Currently "A Tale of Two Cities," with Michael Scott as narrator, is presented at 2:15 p. m. week-days.

The Mood and the Melody, recently introduced on the Blue at 8 p. m. Mondays has been moved to 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays. It features Nancy Evans, a singing newcomer on the networks—promising, too—Boyce Smith and Rex Maupin's orchestra. Another new one on the Blue is "The Man from G-2," spy stories from military intelligence. It is aired at 6:30 p. m. Thursdays.

CATHOLIC CLUB OF EVANSTON TO HOLD BREAKFAST

Presidents of neighboring clubs will be breakfast guests of the Evanston Catholic Woman's club at noon Wednesday in the Georgian hotel, Mrs. Maurice E. O'Brien, president, will preside.

Mrs. O'Brien

New officers who will be introduced are Mrs. W. J. Sennott, vice president; Mrs. Fred A. Hertwig, recording secretary, and Mrs. William S. Cochran, treasurer.

Arrangements chairman is Mrs. Edmund J. Smith, asssted by Mrs. Joseph W. Kehoe, Mrs. J. L. Penny, and Mrs. W. L. Waner. The group will play bridge in the afternoon, with Mrs. Edward H. Brown, Mrs. J. J. Flynn, and Mrs. Edward Farrell in charge.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 23

Certain tools are necessary for a successful garden and new tools are difficult to obtain. Hence all broken tools should be repaired. If a handle is broken all that is necessary is to remove the rivet in the old handle and replace with the new. Grease the new handle and it can be driven in place and secured with a rivet.

Tools allowed to stand outdoors may become warped. Always hang tools with their handles down. Trowels are best kept in baskets which can be easily carried from place to place. Keep tools clean and sharp with a flat file.

Tuesday, April 24

A sowing of the cole crops of vegetables should be made at intervals of 10 days or two weeks and all crops should be used when "garden fresh" if they are to be enjoyed to their fullest capacity and the vitamins they contain be utilized completely.

Wednesday, April 25

Keep the vegetable garden cleared of weeds by cultivating when cultivation is necessary. It is only necessary to cultivate an inch deep to obtain results. If weeds are permitted to grow tall it is then too late to cultivate, for the damage has been done.

Thursday, April 26

Set out tender plants not earlier than May 20 and later if the weather is cold and changeable. Never be in a hurry to plant tender plants for they will require protection against frost.

Keep close watch on the plants in the coldframe and hotbed, especially as to ventilation and watering. On very cold nights protect by covering the sash with boards or mats, be sure to harden-off all plants before planting outdoors.

Friday, April 27

Some of the nicest plants for the home are the citrus fruits, such as the Ponderosa lemon and Othadeite orange. Both will flower and bear fruit if given maximum light and kept free from insect pests. If a garden plot is at hand, plunge the plants during summer, a position that may induce flowers to set fruit.

These plants often can be purchased from catalog houses. Seedlings may flower in time but it is much better to buy started, grafted, or budded plants. Fertilize with organic foods for the plants seem to prefer them. However, chemical foods, if properly used, produce good growth.

Gardenias are now offered for house culture but they demand a humid condition not generally successful.

Saturday, April 28

Grow a Boston ivy on brick or stone walls to soften the harsh lines; they are easy to grow requiring only that they be kept in bounds, especially around window frames. The Virginia creeper is very attractive but needs support.

The bittersweet is a strong, vigorous vine. The oriental species have better foliage with about the same kind of fruit as our native. Both do well in partial shade. One or two pollen bearing plants should be planted near others to be sure of fruits. English ivy is not hardy in the Chicago area unless well protected.

LOOP SYNAGOG CANTEEN PLANS 3D ANNIVERSARY

The Loop Synagog Service Men's canteen, 188 Randolph st., which has entertained more than 17,000 service men and women since its founding, will mark its third anniversary in July.

The canteen, open from 1 to 10:30 p. m. each Sunday, serves hot dinners to an average of 150 men, Mrs. Herman Rothenberg, chairman, said. Food is contributed by various philanthropic and social groups. Music for dancing is furnished by Mrs. Selma Abramson, pianist, and entertainment programs are scheduled.

Other workers are Mrs. Al Sporkin, Mrs. Isadore Silverman, and Mrs. Gill Wolf. L. A. Wittenberg is canteen director. Samuel Horwich is adviser to men.

B'nai B'rith Concert

Aaron Ascher, concert pianist, will appear before the North Shore B'nai B'rith lodge at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in Rogers Park Masonic temple, 1716 Lunt av. Louis L. Perlman and Jack Mann are chairmen. Morton L. Abram is president.

NORTH SIDE CLUB WILL SHOW LIFE IN 19TH CENTURY

One Week Display Will Begin on Friday

Maps and photographs showing religious, social, school, and business life of Ravenswood and Lake View communities in the 1800s will be on display at the 11th annual meeting of the Ravenswood-Lake View Historical association at 8 p. m. Friday in Hild library, 4544 Lincoln av.

Dr. Otto Eisenschiml, writer, will speak on "The Story of Lincoln's Assassination." James McCurrach, association president, will preside.

Several additions to the historical collection have been made in the last year, including a bound volume of Lake Breeze, a community newspaper, for the year 1894, which was contributed by Otto Eilrich, 1813 Milwaukee av., who worked for the newspaper as a boy. When it disbanded before 1900 each employe received a bound volume of the publication.

Stock Certificate Added

Another addition is a capital stock certificate of the Pure Milk Company of Ravenswood, dated 1886 and signed by Robert Greer of Summerdale community and John N. Hills of Ravenswood. The company called itself "the greatest practical exponent of prohibition," and advertised that "no alcoholic liquors [are] sold, kept, or used on our premises."

Also in the display is an advertisment of the milk company's loop restaurants, which declares a nickel will buy "a glass of absolutely pure milk or buttermilk, or a cup of coffee or tea with a biscuit, bun or three crackers," and that "genteel hot or cold lunches [are served] from 6:30 a. m. to 7 p. m." The documents were presented by Miss Ruth Chandler, 1827 Leland av., whose father, Charles Chandler, was a pioneer settler.

The exhibit, which will remain open a week, includes pictures of: Conrad Sulzer, who became first settler of the area in 1836 and for whom Sulzer st., now Montrose av., was named; first city hall of Lake View, built in 1872 at Halsted and Addison sts. on the present site of Town Hall police station; first horse car on Clark st., and the old library hall, erected in 1884 at Montrose and Hermitage avs.

Show Old Ravenswood Plat

Also in the display will be the original plat of Ravenswood, which was charred in the Chicago fire, and old maps of north side subdivisions. Photos of an 1890 blacksmith shop; Vogelsang's drug store, Lincoln and Fullerton avs., in 1895; Eckstrom's Hardtack bakery, Clark st. and Waveland av., and early schools and graduation classes are included.

Recent contributions to the collection also have been made by Mrs. John Halversen, 2026 Sunnyside av.; Philip Schupp, 2418 Foster av.; Miss Anna Sundberg, 4519 N. Hamilton av.; Dr. H. Kenneth Scatliff, 410 Florence av., Evanston; Chester A. Bush, 2530 Lawndale av., Evanston, and Mrs. H. H. Matteson, 2102 Sunnyside av.

Other officers of the association are Jessie E. Reed, honorary president; Sophie Chandler, Mrs. Alben Young, and Dr. Scatliff, vice presidents, and Helen Zatterberg, secretary-treasurer.

Friends of Finnish War Orphans Will Give Tea

Friends of the War Orphans of Finland will give a tea from 3 to 9 p. m. today in the Finnish Community center, 4219 Lincoln av., for benefit of Finnish war orphans. Songs by Rosa Lemberg and Edith Ahti will compose a program. Hostesses will be Mrs. Herman Nare, 929 Cornelia av., Mrs. Carl Strom, 1746 Fletcher st., and Mrs. Gust Kulo, 1125 Belden av.

Moroney Again Heads County of Lake Board

Emmett Moroney.

For the first time in more than 20 years a chairman of the Lake county board of supervisors was reëlected last week. Emmett Moroney, Highland Park, who has served a one year term, was reëlected by unanimous vote.

An assistant supervisor in Deerfield township, Moroney first became a county supervisor in 1934. The board has 36 members representing 18 townships.

At the instance of Moroney, the board voted to reduce the number of polling places for the 17th judicial district election June 4 from 103 to 32 in Lake county, a step which will cut expenses $75 a precinct or $5,325 for the county, it was estimated by County Clerk Jay B. Morse.

The step was taken, officials said, because voting probably will be slight since the election is uncontested. Candidates, all Republicans, for the three judicial vacancies are: Circuit Judges Ralph J. Dady, Waukegan, and William R. Dusher, Rockford, Ill., both seeking reëlection, and McHenry County State's Atty. William M. Carroll, Woodstock.

The three other counties of the district, McHenry, Boone, and Winnebago, expect to reduce the number of precincts also, Morse said, which will cause a saving of approximately $15,000.

GIRLS TO SHOW LATEST STYLES AT MUNDELEIN

Chosen by the fashion revue committee 15 seniors and 15 juniors of Mundelein college will serve as models for the annual fashion show and party scheduled for 8 p. m. Friday in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

The revue, which includes showings of campus clothes, street garb ranging from summer cottons to topcoats and furs, date dresses, and sports wear, will be climaxed with a model wedding.

The show is presented each year under the sponsorship of the Students Activities council. Proceeds go into war bonds, which, at their maturity, will be converted into the college library fund.

General chairman is Geraldine Stutz, president of the council. Her aids are Regina Casey, vice president; Shelia Finney, secretary, and Regina Bess, treasurer.

OPEN FIRST UNIT OF SCHOOL FOR ALTGELD HOMES

2 Other Buildings Near Completion

A new elementary school, the first of four buildings in a unit, being constructed to serve residents of the Altgeld housing project, was opened recently at 132d st. and Corliss av. A high school and an all-purpose building are expected to open within two weeks on the nine acre grounds.

A fourth building not included in original plans will be constructed to house the overflow of the elementary school. It will contain 14 classrooms for grade students.

Kindergarten is housed in the unit just occupied. Facilities for elementary students consist of 11 classrooms, a home mechanics room, and a library.

Facilities of High School

The high school building will contain five classrooms, an industrial art shop, library, mechanical drawing and art room, a home arts room, a band and orchestra room, and a science, chemistry and physics laboratory. The all-purpose building will house an assembly hall, gymnasium, and space for general community service.

The new unit will serve the children of approximately 1,500 war working families within the housing project which is located miles from any other school. Ultimate enrollment is expected to reach 1,850 elementary and 300 high school students. Youngsters have been attending classes in one of the apartment buildings until the school was completed.

Hope to Repeat Plan

"This new school design," said John C. Christensen, board of education architect, "requires nine acres of ground and utilizes the plan the board hopes to follow hereafter when constructing public schools, space permitting. Its new all-on-one-floor design is an outstanding architectural departure from existing school layouts. This plans saves operational cost in heating and maintenance, eliminates stair climbing, and also provides opportunity for expansion of buildings upward as well as sideways should the community require additional school facilities in the future."

The entire design, developed by Christensen and the object of scrutiny and approval of many school authorities also provides for landscaping of the school grounds adjacent to the buildings. It allows space for possible future expansions and for outdoor physical activities of the students.

Given Federal Funds

The original three building unit cost was $507,000 of which $328,000 was contributed by the federal government and $179,000 by the board of education. The cost of the fourth structure is $179,896, with $131,888 provided by federal aid and $48,008 by the board.

Amerigo R. Sansone is principal of the elementary school and M. S. McFarland assistant principal. New teachers will include Anna G. Robinson, Geraldine W. Swanson, C. McCafferty Fish, Ruth Erickson, Frances Hope, Mary I. Byrne, Roberta Dixon, Eleanor Conover, Virginia Cooper, Edith Bernstein, Helen Binder, Sarajane Caddick, Lillian Swanson, Teresa Murphy, Mary Henry, Evelyn Allison, Elizabeth Bard, Mary Rita Brooks, Marion Jones, Lucille Mutter, and Ada Trepal.

GRADE SCHOOLS DO THORO JOB IN CLEANUP DRIVE

Little Escapes Keen Eyed Youngsters

Not to be outdone by students in the high schools, elementary school pupils have concentrated their efforts in this year's cleanup, paintup, plantup, and fixup campaign. The campaign is sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce in cooperation with the board of education.

This year's campaign will climax a year of projects and activities at the Oakenwald school, 4071 Lake Park av. These projects have been designed to improve and maintain the attractiveness of the students themselves, their school surroundings, their homes, and their community. Work has been conducted by Mrs. Ethel C. Watts, principal, Miss Mary Hanrahan, assistant principal, Miss Anne Noone, faculty sponsor, and members of the student council.

"Glamorize" Corridors

Faculty and student workers were organized last fall to undertake the task of cleaning and "glamorizing" school corridors, offices, lunch room, library, and the assembly hall. Recently completed is a new clubroom which was converted by students from an empty classroom.

More than 150 students took advantage of the bargain seed offer made by William C. Cooney, district superintendent, to those interested in war gardening. Teachers and PTA members will check individual plots in June and again in September. When this campaign ends in September prizes will be awarded for the best garden produce.

Among student council members taking an active part in the campaigns are Carlene Peterson, Ronald Suntken, Robert Larsen, Dorvis Hensley, Donald Spairhour, Lloyd Cassidy, Dan Huntress, Ronald Wortham, George Green, Ken Kimura, Dorothy Wenk, and Joyce Hammond.

Madison Clears Playgrounds

Students at Madison school, 7433 Dorchester av., have been concentrating their efforts on cleaning vacant lots not suitable for war gardens to be used as playgrounds. Heading the student committee, which is made up of block captains, are Eugene Mostalbano and Eugene Birmingham. Mrs. Ella C. Lehmann is faculty sponsor.

The committee has distributed posters to the various stores in the area to be displayed during the campaign. In a poster contest sponsored by Hirsch High school, Eugene Mostalbano was awarded second prize.

Special cleanup assembly programs have been given at Dixon school, 8306 St. Lawrence av., to emphasize this year's campaign slogan, "Don't Delay; Cleanup Today." Films of the school's former cleanup parade, and of war gardens will be shown. The campaign has been carried out by the student council under chairmanship of Virginia Barton, president, and Howard Bolsom, representative. Mrs. Edna Harris is faculty sponsor.

Paul Crage, art student, was one of the winners of poster contest sponsored by Hirsch High school. Other posters made in the department will be on display in community store windows.

Students at Ruggles school, 7841 Prairie av., have distributed posters. Herbert Goll was given honorable mention in the poster contest. Another student, Robert Bodie, was awarded the Federation of Women's club prize for his poster which will be sent to Springfield for an exhibit. Other phases of the campaign are being handled by the 30 members of the student council headed by Dorothy McAver, Patricia and Jack Sullivan, James Richards, and Geraldine Caldwell. Mrs. Regina Viall is faculty sponsor.

Revere in Four Way "Attack"

In this year's cleanup campaign youngsters at Revere school, 7145 Ellis av., are working on four fronts: Sponsoring a war garden contest in the community, keeping the school building and grounds clean and planting flowers on the grounds, keeping themselves neat, and collecting scrap paper every Tuesday.

Members of the cleanup committee include Joan Knight, Nancy Crowley, Katherine Korpan, Buddy May, Jean Arnold, Marvin Ledbetter, William Zimmerman, Maurine Barrett, Edith Betts, Rene Wattelet, Audrey Wallace, Joseph Provenzano, Leon Close, and Lois Triner.

Cleanup shows have been held at Bright school, 10740 Calhoun av., with an admission charge of scrap paper. In this manner students are combining the scrap drive and the cleanup campaign into one concentrated effort. Cleanup chairmen have been appointed in each room and the school has distributed posters made in art classes for display in store windows. Mrs. Agnes Banks is faculty sponsor.

Kenwood Cleans House

Especially active on the committee are Fred Wilkerson, Catherine Pakaski, and Lucille Sweeney. The school has submitted several songs in the contest held at Bowen High school.

Students at Kenwood school, 4959 Blackstone av., are cleaning house in honor of the drive. School desks are being cleared, blackboards washed, and bookcases straightened and in the community youngsters are coöperating to keep lawns and buildings neat.

Under sponsorship of Mrs. Emily Evans, posters were submitted for the Hyde Park High school poster contest. Chairmen have been appointed in each classroom, among whom are Fred Seidner, Maurice Davis, Norman Fisher, Albert Jordan, Betty Tracy, Janice Rosenthal, Norma Oberndorf, and Barbara Sider.

WOMAN'S GROUP OF UNIVERSITY CHURCH TO MEET

The Woman's club of the University Church of Disciples of Christ will meet at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the church house, 5655 University av. The citizenship department under chairmanship of Mrs. James M. Gaston will report.

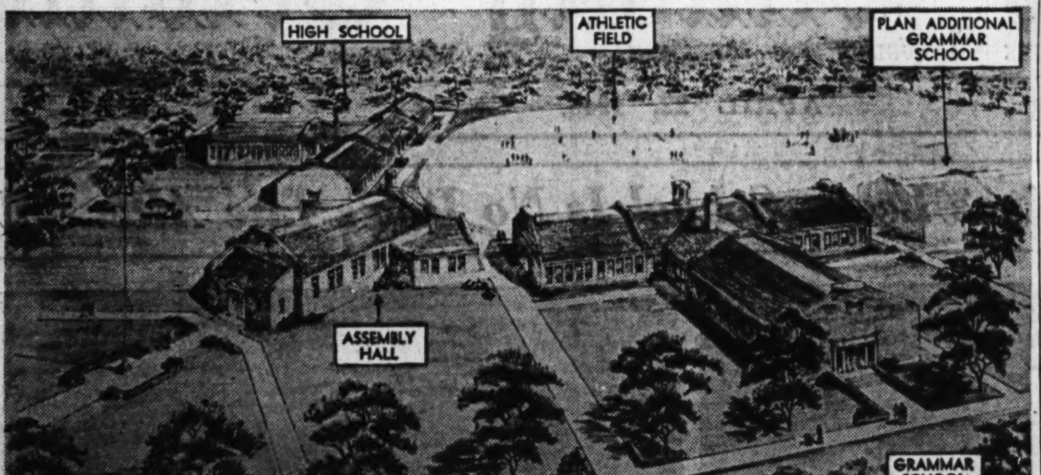
Newly elected officers to be installed by Mrs. B. Fred Wise, outgoing president, include: Mrs. Charles McCray, president; Mrs. James Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Alexander Coutts, secretary; Mrs. Walter P. Hanley, treasurer, and Mrs. Donald H. Steward and Mrs. Fred Henderson, program chairman.

Mrs. J. Frank Page will present a picture travelog on "Down Mexico Way." Hostess will be Mrs. Robert Klings.

Auxiliary of Woodlawn Legion Will Give Party

Woodlawn post, American Legion auxiliary, will hold its annual card party at 8 p. m. tomorrow at post headquarters, 6308 Woodlawn av. Mrs. Louise Roush, 8404 Vernon av., is auxiliary president.

Plan Four Unit School for Altgeld Housing Project



Plan of the new four building school unit under construction at 132d st. and Corliss av. When completed the unit will consist of a high school, and an all purpose building, including assembly hall and gymnasium, to be opened within two weeks; a recently opened elementary school building, and a planned additional elementary school building. The entire project, including athletic field, will cover nine acres. The school will serve children living in the Altgeld housing project. (Story on page 1)

HYDE PARK HIGH'S FORMER VARSITY GETS NEWS SOON

To keep former Hyde Park High school grid players in touch with their school and with each other, a monthly newsletter is a part of a service men's project inaugurated by the Varsity Mothers' club.

Mrs. T. F. Lannin

Under leadership of Mrs. Thomas F. Lannin, past president, contact already has been established with more than 150 varsity men now in military service, and addresses of others are sought. Mrs. Lannin, wife and mother of two Hyde Park alumni, has set up a clearing house for service men's news in her home at 7028 Clyde av.

Also Send Greetings, Gifts

Newspapers, magazines, gift boxes, and birthday greetings are mailed to the boys, in addition to the mimeographed news letter, and letters from camps and war zones rate individual answers from Mrs. Lannin.

Mrs. Lannin's son, Thomas Jr., who was named Hyde Park's most valuable football man in 1943, entered army service in February and is now stationed at Camp Wheeler, Ga. Her husband, who captained the south side team in 1918, was an all-Chicago end.

Others Help with Project

Other assisting varsity mothers are Mrs. S. J. Fallick, 2051 E. 67th st., whose son, Stuart, '44, is now in the Pacific; Mrs. Herman Baum, 1708 E. 69th st., whose son, Joseph, '44, is awaiting call into the army, and Mrs. Noel Bauer, 2212 E. 70th st., president of the club, whose son Bob is still in school.

Also coöperating is Elliott Hasan, Hyde Park coach since 1929.

CAP 20 WOMEN FROM SO. SIDE AS NURSES' AIDS

STORMY'S GRASP OF KNOWLEDGE AT 10 AMAZING

When asked what peninsula lies between the Bering and Okhotsk seas in the Pacific ocean, many people would no doubt counter-question, what's the gag?

Quick to answer just such a question recently, however, was 10 year old Dean [Stormy] Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben W. Barry, 7941 Muskegon av. Stormy recently rated a chair on the Quiz Kids radio program and this was one of the sticklers asked. A specialist in geography, history, and current events, Stormy found the question easy.

Teachers Get Corrections

Stormy reads the comics, rides his bike, and earns his allowance just like any other boys, but admits to a great liking for school . . . and frequently corrects the teacher. However, teachers at Bradwell school, 7710 Burnham av., are used to such precocious children having had no less than six, including Harve Fishman and Gerard Darrow in their classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry discovered their son's unusually retentive mind when he was in 1st grade. Altho he knew the letters and could read before starting school it was a game given him by his dad one Christmas that developed Stormy's mental capacities.

Game Wears Out Quickly.

Winning the game depended on how many state and country capitals one knew. The first day Stormy's dad won . . . all day, but, by the next day his son had memorized them all and the game definitely was over.

He is an ardent reader of the National Geographic magazine and has an unusual liking for maps. He hangs them on the walls of his room where he can study them at leisure and his mother reports that they are replaced frequently as Stormy memorizes them.

His parents never cease to be amazed at what their son has learned or his ability to learn. His marks at school are the best without any apparent effort on his part. Take homework for instance: "If Stormy has a book report to write," related his mother, "he dictates it to me as I type it and when finished, it reads as smoothly as if he had written it out first. Really, it's harder on me than on him."

Wants to Be a Doctor

Like any other boy, Stormy is crazy about his dad and follows him around whenever he is home. His parents take their brainstorm offspring quite calmly and modestly insist "he has had an advantage over many children in that he had an older brother and sister." Stormy's brother, Lt. Thomas H. Barry was killed in a plane crash last January.

Right now Stormy thinks he would like to be a doctor, with baseball as a sideline." However, his mind is subject to change. Only recently he had decided to be a pilot. One thing he does know tho, is the answer to the question in paragraph 1. It is, according to him, the Kamchatka peninsula, part of the soviet union.

NEW AIR SHOWS POP UP; MANY ON W-G-N - MUTUAL

BY LARRY WOLTERS

New shows, one after another, are popping up this spring—the season of the year usually marked by tapering off of radio activity. Many of the newcomers are W-G-N and Mutual productions. Mutual has introduced a group of attractive new half hour evenings productions.

Arch Oboler has been summoned from Hollywood and is writing and producing a new series of plays, aired at 9:30 p. m. Thursday. Oboler is well remembered here for his old Lights Out series and for much subsequent highly original radio drama.

The Freshup show features Barney Grant, a comedian who has met with considerable favor entertaining troops overseas. It's aired at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays.

Revive Broadway Hits

The Brownstone Theater, aired at 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays, features revivals of old Broadway hits. Jackson Beck and Gertrude Warner are regularly featured. The show has just begun a guest star policy with Jane Cowl appearing as the first one.

Jean Goldkette, who returned to the air last Saturday with a 60 piece orchestra, features unusual arrangements of old and new music. He is inviting composers and arrangers to make suggestions. Dell Parker, his songstress, has an unusual voice. This show is aired from Detroit at 8 p. m. Saturdays. Just ahead of it comes a new program titled Symphony of the Americas, devoted to music of the many American nations.

Sweetheart Time, a half hour musical variety interlude, was introduced recently at 1 p. m. Sundays, with Marion Mann and Phil Kalar as vocal soloists.

Calling All Detectives

Calling All Detectives, a thriller already running on Mutual, will be introduced on W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, April 28. Elsa Maxwell, wit and commentator, will preside over a series titled Party Line. Miss Maxwell will be heard at 10:15 a. m. week-days over W-G-N starting Monday, April 30.

The Human Adventure, the dramatic series broadcast by W-G-N in coöperation with the University of Chicago, will be aired shortly under commercial sponsorship.

WGNB, sister FM station, recently introduced many new features and adopted a policy of emphasizing live talent programs.

Other New Shows

New shows on other networks include these:

The Billie Burke show, with Florence Lake, John Brown, and Eddy Howard's orchestra, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday over NBC.

CBS has started a new series featuring dramatization and narration of great novels. Currently "A Tale of Two Cities," with Michael Scott as narrator, is presented at 2:15 p. m. week-days.

The Mood and the Melody, recently introduced on the Blue at 8 p. m. Mondays has been moved to 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays. It features Nancy Evans, a singing newcomer on the networks—promising, too—Boyce Smith and Rex Maupin's orchestra. Another new one on the Blue is "The Man from G-2," spy stories from military intelligence. It is aired at 6:30 p. m. Thursdays.

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today. The frequencies [in megacycles] employed after 4:15 p. m. are: 11.93, 9.58, 9.82, 6.11, 7.26, 9.51. 4:45 p. m.—News. 6:30 p. m.—Radio Newsreel. 9:10 p. m.—Tomorrow's London papers. 11:30 p. m.—News reports.

Quiz Kids to Welcome John Steuart Curry

The Quiz Kids will welcome John Steuart Curry, celebrated American artist as their guest on WENR-Blue at 6:30 o'clock tonight. The small fry savants slated to appear on tonight's show are: Joel Kupperman, Ruthie Duskin, Harve Fischman, Richard Williams, and Lorene Heath, a newcomer who specializes in coping with questions concerning art and opera. Joe Kelly will be quizmaster.

HOLDS TRAINING IS KEY TO GOOD NEGRO FIGHTER

Special Aid Reports on Battle Tour

Negro fighters are as efficient as white fighters provided they are given the same training and the same treatment, and used in the same way, Truman K. Gibson Jr., civilian aid to the secretary of war, told audiences of fellow Chicago Negroes after his return from Mediterranean and European war zones.

Gibson, an attorney with offices at 8507 South Park way, was the target of criticism after he reportedly charged shortcomings against colored troops when he was interviewed in Rome March 14.

Heard by Church Groups

In Chicago for a brief visit, Gibson spoke to audiences in the Woodlawn African Methodist Episcopal church, 65th st. and Evans av., and in the Pilgrim Baptist church, 33d st. and Indiana av.

"Difference between troops is a matter of training, motivation, and environment, not of race," he told relatives and friends of men in the 92d division, Negro unit now in Italy. "The problem of the Negro in the army will not be solved on V-day."

Instances of discrimination against colored service men in Italy, such as separate officers clubs and reluctance to place Negroes in positions of command, were related by Gibson, but he brought assurance that the situation is being remedied. He declared that training in the deep south was a factor in the seeming inadequacy of certain colored units.

Praise for Colored Heroes

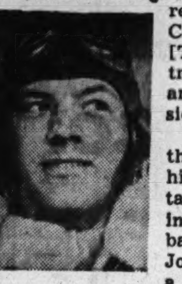
"The disappointing showing of a few small units is not the important thing to the army," he asserted; "the real question is the cause of this difficulty and means of curing it." Remarkable heroism has been shown by many colored service men, he said, and cited the field artillery battalions headed by Lt. Col. Marcus H. Ray and Lt. Col. Wendell Derricks, Chicago Negroes, as examples.

Colored fighters stationed in France have been accorded much better treatment than were those in Italy in the past, Gibson told his audiences. He told of questioning a white noncommissioned officer about the Negroes, and receiving the reply, "When you're out there fighting it doesn't matter who is beside you, just so he is doing a good job of killing Germans. And these Negro soldiers are doing just that thing."

Calumet Glee Club

The Calumet Industrial Glee club will give its 19th annual concert and show at 8:15 p. m. Thursday and Friday at South Chicago Masonic temple, 91st st. and Exchange av. Fred Leichner is club president, and Vern Williams, director.

★ With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS ★



Arthur Vail.

Arthur Vail, son of Mrs. A. H. Vail, 1725 E. 53d st., was graduated recently from the Corpus Christi [Tex.] naval air training base and was commissioned an ensign.

When one of the companies of his infantry battalion was caught in an artillery barrage, Capt. John R. Toben, a surgeon with a medical detachment, quickly organized a litter team and led them into the area to evacuate the wounded. Finding one soldier seriously wounded, Capt. Toben, whose wife, Margaret, lives at 8248 Ingleside av., disregarded the fire to render medical treatment to the man. For this action on the 5th army front in Italy he recently was awarded the bronze star.

Wounded in Belgium, Pvt. Bernard E. Ingersoll, son of Mrs. Mary Ingersoll, 8052 Saginaw st., has been awarded the Purple Heart. An infantry man, Pvt. Ingersoll, is recuperating in a hospital in France. He is a graduate of Leo High school and has been overseas since October, 1944.

High man in his class in special gunnery training was John A. Vannucci, coxswain, whose wife resides at 7751 Langley av. He is now on duty at the amphibious training base, Coronado, Cal.

Lawrence Shefsky.

Stationed with the A. A. F. engineer command in Italy, Lawrence Shefsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Shefsky, 7933 Langley av., was promoted to corporal. He has been overseas 18 months and has been in Tunisia and Italy.

Three overseas veterans currently assigned to the A. A. F. redistribution station at Santa Ana, Cal., are Capt. Sidney M. Levine, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Levine, 6207 Ellis av.; Capt. Philip D. Cohen, son of Mrs. Celia Cohen, 7513 Cornell av., and Lt. Joseph P. Ruzich, 9730 Merrill av. Capt. Levine, navigator aboard a Liberator and later a Flying Fortress, holds the air medal with two clusters. Capt. Cohen, P-51 pilot, wears the air medal with 10 clusters and the distinguished flying cross, and Lt. Ruzich, Flying Fortress bombardier, wears the air medal with five clusters.

Eldred B. Swift Jr., 4170 Drexel blvd., recently was promoted from technical sergeant to second lieutenant with the 8th air force in England. He is now officer in charge of the bombsight supply section at a repair and supply base for Liberator bombers. Lt. Swift is a graduate of Hyde Park High school and the University of Illinois.

Thomas Luczo.

Sgt. Thomas Luczo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Luczo, 9349 Cottage Grove av., is engineer and top turret gunner on an 8th air force Flying Fortress in England. He has been in service since October, 1940, and wears the air medal with four clusters. The group to which he is attached has been cited by the President twice.

Sgt. David J. Joslyn, son of Mrs. Susan D. Joslyn, 7007 South Park av., is now a patient at Moore General hospital, Swannanoa, N. C. Sgt. Joslyn, who served in the Southwest Pacific, wears the bronze star for heroic achievement.

The silver star for gallantry recently was awarded to Lt. Kenneth H. Saul, son of Mrs. Edna M. Saul, 7822 Indiana av. He is serving with the infantry in France and has been overseas since January, 1944.

Musical Will Be Given by Fairview Masons

The Fairview chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Illinois, will be host to all Master Masons, wives, and friends at 8:15 p. m. Saturday in Midway Masonic temple hall, 6115 Cottage Grove av. The program, "The Saturday Nite Review," is a musical with the Chicago Association of Commerce Glee club, the Rhythm String Quintet, and the chapter's own Glum Chasers participating.

CARBOLA
HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS
Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.
TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS
In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.
Hardware, seed, feed, drug stores.

TEACH DOGS HOW TO RESPOND TO MASTER'S VOICE

One Class a Week, but Lots of Homework

Friday night is school night for dogs whose masters belong to the South Side All Breed Dog Training club. Classes are held at 8 p. m. in the spacious basement of Tuley park fieldhouse, 90th st. and St. Lawrence av.

The school, which has been running for two years, started with 10 canine students and their owners. Enrollment has increased to 60. By-laws of the club state that all dogs must be of a breed or variety of breeds recognized by the American Kennel club. Pups must be at least 6 months old.

Go on Probation First

A dog enters for a six month probationary period to determine if the dog and its master will fit in and work with the class. "Some people," William Zelke, training director, remarked, "are harder to train than their dogs."

There are eight trainers. All are amateurs who learned their art at various dog clubs and who apply it in the classes for the pleasure of working with dogs. No fee is attached to the school outside of nominal club dues. Each of the five grades is conducted in a separate room.

A Graded Curriculum

Dogs progress thru a graded course: 1st grade, to heel with leash, to sit or lie on command, and to about turn; 2d grade, to stay in a sitting or lying position, to left about turn, to recall [come when called from a great distance]; 3d grade, heel off leash, slow double time, stand for examination, to sit for three and lie for five minutes, and to carry a dumbbell; 4th grade, to drop on recall, to retrieve the dumbbell flat and execute high and broad jumps, to stay on command when owner leaves the room.

In 5th grade, or the advanced class, they are taught to "speak" on command, scent discrimination, seek for lost articles, jump with the dumbbell over high and bar jumps, and to track. In each grade a continuous review of preceding grades is given.

Owners Must Also Work

"However," reminded Zelke, "all this training won't do much good at all if the dog is only worked with at school. They need a daily workout in order to teach them and expect them to remember obedience training. Here at the classes we only can show the owner how to go about teaching his dog."

Zelke and his wife, who is president of the club, have been dog lovers from way back. They own a perfectly trained 8 year old Dane who served as an official recruiter during the dogs for defense campaign. Many of the trainers, including the Zelkes, helped to examine dogs during the recruiting period.

Many Breeds in School

Among breeds represented are setters, German shepherds, boxers, Dobermann-Pinschers, schnauzers, wire haired and Irish terriers, cockers, springers, collies, beagles, and a little black schipperke, who is not a bit disturbed by the presence of so many bigger dogs.

Do they like school? The reactions vary: some look bored and yawn, some get playful, and some seem to say they're doing all this to humor their masters. One of them, for certain, doesn't like it. He is Copper King Von Simbauer, a Dobermann belonging to Mrs. George Kleifges, 9217 Elizabeth st.

Tries to Hide

"When I tell him we are going to school," she said, "he puts his ears back, looks very woe-begone, and tries to crawl off someplace. It's probably because he was grown up when I started him."

Officers of the club include Mrs. Zelke, 2317 41st st., president; Roland Horton, Oak Lawn, vice president; James Lezatte, 7049 Vincennes av., treasurer, and Mrs. Leon Kushner, 1708 E. 68th st., secretary. Trainers are Roland Horton, James Lezatte, Harry Rosenhagen, 10038 S. Oakley av.; Hazel Chandler, 2260 W. 113th st.; Earl Grange, 11239 Longwood dr.; Walter Carlson, 2019 W. 82d st., and Guy Russell, 10426 Charles st.

Band of Du Sable High Wins Superior Rating

The band of Du Sable High school, 3934 Wabash av., was among the seven Chicago high school bands awarded a rating of superior in the annual four day competition held recently by the board of education.

This Week in the Garden

Certain tools are necessary for a successful garden and new tools are difficult to obtain. Hence all broken tools should be repaired. If a handle is broken all that is necessary is to remove the rivet in the old handle and replace with the new. Grease the new handle and it can be driven in place and secured with a rivet.

Tools allowed to stand outdoors may become warped. Always hang tools with their handles down. Trowels are best kept in baskets which can be easily carried from place to place. Keep tools clean and sharp with a flat file.

Never sharpen a spade to a thin edge, for it is quickly nicked. To lengthen the usefulness of handles that may become roughened from exposure to the weather, rub floor wax or oil over them.

A sowing of the cole crops of vegetables should be made at intervals of 10 days or two weeks and all crops should be used when "garden fresh" if they are to be enjoyed to their fullest capacity and the vitamins they contain be utilized completely.

Leaf crops should follow root crops, such as lettuce following beets and carrots, late cabbage after onions or radishes, carrots following spinach, wax beans following turnips.

Here is a list of probable yields per 100 feet: Snap beans, 1½ bushels; pole beans, 2 bushels; beets, 1 to 2 bushels; broccoli, 100 bushels; cabbage, 50 heads; carrots, 1 to 2 bushels; corn, 12 dozen; lettuce, 75 to 100 heads; onions, 1 bushel; Chinese cabbage, 60 heads.

Gardenias are now offered for house culture but they demand a humid condition not generally successful.

SGT. W. J. CONROY LEAVES POLICE AFTER 39 YEARS

Hopes to Take Place as War Worker

After 39 years as a policeman, during which he solved a number of homicides and participated in nearly all the other activities of the force, Sgt. William J. Conroy doesn't intend to take life easy just because he's 63 today and being retired.

"I've been working since I was 12 and I'm not going to stop now if I can help it," he declares. Leaving the police department today, he will soon take up the equally active life of a war worker, perhaps as a machinist and millwright, his trade before he became a policeman in 1906.

If ever he has time for reminiscence, however, Sgt. Conroy will have some genuine adventures to recall.

Covered G. O. P. Conventions

As a member for 17 years of the first police drill company, organized here in 1907, he aided in directing some of the largest parades Chicago has seen. The company was also assigned to duty at conventions, including two national Republican meetings. He was stationed, at various times, at the old 1st, 2d, and 3d districts, and at the detective bureau. For nine years he was at the Englewood station, part of the time as a detective sergeant, and during the last 12 years he has been at the Brighton Park station.

One vivid memory is of the Eastland disaster, July 24, 1915. "I was out at 50th and State sts. when we got word that the boat had gone down, and when we reached the river we were there to stay," Sgt. Conroy recalls. For four days and four nights, without rest, he was on duty at the scene—first removing bodies from the water to a warehouse, then standing guard while tearful relatives came to identify them. "It seemed to us that everybody in the United States was coming," he says.

Probes Deaths of Policemen

Two south side slayings which Sgt. Conroy was assigned to investigate were of fellow policemen. On Christmas eve, 1915, he and his partner were walking thru their district when they met Policeman John Ransford, who had retired from the force just three days earlier. Conroy was introduced to Ransford, and after a brief conversation about holiday plans they parted.

Fifteen minutes later Sgt. Conroy was notified that Ransford had been shot in a holdup attempt at 45th and State sts. The victim was taken to the Provident hospital where he later died and Conroy and other policemen followed the slayer's footsteps thru the snow and arrested him within a few minutes. He was convicted.

Sons in War Jobs

Son of a policeman in the town of Hyde Park, Sgt. Conroy is the third of five generations of his family living in that section. His father and grandfather were Hyde Park residents, as are his two sons and two daughters, and his only grandson, 9 year old William J. Conroy III. Sgt. Conroy is a widower and lives at 6100 Greenwood av.

In accepting a war plant job, Sgt. Conroy will be following the lead of his children. Both William Jr., 30, and Edward, 28, are war plant mechanics, and Eleanor, 24, has a secretarial position in a war industry. His other daughter, Patricia, 14, is a student at Hyde Park High school.

S. Side B'nai B'rith to Hold World Peace Symposium

South Side B'nai B'rith will sponsor a symposium on "A World Organization for Peace," at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday in the Shoreland hotel. Taking part in the discussion will be George L. Quilici, Noble W. Lee, dean at John Marshall Law school, and Reuben Freedman, Chicago Daily Law Bulletin staff. Monte Randall will be moderator.

TRINITY'S GIRLS IN RIVER FOREST SET BOND MARK

School Sales Exceed $1,000,000

Trinity High school, River Forest, is credited with being the first Catholic high school in Illinois to reach the million dollar mark in sales of war savings bonds and stamps.

In February, 1943, the students set a goal of selling $25,000 in bonds before June and acquiring a minute man flag at the earliest opportunity. Sales during the first week netted $15,525 for bonds and $178.75 for stamps. By the end of the second week the quota of $25,000 plus $3,275 was reached. Before the end of February Mrs. Leo P. Cummings presented the school the minute man flag. Since then the weekly sale of stamps has been an average of about 15 cents per pupil. The enrollment is 820 girls.

Buy First Bomber

With their new goal $75,000, the price of a pursuit bomber, the girls interested relatives and neighbors in their campaign. Joan of Arc, the name proposed for the bomber, became a reality. Then 132 jeeps were purchased. When school closed that June total sales had reached $262,000.

When the third loan drive opened with school in September purchase of an ambulance plane, Trinity, became the goal and sales reached $145,600. A patriotic program at assembly increased the sale by more than $50,000.

During the fourth war loan when Hildegarde visited Trinity sales rose to a new high of $200,800, and a second ambulance plane, the St. Michael, was purchased.

Ambition to purchase a Mitchell medium bomber costing $175,000 materialized at the time of the fifth war loan scheduled for June, 1944. Total sales from February, 1943, to June, 1944, had thereforee amounted to $751,000.

Parents Send Aid

Sales mounted to a total of $960,000 when Phil Regan was chosen for the sixth war loan celebrity at Trinity. Since then interested parents of students have made Trinity's dream a reality, for in March the $1,000,000 mark was reached. At the request of the girls, a number of whom had brothers or near-relatives killed or wounded in action, two more ambulance planes were purchased.

Now, with the seventh war loan coming up, the 820 students at Trinity are ready with $108,000, the price of a navy scout bomber Helldiver as the goal.

WORK OF URBAN LEAGUE WILL BE SHOWN AT PARTY

An introduction to the work of the Chicago Urban league, a social afternoon, and a program of music and dramatics have been planned for guests at the league's membership tea this afternoon Tyre Masonic temple, 127 N. Francisco av.

Sponsored by west side committees, the tea is a benefit event. Proceeds will be used to extend civic education and public relations work.

Chief speaker will be the Rev. Archibald J. Carey, pastor of the Woodlawn African Methodist Episcopal church. A. L. Foster, executive director of the league, also will address the group.

Mrs. Vester Clemmons, program chairman, said there will be vocal selections by Harriet Clemmons, Hazel Davidson, and a trio from the Victory Singers chorus. A piano solo by Barbara Kelly, and readings by Lucille Harris and Rhoda Jordan also are on the program. Mrs. Mamie Phillips will be mistress of ceremonies.

Dr. Joshua M. Brown is chairman of the far west side campaign committee, with Mrs. Montee Rodgers social chairman. L. C. Branch is chairman of the near west side committee, and Mrs. V. M. Brooks, social chairman. Mrs. Tast Ridley of the league's west side office is staff consultant.

ELMHURST BOYS SEE DREAMS OF CABIN REALIZED

Scouts and Dads Build with Rail Ties

Fulfilling the dreams for more than a year of Elmhurst Boy Scouts and cubs, a cabin at Herrick lake, near Warrenville, in the Du Page County Forest preserve, today will be given its finishing touches.

Financing of the project has been accomplished thru the collection and sale of waste paper. Fathers of the boys have aided in the war time drives as well as in the erection of the cabin in the woods. More than 750,000 pounds of paper were collected, and the cabin fund has reached a total of $5,500.

Built of Rail Ties

The cabin, built of railroad ties, is 24x56 feet and is large enough to accommodate 50 Scouts over night. Construction of the cabin, begun last November, has been carried out on week-ends by dads who, for the most part, were unskilled as carpenters.

Business and professional men of Elmhurst have coöperated with the Scouts both in the paper drives and the cabin plans. The Scouts passed out posters calling attention to the collection dates and brought the paper out of basements. The dads, with trucks and trailers, attended to the hauling.

Trophies on Walls

The cabin, with its huge fireplace and its walls hung with trophies, will be assigned to Scout groups for winter camping on week-ends and for longer periods during the summer months. It is located about 15 miles from Elmhurst, but is less than a mile from the railroad.

Members of the building committee are W. M. Quine, district commissioner; H. O. Cedarholm, district chairman; John Boesenberg, finance chairman, and John Crabtree, scoutmaster of troop 71.

Elmhurst has 750 boys active in the Scouting program. There are 12 Scout troops and seven cub packs.

WESTMONT'S NEW PRESIDENT A YOUNG LEADER

William H. Lossie, new president of the village of Westmont, is one of the more youthful community leaders to emerge victorious in the recent elections. He was born Jan. 8, 1910, on a farm near Hinsdale, and upon his graduation from Hinsdale High school was employed by the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

Since 1929 Mr. Lossie has served as assistant cashier of the First State bank of Westmont. For a term he was secretary and treasurer of the Du Page County Bankers' association.

In 1941 Mr. Lossie was elected to the Westmont board of trustees, and in 1943 to a six year term as trustee of the Downers Grove Township schools. He is a past president of of the Westmont Lions club, and for seven years was president of the board of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church of Hinsdale.

The woman's auxiliary to the Aux Plaines branch of the Chicago Medical society will hold its annual meeting and election of officer at 2 p. m. Friday in the home of Mrs. Douglas J. Doyle, 4921 Jackson blvd. Mrs. W. A. Gullickson will review "Burma Surgeon" by Gordon S. Seagraves. Mrs. M. F. Stein is program chairman.

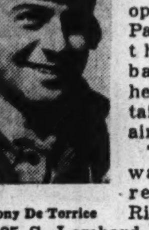
With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Thirty-two bombing missions have been completed by Sgt. Ralph E. Siegel, 320 N. Lotus av., radio operator and gunner on a Flying Fortress. He has logged more than 225 hours of flight thru combat zones in the European theater. A member of the 8th air force, he has been awarded the air medal with four clusters.

Sgt. Ralph E. Siegel

Capt. John J. Pedicone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tolete Pedicone, 5350 Van Buren st., is air flight officer at Cazes air base, Casablanca, North African division of the air transport command. Overseas 26 months, he has been in service since December, 1941. He attended St. Mel High school and Northwestern university.

Anthony D. Torrice, boatswain's mate 2d class, Riverside, is serving aboard a coast guard manned army freight supply vessel operating in the Pacific invasion theater. At battle stations, he is a gun captain on an antiaircraft gun.

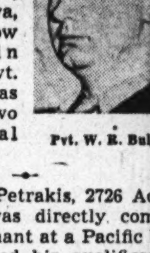


Anthony De Torrice

The air medal was awarded recently to Lt. Richard W. Miller, 525 S. Lombard av., Oak Park. Co-pilot with a heavy bomber crew, Lt. Miller is stationed in Italy with a veteran Liberator squadron that has flown more than 200 long range bombing missions in the 15th air force campaign to destroy Nazi fuel production and transport facilities.

Gottfried L. Gorr, 2725 23d pl., has been commissioned second lieutenant at an 8th air force bomber base in England. Formerly a flight officer, he distinguished himself during the February-March blitz on communication lines and rail movements supplying German troops on the eastern and western fronts.

Marine Pvt. William R. Bulger, son of Mrs. Sadie Bulger, Elgin, has been awarded the bronze star for gallantry in major engagements in the Pacific theater. He saw action at Guadalcanal, Tulagi, Tarawa, and Saipan. Now stationed in Norfolk, Va., Pvt. Bulger also has received two Presidential unit citations.



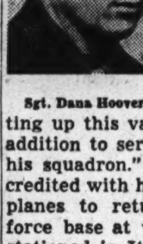
Pvt. W. R. Bulger

Sgt. George Petrakis, 2726 Adams st., recently was directly commissioned a lieutenant at a Pacific base. He demonstrated his qualifications for commissioned rank by heroic action during operations against the Japanese on Palau Island.

Promotion to first lieutenant has been announced in Italy for Joseph I. Prokes, Berwyn, co-pilot on a 15th air force Liberator bomber.

The bronze star for meritorious service in direct support of combat operations has been awarded to Pvt. Arthur W. Stout, son of Mrs. George Davies, 1339 S. Kostner av. Pvt. Stout is with the 45th division of the 7th army. During his two years overseas he has seen action in Sicily, Italy, Salerno, Anzio, southern France, and Germany. On his campaign ribbon he wears five combat stars. He also has been awarded the good conduct ribbon and a front line combat medal.

For building special radio navigational equipment, the bronze star has been awarded to Sgt. Dana R. Hoover, 5259 Washington blvd. His official citation reads in part: "Using salvaged material and working with limited tools and equipment, Sgt. Hoover spent many hours of his spare time building and setting up this valuable equipment, in addition to servicing the aircraft of his squadron." The equipment was credited with helping many crippled planes to return to the 15th air force base at which Sgt. Hoover is stationed in Italy.



Sgt. Dana Hoover

Marine Sgt. Derderian, 2216 Polk st., has been awarded the silver star medal for heroic action on Peleliu in the Pacific theater. A member of the 1st marine division, he knocked out a Japanese pillbox with a demolition charge, eliminating a serious threat to the successful landing of succeeding waves of marines. He later blew up two large caves, destroying an enemy ammunition dump and killing several Japs who were holding up the advance.

In Italy, Robert P. Spizziri, son of Peter Spizziri, 740 S. Oakley blvd., has been promoted to staff sergeant. Overseas for almost two years, Sgt. Spizziri is chief operator of a signal depot aviation company. He attended McKinley High school, and at the time of his entrance into the army was employed by a radio products corporation.

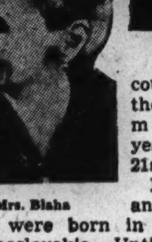
BLAHA COUPLE, LONG CHICAGO RESIDENTS, MARK 60TH WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Blaha recently celebrated their 60th wedding at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Anna Rybold, with whom they reside, near Elmhurst. Until a year ago the couple had made their home for more than 40 years at 4022 W. 21st pl., Chicago.

Anton Blaha



Mrs. Blaha

Mr. Blaha, 84, and his wife, 81, both were born in what is now Czechoslovakia. Until a short time ago, he worked at his lifelong trade as a cabinet maker.

Joseph Blaha and George Blaha of Berwyn and James Blaha of Cicero are sons of the couple.

PAIR OF TWINS GRACES LATEST V-MAIL GALLERY

Dads Overseas to Get Pictures Soon

Ten members of Chicago's youngest set posed with their mothers recently for pictures that will be imprinted on V-mail stationery for mailing to their fathers in military service overseas. The pictures, taken by THE TRIBUNE as a service to men on foreign duty who have never seen their small sons and daughters, will be sent to many theaters of war, from Germany to the Pacific.

Among the recently photographed youngsters is Edwin F. Gottschalk Jr., son of Pvt. and Mrs. Edwin Gottschalk, 1510 S. Harvey av., Berwyn. Edwin's daddy is a military police escort, guarding German prisoners of war in England. Overseas for 16 months, he has had no chance to get acquainted with his small son, who celebrated his first birthday March 1.

In Europe 16 Months

Sgt. Armand Iovino, 2928 Wilcox st., father of 8 month old Marilyn, also has been in Europe for 16 months. Now on duty in Paris, he has served in Ireland, Liverpool, London, Cherbourg, and Belgium. From Europe he has sent a number of gifts for the baby. A French family with whom he stayed for a time recently sent Marilyn a finely embroidered handmade dress, which Mrs. Iovino says will probably become a family heirloom.

Allen Howard Shapiro, 8 months, son of Sgt. and Mrs. Meyer W. Shapiro, 1817 S. St. Louis av., has received a number of souvenirs from his daddy. They include a teddy bear, a lamb, and a rabbit, all of which Sgt. Shapiro sent from France. Overseas since last year, Sgt. Shapiro is on duty in a quartermaster depot in Germany.

Proud of Twin Daughters

Sgt. Robert E. La France, Cicero, has two added reasons for wishing to return home quickly. They are his twin daughters, Michele and Paula, born last Aug. 28. Serving with the 104th [Timberwolf] division of the 1st army, Sgt. La France has been wounded twice, once during combat in Holland, and a second time in Cologne. Now convalescing in Paris, he has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Most cherished of the souvenirs Lt. Charles R. Zdenek, Cicero, has sent his 6 month old son, Charles, are a sterling silver spoon and fork from London. First pilot on a C-47 plane based in France, Lt. Zdenek has been overseas 10 months. A graduate of Lindblom High school, he was assistant office manager for a stationery firm before entering service.

Kathy's Dad in Manila

Katherine Rowe McEwen, daughter of Pvt. and Mrs. Gilbert J. McEwen, Maywood, was born July 4, 1944. "Kathy has a sister, Lindley, not quite 3, who looks exactly like her father, so it's only fair that Kathy should look a little like me," says her mother. Pvt. McEwen, a member of the army's anti-aircraft division, is in Manila. He participated in the Luzon invasion.

Altho Ronald Tavares is only 4 months old he already has so much hair his mother is contemplating the advisability of taking him to a barber shop for his first hair cut. Ronald's father, Uvaldo, a seaman 1st class in the coast guard, recently was transferred to the North Pacific after serving in the Southwest Pacific since last June. For the duration, Mrs. Tavares is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mancillas, 1303 S. Troy st.

Sends Hat and Jacket

From Italy Norbert Christman, navy petty officer 2d class, 3445 Jackson blvd., recently sent his daughter, Barbara Anne, a pink baby jacket and hat. Barbara Anne, 4½ months, looks like a little bunny in the outfit, her mother says, for decorations on the cap are fashioned to resemble a rabbit's ears. Before his transfer to the Pacific five months ago, Christman was on convoy duty in the Atlantic.

Michael Edward Block was born Nov. 18, 1944, just about a month after his father, Sgt. Eugene J. Block, 4142 Van Buren st., was transferred to Hawaii. A graduate of Marshall High school, Sgt. Block entered service about four and a half years ago.

400 KINDS OF LILACS IN FULL BLOOM AT PARK IN LOMBARD

Lombard's annual lilac display will be in full beauty today in Lilacia park, which, according to L. W. Hagerman, superintendent of Lilacia, is credited with being the only known public park where lilacs and tulips are used as the dominant landscape material.

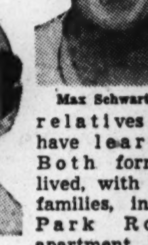
The display includes 1,500 lilac bushes in 400 varieties, making it the second largest varietal collection in the world.

Lack of automobile transportation, it is pointed out, need not deprive visitors the pleasure of the pageant as the Chicago and North Western station is a short block from the park and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railway, with its station three blocks from the park, has frequent fast train service.

Floodlighting has been installed to convert the park into a fairyland at night.

NEIGHBORS MEET ON PACIFIC ISLE, FAMILIES HEAR

Residents of the same west side apartment building in pre-war days, Pvt. Max Schwartz of the army and Pvt. Lawrence Shaykin, marine, recently met on a Pacific island, relatives here have learned. Both formerly lived, with their families, in the Park Royal apartment hotel at 3838 West End avenue.



Max Schwartz

Pvt. Shaykin

Pvt. Shaykin, a former war plant salesman, entered military service in December, 1943. He has been overseas since April, 1944. His wife, Rose, and son, Leonard, 17 months, now live at 1432 S. Central Park av.

Since the meeting, Pvt. Schwartz has been sent to a hospital in the Pacific, his wife, Mildred, of 1511 S. Kedzie av., has been notified. He has been in service since August, 1943, and in the Pacific zone since last June. Pvt. and Mrs. Schwartz have a daughter, Ronell, 2.

Congo Men's Club

The Congo men's club of Berwyn will hold its annual smoker at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at 3240 Oak Park av. Clare M. Sidlo is chairman.

BUSINESS MEN OF ELMHURST PICK LEADERS

R. J. Farrington New C. of C. President

Richard J. Farrington recently was elected president of the Elmhurst Chamber of Commerce and plans to appoint committees at the next general meeting of the group, May 18, to carry on a busy year of activities.

Mr. Farrington is enthusiastic about Elmhurst, where for five years he has been the proprietor of a dry cleaning establishment. Formerly he resided on the north side of Chicago.

Name New Directors

New directors chosen at the annual meeting were George Dopp, Jack White, E. C. Wegener, and Fred Mellen. Mellen is the retiring president of the association. The board has reappointed M. R. Thorneycroft secretary-treasurer, and elected Jack White vice president.

Farrington said one of the first orders of business by the chamber would be the straightening out of plans for V-E day. He said that a definite program would be worked out for closer coöperation between city officials and business interests to effect improvements in the business district and the promotion of the district as a shopping center.

Will Aid Loan Drive

The chamber has volunteered its services in solicitation of the business district in the 7th war loan drive. The third Thursday of each month was fixed for general monthly meetings, to which speakers will be invited. Meetings of the chamber are held Thursday noons at the Cottage Hill restaurant.

In his annual report, Secretary Thorneycroft explained the normal functions of the chamber had been curtailed because of war restrictions.

Maywood Rotary Club to Hold Woman's Night

Woman's night will be observed Wednesday at Nielsen's by the Rotary club of Maywood. The speaker will be the Rev. Carl Winters, pastor of the First Baptist church of Oak Park. The club's Barber Shop quartet will sing.

HOLD SPRING PARTY OF ST. MARY'S HIGH CLUB NEXT SUNDAY

The Hilary club of St. Mary's High school will hold its annual spring party at 3 p. m. Sunday at the home of its president, Mrs. Clarence O. Bockelmann, 415 Linden av., Oak Park. Assisting Mrs. Bockelmann as hostesses will be Mrs. Simon Sutton, Mrs. Charles Urbain, Mrs. Dennis Crowley, Miss Beatrice Connolly, Mrs. James Hamilton, Mrs. Lambert Hayes, and Mrs. Walter Streeter.

Mrs. Bockelmann

Chief speaker will be the Rev. Emmett Ryan, head of the Cathedral Book club, whose topic will be "The Background of Best Sellers Brought Up to Date."

Mrs. James J. Landrigan will be general chairman. Mrs. Fred Weiss is program chairman, Miss Madge Shearer, printing chairman, and Mrs. Patrick J. Leen, publicity chairman.

MORTON BAND TO PLAY NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT

Seniors to Appear Last Time

The J. Sterling Morton High school band will present the fourth in a series of five concerts next Sunday night in the school auditorium, 25th st. and Austin blvd., Cicero. At the concert a large number of seniors will make their final appearance as members of the band.

Ruth Ann Shuma

The concerts are sponsored by the Morton Music club, made up of parents of students and persons interested in promoting good music among young people. Proceeds are contributed to a scholarship fund for the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., or to apply as tuition to further musical studies.

Will Play Beethoven

On the program will be Miss Ruth Ann Shuma, 16, Berwyn, pianist, playing Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto. Miss Shuma has played the piano at many functions and has appeared at numerous recitals, including two appearances at Orchestra hall. She is a member of the school's string quintet, woodwind trio, and is first flutist in the school band and orchestra.

Miss Elizabeth Sherman, 17, Oak Park, will play a piccolo solo, "La Tourterelle" by Damare. A harp and piano duet, "La Rougette," by Bennett, will be played by Miss Arlene Strejc, 17, and Miss Grace Peterka, 16, both of Berwyn. Heard as a brass trio will be Herbert Fingerhut, trombonist; Vernon Ripkey, baritone; and Francis Dufka, cornetist. The three boys, residents of Cicero, have won medals in various contests.

David Bennett, composer and arranger, will be guest conductor of a portion of the second half of the concert for which Cicero aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, has reserved a large section of the auditorium.

Eagles to Have Exhibit

As sponsors, the Eagles will have an exhibit of their activities in the lobby. Frank J. Christenson is worthy president of the lodge. The aerie committee coöperating includes Edward J. Shuma, chairman; Harold Belt, co-chairman; Willys Classen, George Hildebrandt, Elmer Granso, James Strouse, and Edward Klows.

James M. Cizek is president of the Morton Music club which encourages business, fraternal and civic groups to sponsor concerts.

Morton's music department is headed by Louis M. Blaha, under whose leadership the school in 15 years has won state and national honors. The department has 150 members in the band, 125 in the orchestra, and 150 in the vocal department.

Get Professional Training

One evening each week, members of the band and orchestra are divided into groups taught by professional musicians, the cost being shared by students and the music department. That this experience enhances the opportunity of students to be later absorbed by musical organizations is well demonstrated.

With the West Point Military band are Oreste Michi, Robert Dvorak, Joseph Skarvan, Robert Olisar, George Olisar, Rudolph Macciochi, and Robert Hejna. Former Morton students in the Chicago Symphony orchestra are Joseph Mourek, Elmer Janes, Jerry Sirucek, Joseph Bejcek and Charles Misare.

George Makas is with the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, his brother, Peter, is with the Pittsburgh Symphony, and James Polacek is with the Detroit Symphony.

Play in Many Groups

Lorraine Kasik and Eleanor Marrak are with the Woman's Symphony orchestra. Capt. Frank Boker is an army bandmaster. With the Civic orchestra are Eleanor Manak, Eunice Stasny, Russell Lahl, Robert Soukup, Edward Sainati, Lorraine Teichmann, William Benes, James Baxa, Harry Brabec, and Peter Makas.

Chuck Foster's dance band uses Harry Brabec, well known high school percussionist, and Benny Rosengard plays with Carmen Cavallero's music group. Public school teachers who once played with Morton bands and orchestras include Rudolph Sucharda, Helen Leach, Adolph Svec, Lillian Svec, Mildred Kehoe, Walter Duda, and Lillian Piasetti.

In keeping with Supt. W. P. MacLean's policy of giving recognition to other school departments on concert nights, the social science and home economics group will have educational displays.

Mothers of St. Ignatius Graduates to Be Feted

A reception and luncheon for mothers of the graduates of St. Ignatius High school will be given by the Mothers' club Tuesday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. George Quigley is chairman. Mrs. Owen Cooke is president of the club and the Rev. Bernard Foote, S. J., is moderator.

Grace Church Auxiliary Will Hold Spring Party

The annual spring party of Grace Episcopal church auxiliary will be held at 1 p. m., Tuesday, in the parish house, 924 Lake st., Oak Park. Mrs. T. E. McDowell and Mrs. Peter Raap are co-chairmen.

VETS' MEMORIAL GROUP ON W. SIDE NAMES OFFICERS

They Direct Campaign for $50,000 Home

Fifteen officers have been named to head the $50,000 drive of Austin and Garfield communities to provide a war memorial club for west side veterans. Leading the campaign are Thomas L. Long, 4456 Washington blvd., general chairman; John F. Butler, 32 S. Crawford av., co-chairman, and Edward C. Connor, Madison-Crawford National bank, treasurer.

"A west side memorial for west siders, by west siders," is the slogan of the memorial fund officers and committee, who believe that the proposed veterans club will fill an important need of returned service men, providing at the same time a lasting tribute from the community to its war heroes.

Plan Full Facilities

Plans for the memorial club include a service office where an adviser will be available to help returned veterans with legal and other rehabilitation problems. In addition a lounge, library, recreation rooms, shower rooms, and a large auditorium and gymnasium have been planned.

Women Also Organize

A women's division, headed by Mrs. Edward L. Eckles, 4228 Monroe st., also has organized committees for canvassing Austin and Garfield Park during the next two weeks.

Assisting Mrs. Eckles are Mrs. Edward Evert, 3836 Adams st., and Mrs. May McCarthy, 2855 W. Madison st., co-chairmen.

ROSARY SOCIETY OF ST. ANGELA'S TO HOLD PARTY

The Altar and Rosary society of St. Angela's church will hold its annual spring party at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. M. A. Duffy is general chairman.

Chairmen of committees making arrangements include Mrs. William Finnegan, Mrs. Joseph Izzo, Mrs. Joseph King, Mrs. Raymond Devereaux, Mrs. James Harrold, Mrs. Elmer Lyons, Mrs. Raymond Emerick, Mrs. Walter Bremer, Mrs. Edgar Chartier, Mrs. James McGloon, and Mrs. George P. Kobler.

The Rev. Thomas J. Hayes is pastor of St. Angela's, and the Rev. Richard L. Hills moderator of the society.

Students Sing with Symphony

Dr. Helen Howe, director of music in Chicago schools and a group of the 300 high school students who sang in Orchestra hall last week with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The students, who were from Schurz, Austin, Lindblom, and Von Steuben High schools, sang the choral movement of Beethoven's Ninth symphony. Robert Birch of the Austin music faculty is at the piano.

DU PAGE COUNTY FAMILY AIDS TO MEET THURSDAY

Quarterly Reports to Be Heard

The 28 directors of the Du Page County Family Service association will hold their regular quarterly meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night at the association's Thrift shop, 319 W. Front st., Wheaton. Dr. Timothy Lehmann, Elmhurst, is president of the association and chairman of the board.

As the official governing body of the private service agency the board will receive reports from Dr. Lehmann and from Mrs. Ivor Hughes, Glen Ellyn, recording secretary; Dr. Arthur S. Webb, Wheaton, treasurer; Mrs. Charles W. Coffin, Glen Ellyn, chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. H. L. Kahl, Wheaton, chairman of the Thrift shop committee; the Rev. Gowan C. Williams, Glen Ellyn, chairman of the finance committee; and Stewart D. Cain, executive secretary.

Will Hold Elections

Five incumbent directors will be elected to serve on the executive committee with the five officers and one or more new directors from Naperville township will be chosen.

Formerly known as the United Charities of Du Page county, the Family Service association is supported entirely by voluntary contributions and the sale of merchandise donated to its Thrift shop. County-wide in administration and service, its board of directors is represented by townships, with one or more directors from each of the county's nine townships.

"Seek to Ease Problems"

"Human problems cut thru the entire structure of our population," Dr. Lehmann has pointed out. "Human difficulties have no respect for race, religion, financial status, social station, or education. The little problems lead to major difficulties.

"Within the limits of its resources the Family Service association provides the counsel and the guidance that helps people to help themselves over the bumps in the pathway of every day living."

WEST SUBURBAN MOTHERS' CLUB TO HOLD PARTY

Members of the Trinity High school mothers' club will hold their annual spring party at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the school gymnasium, River Forest. Mrs. Dennis J. Crowley is chairman.

Mrs. Dennis Crowley

Serving as co-chairman will be Mrs. Joseph H. Hester. Mrs. Edward N. Heinz is president of the club.

Other chairmen directing arrangements for the party include Mrs. George J. Kiener, Mrs. Elmer Vietzen, Mrs. Thomas McGuire, Mrs. George Casey, and Mrs. John J. Foley.

Garfield Park Hospital Women to Hold Luncheon

The spring bridge luncheon of the Garfield Park Community hospital woman's auxiliary will be held Wednesday at Pilgrim church house, Lake st. and Elmwood av., Oak Park.

CARBOLA

HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS
Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.

TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS
In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep. At Hardware, seed, feed, drug stores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy garden chart.

NEW AIR SHOWS POP UP; MANY ON W-G-N - MUTUAL

Music, Drama, Variety on Spring List

BY LARRY WOLTERS

New shows, one after another, are popping up this spring—the season of the year usually marked by tapering off of radio activity. Many of the newcomers are W-G-N and Mutual productions. Mutual has introduced a group of attractive new half hour evenings productions.

Arch Oboler has been summoned from Hollywood and is writing and producing a new series of plays, aired at 9:30 p. m. Thursday. Oboler is well remembered here for his old Lights Out series and for much subsequent highly original radio drama.

The Freshup show features Barney Grant, a comedian who has met with considerable favor entertaining troops overseas. It's aired at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays.

Revive Broadway Hits

The Brownstone Theater, aired at 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays, features revivals of old Broadway hits. Jackson Beck and Gertrude Warner are regularly featured. The show has just begun a guest star policy with Jane Cowl appearing as the first one.

Jean Goldkette, who returned to the air last Saturday with a 60 piece orchestra, features unusual arrangements of old and new music. He is inviting composers and arrangers to make suggestions. Dell Parker, his songstress, has an unusual voice. This show is aired from Detroit at 8 p. m. Saturdays. Just ahead of it comes a new program titled Symphony of the Americas; devoted to music of the many American nations.

Sweetheart Time, a half hour musical variety interlude, was introduced recently at 1 p. m. Sundays, with Marion Mann and Phil Kalar as vocal soloists.

Calling All Detectives

Calling All Detectives, a thriller already running on Mutual, will be introduced on W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, April 28. Elsa Maxwell, wit and commentator, will preside over a series titled Party Line. Miss Maxwell will be heard at 10:15 a. m. week-days over W-G-N starting Monday, April 30.

The Human Adventure, the dramatic series broadcast by W-G-N in coöperation with the University of Chicago, will be aired shortly under commercial sponsorship.

WGNB, sister FM station, recently introduced many new features and adopted a policy of emphasizing live talent programs.

Other New Shows

New shows on other networks include these:

The Billie Burke show, with Florence Lake, John Brown, and Eddy Howard's orchestra, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday over NBC.

CBS has started a new series featuring dramatization and narration of great novels. Currently "A Tale of Two Cities," with Michael Scott as narrator, is presented at 2:15 p. m. week-days.

The Mood and the Melody, recently introduced on the Blue at 8 p. m. Mondays has been moved to 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays. It features Nancy Evans, a singing newcomer on the networks—promising, too—Boyce Smith and Rex Maupin's orchestra. Another new one on the Blue is "The Man from G-2," spy stories from military intelligence. It is aired at 6:30 p. m. Thursdays.

National Theosophical President to Talk Today

James S. Perkins, recently elected new national president of the Theosophical Society in America, will speak at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the headquarters of the society north of Wheaton. Mr. Perkins' topic will be "Pain and Liberation." He succeeds the retiring president, Sidney A. Cook, who has held the office 14 years.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, April 23

Certain tools are necessary for a successful garden and new tools are difficult to obtain. Hence all broken tools should be repaired. If a handle is broken all that is necessary is to remove the rivet in the old handle and replace with the new. Grease the new handle and it can be driven in place and secured with a rivet.

Tuesday, April 24

A sowing of the cole crops of vegetables should be made at intervals of 10 days or two weeks and all crops should be used when "garden fresh" if they are to be enjoyed to their fullest capacity and the vitamins they contain be utilized completely.

Wednesday, April 25

Keep the vegetable garden cleared of weeds by cultivating when cultivation is necessary. It is only necessary to cultivate an inch deep to obtain results. If weeds are permitted to grow tall it is then too late to cultivate, for the damage has been done.

Thursday, April 26

Set out tender plants not earlier than May 20 and later if the weather is cold and changeable. Never be in a hurry to plant tender plants for they will require protection against frost.

Friday, April 27

Some of the nicest plants for the home are the citrus fruits, such as the Ponderosa lemon and Othadeite orange. Both wi.l flower and bear fruit if given maximum light and kept free from insect pests. If a garden plot is at hand, plunge the plants during summer, a position that may induce flowers to set fruit.

These plants often can be purchased from catalog houses. Seedlings may flower in time but it is much better to buy started, grafted, or budded plants. Fertilize with organic foods for the plants seem to prefer them. However, chemical foods, if properly used, produce good growth.

Saturday, April 28

Grow a Boston ivy on brick or stone walls to soften the harsh lines; they are easy to grow requiring only that they be kept in bounds, especially around window frames. The Virginia creeper is very attractive but needs support.

The bittersweet is a strong, vigorous vine. The oriental species have better foliage with about the same kind of fruit as our native. Both do well in partial shade. One or two pollen bearing plants should be planted near others to be sure of fruits. English ivy is not hardy in the Chicago area unless well protected.

8 BLOCK GROUP TO GREET VETS WITH CASH GIFT

Each of 50 Fighters to Share in Fund

One evening in November, 1943, J. Eddie Williams, 7401 Addison st., was walking thru OCD zone 7 in community 8, a little northwest side neighborhood during his drill as OCD zone captain, absently counting off the red stars in the windows.

That night the Neighborhood Service club was formed. Its purpose: To supply each service man or woman in the area with a check to start in again after the war. The area is bounded on the north by Belmont av., the south by Wellington av., east by Oketo av., and west by Oriole av.

Families Turn Out

About 125 families in the eight block area answered Williams' meeting call and they elected the following officers: Mrs. Martha Osowski, 3028 Oketo av., president; Mrs. Dorothea Wendt, 3143 Oleander av., vice president; Mrs. Otto Henske, 3049 Oleander av., secretary; Mrs. V. T. Pender, 3059 Osceola av., treasurer.

Williams, who was a sailor in the British navy in the last war, lives outside the territory and is therefore ineligible to hold office. He was named honorary publicity chairman. A photo engraver, Williams has prepared a brochure in color, containing the pictures of all honor roll members.

Collect More Than $1,500

During the past year and a half a bank roll of more than $1,500 has been earning interest in the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, thanks to the dances, parties, barbecues, and carnivals those families have given for the veteran benefit fund. Another card party and dance is being given this afternoon and tonight in the Elmwood Park American Legion hall.

At present, 48 men and two women from the neighborhood have joined the services. Their names are on the honor roll and there is room for the others who will be called before peace is declared. A name on the honor roll is a name in the pot when the bank roll is divided after the war. There is to be no division until the war is over.

All to Share Equally

Even if a service man gets wanderlust after the war and decides to settle elsewhere, the club intends to pay him his share. In event of death of an honor member, the nearest of kin, as defined by army regulations will receive the funds. All will share equally.

Altho many of the families have representatives on the honor roll, many, including Williams, whose oldest of seven children is 13, have no one in service. All have the determination to give the returning service man something beside a smile and a slap on the back.

SGT. J. L. KILGORE QUITS POLICE AT 63; GETS BONDS

War bonds totaling $125 from fellow workers was the surprise awaiting Sgt. James L. Kilgore, 63, when he answered roll call for the last time recently at Lawndale police station. The occasion was his retirement after 35 years on the force, 13 of which were spent at the Lawndale station.

Kilgore, who lives at 3441 Franklin blvd., joined the force in 1910. He was appointed sergeant in November, 1914, and squad leader at the detective bureau, assigned to the western part of the city. From 1918 to 1937 he received 15 creditable mentions and an extra compensation of $300 in October, 1925.

A "good rest" is his goal now. He has planned a vacation in California or Florida with his wife, Mrs. Corinne Kilgore, and his daughter, Joan, 13. He also will spend a considerable amount of time at his summer home on the Fox river, near Cary, Ill., he has decided.

Lake Shore Women

The Lake Shore Woman's club will hold a luncheon and business meeting Wednesday at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

AARON KLINE, WIFE MARK 50TH WEDDING AT HOME OF THEIR SON

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Kline, 3705 Nordica av., recently celebrated their golden wedding at the home of their son, Elwin F. Kline, 1753 Newland av. They were married in Chicago April 17, 1895.

There are five grandchildren.

Bernadette Sees Vision Which Makes Village of Lourdes Famous

The story of a simple French peasant girl who leads the world to the village of Lourdes for the healing waters of a miraculous spring is told in the play, "The Song of Bernadette," which Alvernia High school, 3901 Ridgeway av., has chosen as its senior class production. Idamae Taylor, who has the role of Bernadette, sees the first vision of the "beautiful lady." Bernadette is preparing to gather firewood when her attention is attracted to a wondrous light.

SEEK CLOTHES, FURNITURE FOR BABIES OF G. I. S

Group in Logan Sq. Steps Up Drive

The Logan Square Patriots, northwest side unit of Bundles for America, Inc., shifted into high gear last week with the launching of the drive for baby furniture, layettes, and clothing for service men's children.

Mrs. Neole Hagen, chairman, 2901 Logan blvd., reported the week was spent remodeling clothing donations and making 150 hospital kits. The 50 members of the unit have also been making lap robes, rompers, and pinafores.

Seek Strollers and Cribs.

An increasing number of requests are received daily, officials reported, for strollers and cribs, which almost are unobtainable at stores, and for scarce baby underwear. Donations may be brought to the Logan Square unit, the Irving Park Y. M. C. A., 4251 Irving Park rd., or to Division St. Y. M. C. A., 1621 Division st.

An extra event in the drive at the Division St. Y is the Kiwanis club luncheon at 12:15 p. m. Tuesday.

Other Women Aid.

Several other northwest side women are aiding the drive at Bundles for America headquarters. Mrs. Harry Siems, 4266 Irving Park rd., is assisting in refurbishing baby furniture. Mrs. Harry E. Teachout, 2536 N. McVicker av., distributes the finished outfits. Mrs. John Luvisi, 2939 Irving Park rd., and Mrs. Arthur G. Bach, 4517 Altgeld st., remake clothes.

Some of the baby clothing is used for hospital garments for service men's babies; the rest and the furniture are given to needy families of service men. The drive lasts thru April.

American Women at War

In one WAC platoon, assigned to the 12th air force service command in Italy, there is a sister team, Helen and Madeline Williams. Sisters of John Williams, 740 N. Damen av., both are sergeants and telephone operators. They have been overseas 15 months.

June A. Gilbert, 4821 Newport av., has been promoted to corporal at an allied force headquarters in Italy. She has been stationed in Italy since last summer, after having been moved from North Africa.

Lenore Dorothy Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mitchell, 3445 N. Kostner av., enlisted recently in the marine corps women's reserve. She was graduated from Schurz High school and was employed by the Pennsylvania railroad. She is awaiting call to active duty at Camp Le Jeune.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Eiberg, 5543 N. Parkside av., have been informed their daughter, Alice M. Eiberg, has been promoted to first lieutenant in the Philippines. Lt. Eiberg previously served in North Africa and returned to the United States in October, 1943, to attend officer candidate school. Since being commissioned in February, 1944, she has served also at Hollandia, Dutch New Guinea. She was formerly an employe of an insurance company.

At Brooke General hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., Romwalda L. Lissy, 5722 Windsor av., has been appointed a physical therapist in the army medical corps with the rank of second lieutenant.

EIGHT N. W. SIDE WOMEN CAPPED AS NURSES' AIDS

Eight women from the northwest side became Red Cross volunteer nurses' aids in ceremonies recently at St. Anne's and Cook County hospitals.

They are: Mrs. Kenneth Beam, 3439 N. Tripp av.; Mrs. Frank Benedetto, 1747 N. Austin av.; Mrs. David Crear, 1616 N. Lockwood av., and Mrs. George Luehrs, Park Ridge, capped at St. Anne's hospital, and Miss Lillian Hill, Park Ridge, capped at Cook County hospital.

A new accelerated course in nurses' aid training will be given at Red Cross chapter headquarters during June and July in which women accepted by the corps can complete training in five and a half weeks.

American Legion Women to Give Dinner Thursday

The 9th district, American Legion auxiliary, will be host at a reception and dinner at 6 p. m. Thursday at the North Side Swedish club, honoring the state president, Mrs. John Shimkus. Mrs. Fannie Harland, 2553 Newcastle av., is chairman of the district.

OLD ARMY CAMP TAKEN OVER BY CAP SQUADRON

Plan Flight Courses 2 Nights a Week

Civil air patrol squadron 611-5 on the northwest side is now occupying Camp Sauganash. Permission for the squadron to use buildings and grounds was granted recently by the army 6th service command.

Camp Sauganash was occupied by military police at the beginning of the war, later became an army motor pool, and recently was a recreation center for returned soldiers.

Capt. J. D. Day, squadron commander, said the camp will be used as a training base for future army cadets and air crews. New classes will be organized for both adults and high school students interested in learning to fly.

Tentative plans are for adults to meet Tuesday nights at the camp and high school students, Thursday nights. New flights also are being formed at Eckart and La Follette parks.

Camp Sauganash is located at 4500 Foster av. The 17 buildings on the 19 acres which comprise the camp include classrooms, assembly halls, mess halls and garages.

250 INDUSTRIAL EDUCATORS TO MEET AT MAINE

Leaders to Discuss Future Friday

The question of whether the army has developed new teaching methods which may be used in the schools will be discussed by 250 industrial education leaders Friday at the Metropolitan Vocational conference at Maine Township High school.

Among other questions to be discussed will be: How have war industries affected the schools? What will the clientele be in schools in the post-war period and how best can they be handled? Will teaching methods be influenced by new developments in industry?

Will Tour Douglas Plant

The theme of the one day meeting will be "Redesigning industrial training for peace time." A tour of the Douglas Aircraft plant south of Des Plaines has been arranged by Hugh P. Harshbarger, general chairman. Superintendents and instructors in industrial education will be given an opportunity to go thru a C-54 plane.

Principal dinner speakers will include Dr. J. C. Wright, assistant United States commissioner for vocational education, who will talk on "Past, Present, and Future Trends in Vocational Training"; John Buckwalter, Douglas Aircraft plant manager, whose subject will be "The Part Training Plays in Aircraft Manufacture," and Carl King, Douglas plant training director, who will speak on "Industry and the Schools Coöperation."

Hold Dinner at 6 P. M.

The dinner will be held at 6 o'clock in the high school cafeteria with Frank L. Holmes, superintendent of Maine Township High school, as toastmaster. The school orchestra will play. Miss Dianne Andrews, marimba soloist, will be heard.

Principals and superintendents from more than 38 high schools within a 50 mile radius of Chicago will attend. Others include V. L. Nickell, superintendent of public instruction at Springfield; Noble J. Puffer, Cook county superintendent of schools; A. B. May, professor of industrial education at the University of Illinois.

Others Will Attend

Others expected include Morris E. Houser, field secretary, Illinois Association of School Boards; Dr. L. V. Newkirk, director of industrial arts for the Chicago school system; Dr. A. P. Haake, lecturer and economic consultant; E. J. Simon, state director of vocational education at Springfield; Dr. Shirley Hamrin of Northwestern university.

Clark Woodward, professor at the University of Illinois; Erwin O. Goll, president of the Maine board of education; J. J. Metz, editor of Industrial Education, Milwaukee, and Comdr. C. C. Cavaney, educational director of the Navy Pier Training school, Chicago.

HUNGARIAN CLUB TO FETE U. S. O. IN HIGHLAND PARK

The Hungarian American Cultural Society of Chicago, 1637 Milwaukee av., will present a program for service men at the Highland Park U. S. O. club at 8 p. m. today. Anton Benke, club president, will be master of ceremonies.

Appearing on the program will be 30 entertainers, including dancers, singers, comedians, and instrumental soloists. A five piece gypsy orchestra directed by Steve Kardos will play. A Hungarian style supper will precede the program.

ELECT LEADER OF NORTHLAKE LEGION GROUP

Sidney Carne has been elected commander of the first American Legion post to be organized in Nortlake village. The post has been named Howard H. Rohde No. 888 in honor of the first man from Northlake to be killed in action in World War II.

The post was instituted by Charles E. Donath, 9th district commander. Ernest Derry is senior vice commander and George Shirreff is adjutant.

TELL MIRACLE OF LOURDES AT ALVERNIA HIGH

96 Girls Take Part in the 'Song of Bernadette'

The senior blackboard at Alvernia High school, 3901 Ridgeway av., which has been posted with daily notices of rehearsals of the class play, "The Song of Bernadette," was clean yesterday for the first time in more than two months.

The production, which is playing nightly, will be given two performances today, a matinee and a night show. It will close next Sunday night.

Described by Miss Ann Helen Reuter, dramatics coach, as the most ambitious show ever produced in the history of Alvernia High, the play has two separate casts of 96 members, each with 38 speaking parts. The casts will take part in alternate performances. Every senior student has a part in the play.

Many to Be Peasants

Many seniors will personify peasants in the grotto scenes in which they seek encouragement in the restoring waters of the miraculous spring. A potpourri of all nationalities climaxes the play.

Wooden shoes, six set changes, and somber French peasant costumes are only a few elements of the production. The characters of both casts take their roles as members of the Soubirous family, their friends, and neighbors, the clergy and city officials of Lourdes, and the people of the convent of Nevers.

In three acts divided into 10 scenes a detailed account of Bernadette's life from the day of her first vision to the termination of the "Lady's" visit are presented with the breakdown of Vazous climaxing the play.

Builds Six Sets

Henry Schwegel, school maintenance man who formerly studied at the Art institute, is responsible for the six sets in the play. For the grotto scenes he has reproduced a genuine fountain which is stationary. The school room, home of the Soubirous, mayor's office, dean's garden, and convent are built in front of the fountain.

The role of Bernadette is played by Idamae Taylor and Laurette Engel. Patricia Rix and Eileen Flahive portray Dean Peyramale.

Playing the roles of other principal characters are: Mary Doherty and Lorraine La Brecque as Louise Soubirous; Margaret Czapar and Geraldine Porter as Francois Soubirous; Bernice Krentner and Mary Ann Phalen as Bernarde Casterot; Margaret Murphy and Josephine Kompanowski as Sister Marie Therese; Emily Mihalcik and Floria Stutuzke as Madame Sajou; Alice Koscierzyna and Kathryn Hamilton as Mayor Lacade, and Barbara Kardik and Joan Nieses as Dr. Dazous.

Take Other Roles

Other leading speaking parts are taken by Muriel Dever, Amalia Calvetti, Mary Miller, Jean Strobl, Lorraine Ellsworth, Elizabeth Handrup, Phyllis Wallace, Lois Keller, Therese Hill, Mary Anne Batt, Eileen Dillon, Margaret Klepitsch, Ruth Strobel, Mary Ann Van Driel, Elizabeth Buscher, Carol Sittler, Elaine Kowal, Roma Kimmey, and Babette Passmann.

The play is introduced by nine girls, who serve as scene-by-scene narrators and enact peasant roles. They are Elizabeth Buscher, Helen Cashion, Sarah Clarke, Martha Hough, Elaine Jenssen, Muriel Lang, Louise Sadek, Patricia Teal, and Loretta Wray. Student coaches who assist Miss Reuter are Rose Marie Legenza and Maureen Maguire.

MARCH BUILDING PERMITS SHOW RISE IN SUBURBS

Permits for new buildings valued at $1,286,404 were issued for northwest communities during March, according to a report from the Bell Savings and Loan association, an increase of $721,843 over last month, and $733,909 over March a year ago.

Topping the list are Franklin Park, with 195 permits totaling $1,009,100, and Arlington Heights, with permits for $153,830.

Other communities' totals are: Barrington, $1,000; Bensenville, $1,600; Crystal Lake, $4,705; Elmwood Park, $37,584; Palatine, $835; Park Ridge, $6,720; Des Plaines, $62,025, and River Grove, $9,005.

Auxiliary Police to Hear County Jail Warden

Warden Frank Sain of the county jail will speak and show an illustrated film, "A Trip Thru the Cook County Jail," to members of the 34th company, auxiliary police, at 8 p. m. Tuesday in Rivoli hall, 4384 Elston av.

Students Sing with Symphony

Dr. Helen Howe, director of music in Chicago schools and a group of the 300 high school students who sang in Orchestra hall last week with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The students, who were from Schurz, Austin, Lindblom, and Von Steuben High schools, sang the choral movement of Beethoven's Ninth symphony. Robert Birch of the Austin music faculty is at the piano.

N.W. AREA PARK WILL GIVE GYM SHOW, MINSTREL

150 Boys and Girls to Participate

More than 150 boys and girls, 7 to 17, will participate in a combined minstrel show and gym demonstration in the Kosciusko park fieldhouse at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

The program, directed by Julia Mroz, drama instructor of the park district staff, who will be assisted by Herbert Buell, park supervisor, will include specialty numbers by the park gym classes, tumbling, tap dancing, military drills, and games. A teen-age mixed chorus of 30 members from Our Lady of Grace school will sing old favorites.

Name Girl Endmen

Girl endmen's parts will be taken by Elaine Tomasello, 2921 N. Springfield av.; Joanne Haze, 3823 Schubert av.; Phyllis Maniscalco, 2605 N. Hamlin av.; Gloria Fabish, 2640 N. Lawndale av.; Beverly Karg, 2658 N. Avers av.; Thelma Moreland, 3836 Diversey av.; Carol Hardt, 2517 N. Ridgeway av., and Mickey Coopman, 3048 Dickens av.

End men will be: Ronald Pfeiffer, 2700 Monticello av.; Joe Rizzo, 2630 N. Central Park av.; Gene Adamkiewicz, 3555 Wrightwood av.; James Kingsley, 2618 N. Spaulding av.; Stanley Pankiewicz, 2951 N. Springfield av.; Chester Szybowicz, 3627 Oakdale av.; Robert Serbin, 2805 N. Lawndale av.; Jack Mulligan, 2651 N. Avers av., and Tom Metskas, 3849 Wrightwood av.

Will Hold Barn Dance

Interlocutors are Ronald Palacz, 2732 N. Lawndale av., and Jean Walsh, 2843 N. Avers av.

At the conclusion of the two hour show a barn dance will be held.

BAND OF LANE TECHNICAL HIGH 1ST ON N. W. SIDE

One northwest side high school, Lane Technical High school, received superior rating in the recent four day annual competition of high school bands, Dr. Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education, announced.

The rating was awarded to seven city public school bands under national judging standards, Dr. Howe explained, and each band was judged by performance. The previous method of pitting one band against another was not used. The superior rating is equivalent to a mark of 95-100, she said.

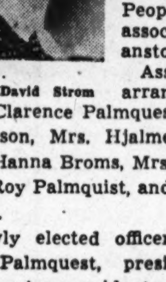
Selections played by Lane's band in the contest were "Progress," by Schuh; Overture to "Oberon" by Von Weber, and "March Slav" by Tschaikowsky. Gardner P. Huff is the conductor.

Six other northwest high schools participated in the contest: Schurz, Steinmetz, Wells, Taft, Von Steuben, and Foreman.

Belmont Park Women Will Give Play Friday

The women's society of the Belmont Park Lutheran church will present the play "Book of Memories" at 8 p. m. Friday at Falconer school. Miss Charlotte Grey is in charge of the production, which includes 100 persons in its cast. Girl Scout troop 126 and Boy Scout troop 76 will give a program.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP CLUB LUNCHEON TO AID SWEDISH HOME



Mrs. David Strom

Mrs. David Strom, 5900 N. Talman av., heads the committee in charge of the Wednesday luncheon of the Women's Life Membership club at the Svithiod Singing club, 624 Wrightwood av. Proceeds will aid the Swedish Old People's Home association in Evanston.

Assisting with arrangements are Mrs. Clarence Palmquest, Mrs. Carl Anderson, Mrs. Hjalmer Andrews, Mrs. Hanna Broms, Mrs. Carl Lund, Mrs. Roy Palmquist, and Mrs. Leroy Smith.

Newly elected officers are Mrs. Roy Palmquest, president; Mrs. Smith, vice president; Mrs. C. W. Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. John Anderson, financial secretary, and Mrs. Roy W. Anderson, recording secretary.

DIVISION STREET Y PLANS MELODY JAUNT TO SOUTH

The "Minstrel Jubilee," or an "evening in the deep south," will be given at the Division Street Y. M. C. A. next Saturday and Sunday nights. Proceeds will be used for financing boys chosen to attend Y camps this summer.

"Minstrel Jubilee" is an original variety show being presented by the Division Y Gleemen, a group of 50 boys. Assisting in the show with makeup problems and stage lighting effects are Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs of Wells High school. Phil R. Blonsky, boys' work director, is in charge.

Schedule Two Hour Show

Attired in faded overalls and colored shirts, the boys will give a two hour program of familiar Southern songs. Tap routines, piano boogie, and instrumental solos will be included.

Principals and characters they will portray are: Walter Kulbeda, interlocutor; Kenneth Jones, Inkspot; Gene Wierzbicki, Sugar; Ed Alaks, Topsy; Joe Krupa, Mr. Jack; Louise Kucharzyk, Miss Lindy; Mrs. Mary Lou Therien, Miss Caroline; Marvin S. Nickels, Mr. Steve; Bernice Stortzman, Petunia; Art Baronowski, Sunshine, and Freddie Jones, Eclipse.

In connection with the show, the glee club parents auxiliary will conduct a bazar. Articles donated by Milwaukee av. merchants will be sold at cost. Neighborhood women will contribute articles which they have made.

LEYDEN JUNIORS TO GIVE 'JANIE' WITH TWO CASTS

A double cast production of "Janie," the stage and screen play, will be given by the junior class at Leyden Community High school, Franklin Park, Friday and Saturday nights.

Kay Hastings and Jacquie Maginnis were chosen for the title role of "Janie." James Quinn will play the male lead both nights. Albert Mitton and Robert Kaehler will alternate as "Scooper Nolan."

Others taking part are: Leah Palkey, Lorraine Springer, Mary Grabber, Doris Drury, Marilyn Winans, Art Burmeister, Mary Ann Dhooge, Elaine Baning, Helen Dimoff, Charmaine Cites, Dorothy Winberg, Dorothy Boneff, Alex Nuzzo, Carl Jacobsen, John Neuman, and Bill Cotsakis.

In soldier roles are Bill Little, Don Voss, Les Kopecky, John Michels, Melvin Mueller, and Phil Vance.

"Janie" is the story of the troubles of a senior high school girl trying to overcome her father's prejudices and fears about an army camp established just outside town. While Janie's father fills the columns of his newspaper with warnings about the influence of the soldiers on the town's young women, Janie and her soldier boy friend plan a party for the soldiers and town's girls in her parents absence. Her father finds out and Janie has to get out of her predicament and back into the good graces of her parents.

Proceeds of the play will be used to finance the junior-senior prom scheduled for May 26, at the Medinah Country club. Class officers are John Neuman, president; Charles Puglia, vice president; Shirley Schierhorn, secretary, and Don Voss, treasurer. Robert Bowlus and Marjorie McLeod are sponsors.

Room Has Everything but Steak

Against a background of dark rose colored walls, Lucille Short (left) and Lorraine Kalinowski, junior students, display with pride the model dining room which was designed and furnished by arts department students at Wells High school, 936 N. Ashland av. The room is furnished with renovated furniture. The formal opening will be held May 6 at a parents tea.

MODEL DINING ROOM CREATED AT WELLS HIGH

Arts Classes Do All Work on Project

A model dining room with renovated furniture is the latest project completed by the arts department students at Wells High school, 936 N. Ashland av. The formal opening of the room will be held Thursday afternoon, May 6, when freshmen students will be hosts to their parents at a tea.

Later the room will be reassembled in the home economics department and used for a place in which to serve practice meals.

Use Polish Motif

Ronald Santowski originated designs with a Polish motif for the chairs and table. Artistic designs for the cabinet and bookshelf were painted by Rosalie Durka. The entire room displays an artistic way of using one's ingenuity. Henry Weaver, faculty chairman, supervised the work of students on the project.

Lacy designs bordering window frames, which also are carried out in the table linen, were painted by Irene Brozyna, Dorothy Danek, and Dolores Dobrzynski. Marvin Kopier and Ralph Luzwickas re-upholstered the furniture.

Walls in Dark Rose

The walls and windows are constructed by Chester Piorek, Stanley Radlowski, Adam Kasparzyk, Richard Dudkiewicz, and Robert Friend. The walls were painted a dark rose to contrast with the light gray furniture. Those in charge of painting the walls were Stanley Glowacz, Fred Marino, Richard Wilczenski, William Adamitis, and Leo Machum.

Purchased from a second hand store, the furniture was revarnished and painted by Teddy Chagdis, Dominic Demagio, Joe Gaggetti, Joe Marino, Ernest Neokos, Robert Szczepaniak, and Irwin Sacheck.

Other faculty members of the art department supervising the project were Velma Miller, Alma Morgan, and Louise D. Yochim.

Club Will Hear Original Songs in Des Plaines

Creative work of members in the music department of the Des Plaines Woman's club will be heard at the 11th annual luncheon tomorrow at Rand park fieldhouse.

Mrs. Gene Puhl, music chairman, will be in charge of the program of original numbers written by members. The chorus also will sing Mozart's "Hymn to the Sun" with Mrs. Ransom Kennicott Jr. as soloist.

The original works will include 12 songs, two piano compositions, and arrangements for string trios. Those contributing will be Mrs. Rexford Hawley, Miss Hester Bennett, Mrs. Martin Wager, Mrs. Fred W. Traeger, and Mrs. Joseph Garrett.

Chorus members are Mrs. W. R. Jacobs, Mrs. T. E. Schreyer, Mrs. B. R. Jones, Mrs. Harlow Coxe, Mrs. C. J. Rogers, Mrs. Savena Gorsline, Mrs. W. H. Tallant, Mrs. L. H. Thorne, Mrs. W. C. Wendel, Mrs. C. H. Lueck, Mrs. E. R. Wuerttemberger, Mrs. A. H. Wiedeman, Mrs. H. I. Southerwick, and Mrs. Gene Morrison.

Mrs. Wager and Mrs. Garrett will head the music department next year. Mrs. Grank Svoboda will continue as accompanist.

NEW AIR SHOWS POP UP; MANY ON W-G-N - MUTUAL

BY LARRY WOLTERS

New shows, one after another, are popping up this spring—the season of the year usually marked by tapering off of radio activity. Many of the newcomers are W-G-N and Mutual productions. Mutual has introduced a group of attractive new half hour evenings productions.

Arch Oboler has been summoned from Hollywood and is writing and producing a new series of plays, aired at 9:30 p. m. Thursday. Oboler is well remembered here for his old Lights Out series and for much subsequent highly original radio drama.

The Freshup show features Barney Grant, a comedian who has met with considerable favor entertaining troops overseas. It's aired at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays.

Revive Broadway Hits

The Brownstone Theater, aired at 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays, features revivals of old Broadway hits. Jackson Beck and Gertrude Warner are regularly featured. The show has just begun a guest star policy with Jane Cowl appearing as the first one.

Jean Goldkette, who returned to the air last Saturday with a 60 piece orchestra, features unusual arrangements of old and new music. He is inviting composers and arrangers to make suggestions. Dell Parker, his songstress, has an unusual voice. This show is aired from Detroit at 8 p. m. Saturdays. Just ahead of it comes a new program titled Symphony of the Americas, devoted to music of the many American nations.

Sweetheart Time, a half hour musical variety interlude, was introduced recently at 1 p. m. Sundays, with Marion Mann and Phil Kalar as vocal soloists.

Calling All Detectives

Calling All Detectives, a thriller already running on Mutual, will be introduced on W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, April 28. Elsa Maxwell, wit and commentator, will preside over a series titled Party Line. Miss Maxwell will be heard at 10:15 a. m. week-days over W-G-N starting Monday, April 30.

The Human Adventure, the dramatic series broadcast by W-G-N in coöperation with the University of Chicago, will be aired shortly under commercial sponsorship.

WGNB, sister FM station, recently introduced many new features and adopted a policy of emphasizing live talent programs.

Other New Shows

New shows on other networks include these:

The Billie Burke show, with Florence Lake, John Brown, and Eddy Howard's orchestra, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday over NBC.

CBS has started a new series featuring dramatization and narration of great novels. Currently " A Tale of Two Cities," with Michael Scott as narrator, is presented at 2:15 p. m. week-days.

The Mood and the Melody, recently introduced on the Blue at 8 p. m. Mondays has been moved to 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays. It features Nancy Evans, a singing newcomer on the networks—promising, too—Boyce Smith and Rex Maupin's orchestra. Another new one on the Blue is " The Man from G-2," spy stories from military intelligence. It is aired at 6:30 p. m. Thursdays.

Rita Hayworth on Air

Rita Hayworth will be Charlie McCathy's guest on WMAQ-NBC at 7 o'clock tonight. Don Ameche is master of ceremonies for the show.

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today. The frequencies [in megacycles] employed after 4:15 p. m. are: 11.93, 9.58, 9.82, 6.11, 7.26, 9.51. 4:45 p. m.—News. 6:30 p. m.—Radio Newsreel. 9:10 p. m.—Tomorrow's London papers. 11:30 p. m.—News reports.

'MLLE. MODISTE' NEXT OPERETTA FOR AIR THEATER

Victor Herbert's comic opera, " Mlle. Modiste," will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of 4,500 next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Melodies familiar to Herbert fans, including " Kiss Me Again " will be sung by Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the series, who will take the part of Fifi. Angelo Raffaeli will sing Etienne and Bruce Foote, The Count.

Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus in the popular background music of the opera.

The dramatic cast will include Sondra Gair, William Everett, Philip Lord, Hope Summers, Herb Butterfield, and Carl Kroenke. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Chicago Artists Join Quiz of Two Cities

Chicago and New York artists, who are represented in the Encyclopedia Brittanica's exhibit of contemporary American art now at the Chicago Art institute, will compete in Quiz of Two Cities over W-G-N at 2 p. m. today. The Chicago team consists of Aaron Bohrod, Francis Chapin, William Schwartz, and Copeland Burg. The New Yorkers are: Rockwell Kent, Anton Refregier, Frank Kleinholtz, and Philip Evergood.

All-Russian Program by N. Y. Philharmonic

The New York Philharmonic orchestra, conducted by Artur Rodzinski, will present an All-Russian program over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. Rodzinski will direct Tschaikowsky's " Pathtique " symphony and Stravinsky's " Fire Bird " suite.

Salute Highland Park on Citizens Program

Highland Park High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program at 10 a. m. next Saturday over W-G-N. Arthur E. Wolters, principal, will be host. Philip Maxwell, who conducts the program, will interview Majorie Mann, and add her name and that of Eunice Guse of Marinette, Wis., to the honor roll. Louis Calderelli, violinist, will be the star student entertainer. The school chorus, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner, will sing. Robert Harvey will read interscholastic news.

Air Premiere of Salta Work Over WMAQ Today

A premiere presentation of Salta's " Nocturne " will highlight the NBC Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The orchestra, under the direction of Frank Black, also will play the overture to Flotow's " Martha," Saint-Saens' " Henry VIII Dances," and Rimsky-Korsakov's " Capriccio Espagnol."

MOUNT EMBLEM
ILLINOIS' MOST BEAUTIFUL CEMETERY
"Without the Gates of the City"
You are cordially invited to enjoy the beauty and fragrance of thousands of lilacs now in bloom. With these thousands of blooming bushes, and the largest display of flowering shrubs in the vicinity of Chicago, the grounds are particularly beautiful at Lilac Time. Mount Emblem is the site of the Old Dutch Mill, built in 1850. This mill is a rare tribute to the ingenuity, perseverance and craftsmanship of a past age. The grist mill machinery is in place, just as it was many years ago when grinding grain, and it is an interesting exhibit.
Enjoy the quiet loveliness of an evening at Mount Emblem during the week. An hour spent in the solace of shadows cast by the setting sun will be long remembered.
Each evening, Sacred and Concert music is broadcast across the cemetery from the Old Dutch Mill which serves as a Chime Tower. The gates are open until dusk.

CATHOLIC GRADE SCHOOLS BUILD 'PILE' OF PAPER

N. W. Siders Gather 50 Tons in 1945

Catholic elementary schools on the northwest side have turned in approximately 100,000 pounds of scrap paper for war use since January, Thomas Andersen, manager of the Catholic Salvage bureau, has revealed.

Leading the 19 Catholic elementary schools participating in the drive is Immaculate Heart of Mary school, with a total of 11,695 pounds. A close second is Holy Rosary school, 2315 Erie st., with 11,550 pounds.

Near 10,000 Pound Mark

Third and fourth places go to St. Ladislaus school, with 9,730 pounds, and St. Peter Canisius, 9,680 pounds.

Other schools and their totals are: St. Cornelius, 7,425; Annunciation, 6,690; St. Robert Bellarmine, 5,349; St. John Cantius, 5,340; SS. Cyril and Methodius, 4256 Walton st., 5,246; St. Columbkille, 3,780; St. Mark, 3,600; St. Veronica, 3,564; St. Francis Assisi, 4424 Walton st., 3,150; Immaculate Conception, Norwood Park, 2,425; St. Thecla, 2,360; St. Constance, 1,395; St. Priscilla, 1,130; St. Maria Addolorata, 1,010.

One Continuous Drive

Altho a few schools have staged one or two day drives, Andersen said most schools have a continuous scrap paper drive, calling the salvage bureau for weekly pickups. The bureau also collects paper from residences. Proceeds on sale of the paper are used to finance operations of the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronautics, Lockport, Ill. Approximately 800,000 pounds of paper collected from the northwest side last year were turned into cash for the school, he said.

In addition to the scrap drive, St. Maria Addolorata is campaigning for food for Italy. Andersen said the bureau was called by the school to pick up 5,000 pounds of food collected there recently.

HOLD MEMORIAL MASS TODAY FOR IWO CASUALTY

A memorial mass for Marine Sgt. George E. Walsh, killed March 2 on Iwo Jima, will be held at 11 a. m. today at St. Tarcissus' church, Milwaukee and Moody avs.

Walsh, who formerly lived at 6070 Naples av., was a graduate of St. Tarcissus' elementary school and Lane Technical High school. Before entering the service he was employed by the Magnaflux corporation. He was a veteran of many Pacific campaigns.

American Legionnaires and the Gladstone squadron of the Sons of the Legion will attend the mass.

Cut Cake on Golden Wedding

MR. AND MRS. FRED BORK
[Tribune Photo]

With about 125 relatives and friends present, including two bridesmaids at the wedding 50 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bork recently celebrated their golden wedding at their home, 4446 N. Drake av. The Borks have resided in the neighborhood 30 years, and have four children: Mrs. Evelyn Becht, 1947 Cleveland av.; Victor, 4423 N. Winchester av.; Fred, electrician's mate 3d class, Charleston, S. C., and Ervin, mail clerk 2d class, New Guinea. The wedding ceremony was repeated later in Gethsemane Evangelical Lutheran church.

N. U. DRAMATIC GROUP WILL PRESENT 'NINE GIRLS' IN THORNE HALL

Miss Mary Fazzi, 4442 Kimball av., will be one of the principals in the production, "Nine Girls," by the Themis club, dramatic group of Northwestern university at 6:20 p. m. Saturday in Thorne hall. The play, a mystery melodrama, is under direction of Miss Muriel Landers, faculty member of the school of speech. Jim Anselmo is production manager and Lester Solomon stage manager.

ONAHAN SCHOOL GETS LIBRARY AS WAR MEMORIAL

A memorial library, the idea of a Northwestern university senior who has not forgotten his boyhood pal, Richard B. Glauche, killed in action more than a year ago, has been presented to the Onahan school. The gift to the school, from which Glauche was graduated in 1938, was conceived by William V. Jackson, 6215 N. Moody av. They had been friends since they were 4.

Glauche, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Glauche, 6338 Holbrook st., was killed when his ship, the John Harvey, was sunk in the harbor of Bari, Italy, Dec. 2, 1943. He was awarded the mariner's medal posthumously for firing his anti-aircraft gun until the ship went down.

Glauche attended Schurz and Taft High schools and was a student at Maine Township Junior college when he enlisted in the merchant marine cadet corps on his 19th birthday. The recent presentation to the school commemorated Glauche's 21st birthday.

The presentation includes 60 books and a 15 drawer card catalog. The books, on travel, education, and some fiction, Jackson said, were selected because of their value in eliminating racial and religious prejudice. Funds for the memorial were raised thru letters written by Jackson to friends of the Glauche family.

CATHOLIC PUPILS FIX CLUBHOUSE DURING CLEANUP

Among the Catholic schools of the northwest side sprucing up last week during the annual cleanup, paintup campaign was SS. Cyril and Methodius school, 4244 Walton st.

Pupils of the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades brought hammers, saws, and paint brushes from home and spent a good part of the week remodeling the near-by clubhouse. Girls formed a mop brigade to start spring house cleaning, and boys in the lower grades picked papers from the lawn. The grass, said the Rev. John A. Fedor, pastor, will have to wait for dry weather.

Results of the soap drive in northwest Catholic schools held recently were announced by the Polish War Relief agency. Approximately 50,000 bars were collected.

Sauganash Garden Club to Hold Spring Meeting

The spring meeting of the Sauganash Garden club will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Sauganash park fieldhouse. A colored movie on insects, pests, and diseases affecting plant materials will be shown by E. S. Huckstep of a chemical company.

Arlington Heights High to Give Concert Friday

The annual spring concert of the Arlington Heights Township High school will be presented by the music department at 8 p. m. Friday. The girls' chorus, mixed chorus, triple trio, and band will participate. D. G. Costain is director.

SNEER WITHERS, MAJOR, 206 MEN GIVE UP TO YANK

2 Medals Recommended for Glib Soldier

BY EDNA CARROLL

Pvt. Harold Abelman, 4554 N. Avers av., is a fast talker and proud of it. That's how he captured those 207 Germans recently near Neuss.

He also says a hero is sometimes a fool with a lot of luck. Grateful letters by his buddies to his daughter, Sandra, and the recommendations of his commander for the bronze and silver stars, however, do not bear him out.

The fighting days of the 207 Germans ended this way. Ableman's outfit, a part of the 83d division of the 9th army, walked into a German trap, and the situation looked pretty grim.

"Hello to You, Too"

Suddenly, he saw a German officer wave to him. A friendly fellow, Ableman soloed across the field. Then he spied the snipers, hugging foxholes on both sides of his path.

"You know," said Ableman, home on an emergency furlough, "I think they were as surprised at me as I was. I just then realized what I was doing."

Ableman said, recalling his past experience with the Nazis, he had some notion the officer wanted to surrender. But the German cleared up the misunderstanding. He grabbed Ableman's rifle, jabbed a pistol in his stomach and demanded his surrender.

Tries to Bluff Major

Ordinarily, Ableman's German is hesitant, but it suddenly became fluent as he stood there with bullets zipping past them, telling the major he thought it was just the other way around.

"You're surrounded, and we're bringing up tanks now," Ableman bluffed.

The German sneered and Ableman broke away, praying he'd reach his lines before the officer's bullet got him in the back.

207 Nazis March Over

They had just trained their guns on the Germans' position, Ableman recalled, when a white flag went up, and 207 Germans marched over to the Yank lines, the crestfallen major among them. It was for this action he was recommended for the silver star.

He was recommended for the bronze star as a result of his actions during the German break-thru in Belgium. German voices so near to him while he was digging a foxhole made him nervous, so he took out and captured the patrol. This, says the recommendation, prevented the Germans from gaining information on allied strength in the Ardennes and assisted materially in plugging the German advance.

Suspicious of Civilians

The Yanks look with disgust and suspicion on German civilians hanging out white sheets and waving greetings in towns only an hour before occupied by the Nazis, he said. They become even more loathsome, he said, in view of the pitiable state they have imposed on their slave laborers, whom he described as "spiritless wanderers."

Ableman has been overseas eight months. A wholesale fruit merchant in civilian life, he expects to rejoin his old division at the end of his furlough.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 23

Certain tools are necessary for a successful garden and new tools are difficult to obtain. Hence all broken tools should be repaired. If a handle is broken all that is necessary is to remove the rivet in the old handle and replace with the new. Grease the new handle and it can be driven in place and secured with a rivet.

Tools allowed to stand outdoors may become warped. Always hang tools with their handles down. Trowels are best kept in baskets which can be easily carried from place to place. Keep tools clean and sharp with a flat file.

Tuesday, April 24

A sowing of the cole crops of vegetables should be made at intervals of 10 days or two weeks and all crops should be used when "garden fresh" if they are to be enjoyed to their fullest capacity and the vitamins they contain be utilized completely.

Wednesday, April 25

Keep the vegetable garden cleared of weeds by cultivating when cultivation is necessary. It is only necessary to cultivate an inch deep to obtain results. If weeds are permitted to grow tall it is then too late to cultivate, for the damage has been done.

Thursday, April 26

Set out tender plants not earlier than May 20 and later if the weather is cold and changeable. Never be in a hurry to plant tender plants for they will require protection against frost.

Keep close watch on the plants in the coldframe and hotbed, especially as to ventilation and watering. On very cold nights protect by covering the sash with boards or mats, be sure to harden-off all plants before planting outdoors.

Friday, April 27

Some of the nicest plants for the home are the citrus fruits, such as the Ponderosa lemon and Othadeite orange. Both will flower and bear fruit if given maximum light and kept free from insect pests. If a garden plot is at hand, plunge the plants during summer, a position that may induce flowers to set fruit.

These plants often can be purchased from catalog houses. Seedlings may flower in time but it is much better to buy started, grafted, or budded plants. Fertilize with organic foods for the plants seem to prefer them. However, chemical foods, if properly used, produce good growth.

Gardenias are now offered for house culture but they demand a humid condition not generally successful.

Saturday, April 28

Grow a Boston ivy on brick or stone walls to soften the harsh lines; they are easy to grow requiring only that they be kept in bounds, especially around window frames. The Virginia creeper is very attractive but needs support.

The bittersweet is a strong, vigorous vine. The oriental species have better foliage with about the same kind of fruit as our native. Both do well in partial shade. One or two pollen bearing plants should be planted near others to be sure of fruits. English ivy is not hardy in the Chicago area unless well protected.

TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS
In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.
Hardware, seed, feed, drug stores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy garden chart.

DARES MORTAR FIRE TO DIRECT GUNS ON ENEMY

Wins Bronze Star with Nine N. W. Siders

Ten northwest side men recently have been awarded bronze stars for heroic achievement in action in Europe.

Harold J. Lange, technician 4th grade, won recognition when he remained at his post in Germany to direct firing with mortar shells exploding within 5 feet of him. Son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Lange, 3619 Kimball av., he was cited on another occasion for his courage when he remained in a mired truck, supporting dismounted troops with machine gun fire and directing defensive fire by radio.

Cite Palatine Soldiers

Pvt. Robert J. Oliver, son of Mrs. Esther Oliver, Palatine, was cited when he braved enemy fire to reach wounded two miles away after previous rescue attempts had failed. Oliver is a medical aid with the 5th army in Italy.

With the 334th infantry in Germany, Pvt. August L. Olson, Palatine, won the medal for military operations against the enemy on Feb. 23. He is a graduate of Palatine High school, and enlisted in June, 1943. He has been overseas since September.

Pvt. Johnson (left), Sgt. Zaleski (center), and H. J. Lange.

These three soldiers were among ten northwest side service men recently awarded bronze stars for heroism in Europe.

Leyte Bravery Awarded

Staff Sgt. Robert M. Condon, 4867 Concord pl., received the bronze star for heroic actions during combat on Leyte, his father, Juvenile Officer Petrick A. Condon of the Chicago av. station, learned. Condon was with the first cavalry unit to reach Manila and is now somewhere on Luzon, as is his brother, Pvt. George P. Condon, with the signal division of the army air forces.

A code clerk, Corp. Edward L. Cupal, brother of Mrs. Marie Schuler, 5172 Homer st., was commended for his "exemplary devotion to duty and persistence in the performance of assignments made increasingly difficult by heavy enemy artillery fire."

Replaces Equipment

Tech. Sgt. Edmund J. Zaleski, son of Kasimir Zaleski, 1224 N. Maplewood av., won the medal for his immediate assistance in replacing clothing and equipment for the crews of two anti-aircraft guns in Germany. Zaleski traveled 150 miles in 10 hours to obtain emergency rations and supplies for the crews.

When a vital communications wire was cut in Italy, Corp. Ira R. Kasdorf, formerly of 6094 Nassau av., braved intense shell fire for two hours to repair the break.

Staff Sgt. Harry W. Kotecki, son of Mrs. Anna Kotecki, 4300 Cortez st., won the medal when he stayed at his post amid heavy artillery barrages in Italy directing fire on enemy positions.

Helps Rescue Outpost Crew

A four man outpost was surrounded by Germans on Dec. 17 when Pvt. Willard F. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Johnson, 3253 N. Albany av., crept up on the enemy. With his well aimed small arms fire and the help of three other riflemen, the men were rescued.

The bronze star medal was awarded Pvt. Donald E. Kelly, son of Mrs. Margaret Kelly, 5812 Berenice av., for recovering stolen goods while on patrol duty at a large French port. Operator of a radio jeep, Kelly and other members of his unit also have aided criminal investigation agents and civil authorities in curbing blackmarket activities. He has been overseas two years.

PVT. SIETSEMA NEVER WORKED THIS HARD WHEN A POLICEMAN

Pvt. Ebel H. Sietsema, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sietsema, 1445 Erie st., has just put in a stretch of work with the 76th infantry division in Luxemburg that makes the old beat back at the Racine av. police station seem like a vacation.

Pvt. Sietsema

Formerly attached to the 29th district Chicago police, Sietsema is a member of the traffic squad which kept men and materials flowing into Germany during a crucial phase of the penetration of the Siegfried line. After the crossing of the Sauer river, Sietsema put in 32 hours directing traffic across the bridge under heavy enemy fire and in a dense smoke screen.

"And I thought I had it tough back in Chicago when I battled the drunken drivers," he mourned.

OPEN FIRST UNIT OF SCHOOL FOR ALTGELD HOMES

2 Other Buildings Near Completion

A new elementary school, the first of four buildings in a unit, being constructed to serve residents of the Altgeld housing project, was opened recently at 132d st. and Corliss av. A high school and an all-purpose building are expected to open within two weeks on the nine acre grounds.

A fourth building not included in original plans will be constructed to house the overflow of the elementary school. It will contain 14 classrooms for grade students.

Kindergarten is housed in the unit just occupied. Facilities for elementary students consist of 11 classrooms, a home mechanics room, and a library.

Facilities of High School

The high school building will contain five classrooms, an industrial art shop, library, mechanical drawing and art room, a home arts room, a band and orchestra room, and a science, chemistry and physics laboratory. The all-purpose building will house an assembly hall, gymnasium, and space for general community service.

The new unit will serve the children of approximately 1,500 war working families within the housing project which is located miles from any other school. Ultimate enrollment is expected to reach 1,850 elementary and 300 high school students. Youngsters have been attending classes in one of the apartment buildings until the school was completed.

Hope to Repeat Plan

"This new school design," said John C. Christensen, board of education architect, "requires nine acres of ground and utilizes the plan the board hopes to follow hereafter when constructing public schools, space permitting. Its new all-on-one-floor design is an outstanding architectural departure from existing school layouts. This plans saves operational cost in heating and maintenance, eliminates stair climbing, and also provides opportunity for expansion of buildings upward as well as sideways should the community require additional school facilities in the future."

The entire design, developed by Christensen and the object of scrutiny and approval of many school authorities also provides for landscaping of the school grounds adjacent to the buildings. It allows space for possible future expansions and for outdoor physical activities of the students.

Given Federal Funds

The original three building unit cost was $507,000 of which $328,000 was contributed by the federal government and $179,000 by the board of education. The cost of the fourth structure is $179,896, with $131,888 provided by federal aid and $48,008 by the board.

Amerigo R. Sansone is principal of the elementary school and M. S. McFarland assistant principal. New teachers will include Anna G. Robinson, Geraldine W. Swanson, C. McCafferty Fish, Ruth Erickson, Frances Hope, Mary I. Byrne, Roberta Dixon, Eleanor Conover, Virginia Cooper, Edith Bernstein, Helen Binder, Sarajane Caddick, Lillian Swanson, Teresa Murphy, Mary Henry, Evelyn Allison, Elizabeth Bard, Mary Rita Brooks, Marion Jones, Lucille Mutter, and Ada Trepal.

Ivanhoe Women to Talk About Drama Tuesday

A discussion of drama will be led Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Ivanhoe Junior Woman's club by Mrs. Harold F. Renne, Harvey, and Mrs. Harold C. Craft, Ivanhoe. The meeting will be in the home of Miss Eleanor Foote, 14315 Dearborn st. Doris Davidson, storekeeper 3d class, who is to leave soon for overseas duty, has been made the club's first honorary member.

E. M. KENNEDY, WIFE OF RIVERSIDE MARK THEIR 60TH WEDDING

BANDS OF FOUR S.W. SIDE HIGHS RATED SUPERIOR

29 Schools Compete in Annual Meet

Four southwest side high school bands received superior ratings in the recent four day annual competition sponsored by the music department of the board of education. The bands and their directors are Parker, Alfred Hansen; Morgan Park, Guy Hartle; Gage Park, Peter Zukovsky, and Kelly, Franklin Borger.

Seven of the 29 competing bands were judged superior. Excellent ratings were given 13 others. A superior rating is equivalent to a mark of 95-100 and excellent 90-95.

The ratings were awarded according to the rules of the National School Band and Orchestra association by Judges Mila Hovey of Jordan Conservatory of Music, Indianapolis, Ind.; Charles B. Righter, University of Iowa, Iowa City, and Clarence Sawhill, University of Illinois.

Under the contest rules each band was judged against a standard of performance, including tone, intonation, technical perfection, interpretation, and style, and not by the former method of pitting one band against another. Each band played a quick step march and two numbers of their own choice.

LAUNCH DRIVE FOR CHILD WORK OF FLOSSMOOR

A goal of $2,500, to be used in financing year around sports for Flossmoor children, has been set for the fund drive being opened today by the Recreation Association of Flossmoor, Inc. Canvassers will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Flossmoor Community church for instructions by Thorpe E. Wright, general chairman.

More than 300 children participated during 1944 in the association's program, which included basketball, ice skating, swimming, tennis, softball, handcrafts, and holiday events.

Nick Maravalo, former Chicago high school high jump and broad jump champion and a graduate of Chicago Teachers and Crane colleges, has been named director of summer activities.

HOBBIES SHOW TO OPEN FRIDAY IN OGDEN PARK

Interest Added by Demonstrations

Amateur radio enthusiasts, model builders, and hobbyists of all kinds will exhibit their best articles at the artcraft and hobby show opening Friday night and continuing thru Sunday afternoon in the Ogden park fieldhouse, 65th st. and Racine av. Under direction of Ralph Bodin, supervisor of the park district, a variety of exhibits have been arranged.

Reputed to be largest amateur radio group in the world, the Hamfesters Radio club, William Soich, 6225 Bishop st., president, will demonstrate the transmission and reception of radio messages with amateur equipment.

Will Show Model Boats

Only members of this organization are authorized to operate their transmitters under present FCC regulations, and only at specified times during certain days of the week for testing equipment.

For those interested in model building, there will be a display set up by the Chicago Model Power Boat association, Thomas Perzentka, president. It will include models of power boats, steam engines that operate, and a model steam locomotive accurately built to scale. The club will show movies made by the builders of models on display, showing the operations of the engines and races in which the various powered boats have taken part.

Wilbur R. Haynie, 5730 S. Winchester st., president of the Ogden Hill Stamp club, will arrange a philatelic exhibit. Members will be on hand to explain and relate the interesting histories connected with the many rare and unusual stamps and coins.

Craft Classes in Show

The Ogden park craft class, under direction of Robinson Johnson, craft instructor, will display examples of its work in woodcraft and leatherwork.

Under direction of Florence Cavanaugh, artcraft instructor, a puppet show will be given, followed by a demonstration of how puppets are made. An exhibit of painting and needlework will be prepared by the class.

Among individual entries in the show, Peter Christianse, 5731 S. Sacramento av., will display his sailboat paintings and model ships, and Edward Bodin, 7010 Morgan, will exhibit a two story doll house, built and furnished by him. Other wooden toys and models which he has made, will be shown. His wife, Mary, will show needlework, dolls, and doll clothes which she has made.

Include Fishing Equipment

Kenneth D. Russell, 7650 S. Phillips av., will exhibit jewelry and leatherwork. Henry Lesko, 6951 Oglesby, will have his fly tying and fishing tackle equipment in the show. Quilts made by Mrs. Joseph Dore, 6748 Throop st., will be displayed.

No admission will be charged for the show which will run from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. on Friday and Saturday nights and from 1 to 6 p. m. Sunday afternoon.

TEACH DOGS HOW TO RESPOND TO MASTER'S VOICE

Friday night is school night for dogs whose masters belong to the South Side All Breed Dog Training club. Classes are held at 8 p. m. in the spacious basement of Tuley park fieldhouse, 90th st. and St. Lawrence av.

The school, which has been running for two years, started with 10 canine students and their owners. Enrollment has increased to 60. By-laws of the club state that all dogs must be of a breed or variety of breeds recognized by the American Kennel club. Pups must be at least 6 months old.

Go on Probation First

A dog enters for a six month probationary period to determine if the dog and its master will fit in and work with the class. "Some people," William Zelke, training director, remarked, "are harder to train than their dogs."

There are eight trainers. All are amateurs who learned their art at various dog clubs and who apply it in the classes for the pleasure of working with dogs. No fee is attached to the school outside of nominal club dues. Each of the five grades is conducted in a separate room.

A Graded Curriculum

Dogs progress thru a graded course: 1st grade, to heel with leash, to sit or lie on command, and to about turn; 2d grade, to stay in a sitting or lying position, to left about turn, to recall [come when called from a great distance]; 3d grade, heel off leash, slow double time, stand for examination, to sit for three and lie for five minutes, and to carry a dumbbell; 4th grade, to drop on recall, to retrieve the dumbbell flat and execute high and broad jumps, to stay on command when owner leaves the room.

In 5th grade, or the advanced class, they are taught to "speak" on command, scent discrimination, seek for lost articles, jump with the dumbbell over high and bar jumps, and to track. In each grade a continuous review of preceding grades is given.

Owners Must Also Work

"However," reminded Zelke, "all this training won't do much good at all if the dog is only worked with at school. They need a daily work-out in order to teach them and expect them to remember obedience training. Here at the classes we only can show the owner how to go about teaching his dog."

Zelke and his wife, who is president of the club, have been dog lovers from way back. They own a perfectly trained 8 year old Dane who served as an official recruiter during the dogs for defense campaign. Many of the trainers, including the Zelkes, helped to examine dogs during the recruiting period.

Many Breeds in School

Among breeds represented are setters, German shepherds, boxers, Dobermann-Pinschers, schnauzers, wire haired and Irish terriers, cockers, springers, collies, beagles, and a little black schipperke, who is not a bit disturbed by the presence of so many bigger dogs.

Do they like school? The reactions vary: some look bored and yawn, some get playful, and some seem to say they're doing all this to humor their masters. One of them, for certain, doesn't like it. He is Copper King Von Simbauer, a Dobermann belonging to Mrs. George Kleifges, 9217 Elizabeth st.

Tries to Hide

"When I tell him we are going to school," she said, "he puts his ears back, looks very woe-begone, and tries to crawl off someplace. It's probably because he was grown up when I started him."

Officers of the club include Mrs. Zelke, 2317 41st st., president; Roland Horton, Oak Lawn, vice president; James Lezatte, 7049 Vincennes av., treasurer, and Mrs. Leon Kushner, 1708 E. 68th st., secretary. Trainers are Roland Horton, James Lezatte, Harry Rosenhagen, 10038 S. Oakley av.; Hazel Chandler, 2260 W. 113th st.; Earl Grange, 11239 Longwood dr.; Walter Carlson, 2019 W. 82d st., and Guy Russell, 10426 Charles st.

LO-COST CHEK PLAN saves you up to 17 cents from the cost of money orders every time you write a check to send money or pay a bill.

Instead of 6 to 22 cents for money orders, you'd have to make special trips to buy, the cost is only 5c per check, no matter how large the amount, or how many you write.

Lo-Cost Chek Plan gives you a personal checking account that requires NO minimum balance.

Keep as little or as much in the bank as you like. You can start with only $5.

Handsome leather check book and all checks furnished free. Joint accounts, allowing both husband and wife to sign checks, are permitted.

Phone, write or come in personally to open your Lo-Cost Chek account. Everything handled by mail if you prefer. Deposits Insured up to $5000 per Depositor.

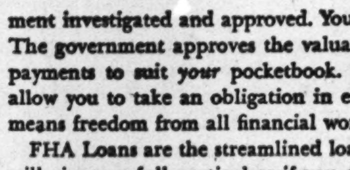
FHA LOANS
TO BUY OR REFINANCE



Safety and security in the matter of loans are the two things you'll look for first if you're buying or refinancing a home. And, you'll find them both in FHA Loans—with low, easier payments.

FHA Loans are surer and safer because they are U. S. Government investigated and approved. You are protected in another way, too. The government approves the valuation of the property—and arranges payments to suit your pocketbook. Under no circumstances will they allow you to take an obligation in excess of your ability to pay—which means freedom from all financial worries.

FHA Loans are the streamlined loans! Any of the officers of this bank will give you full particulars if you drop in. On the other hand, if you can't come in during banking hours, phone us. We'll gladly call at your home in the evening. There will be no obligation.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS OF ST. STEPHANS WILL GIVE PLAY

Odako Camp Fire Girls, sponsored by the Dorcas class of St. Stephans Methodist church, 113th and State sts., will present a play, "Camp Nawakwa, Here We Come!" at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday in the church auditorium. Aimed at stimulating camp attendance, the play will depict the pleasures and benefits of camp life.

Shirley Richards, 11107 St. Lawrence av.; Grace Jacobs, 10343 Prairie av., and Roberta Sachs, 10407 Michigan av., will have the leading roles. Others who will enact Camp Fire Girls in typical activities include Shirley Beresh, Lois Comstock, Nancy De Meis, Paulette Bernbach, Juanita Schettler, and Joyce Dekker.

A square dance will be performed by Betty Maloney, Alice Hurt, Phyllis Heath, Joyce Broling, Barbara Stegenga, Nancy Den Besten, Virginia Freelove, Marilyn Little, Patricia Gray, Lorraine Glossman, Harol Deane Laughton, Marguerite Lull, Dorothy Ruby, Betty Walter, Lois Bolka, and Jo Ellen Birge.

Group singing and moving pictures of the camp will be presented after the play. Mrs. Richard P. Schettler, 11615 Princeton av., is guardian of the group, and Mrs. Bernie Comstock, 11353 Stewart av., is assistant guardian.

Located on Lake Michigan, 19 miles north of Benton Harbor, Camp Nawakwa contains a large mess hall, receration hall, handicraft rooms, and hospital. Permanent cottages accommodate 10 to 12 girls, each with its own counselor. Three groups, determined by age and experience, make up the camp, old settlers, pioneers, and blue birds.

ENGLEWOOD Y. M. OPENS DRIVE TO BUILD ADDITIONS

Will Hold 2 Meetings This Week

A campaign to raise $350,000 for expansion of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. and its Auburn Park and West Communities branches will begin with two meetings this week of 830 workers. Part of the fund will be used for an addition to the Englewood Y, 6545 S. Union av., while other portions will finance construction of new buildings.

The four story Englewood addition will cost $243,648. The two new buildings will cost $35,000 each. Sites have not been chosen for these structures. Allotted for improvements at Camp Cutten summer camp, Lake Villa, Ill., is $15,000, and $22,100 has been set aside for expansion of the 1945 program.

Of the total fund, only $104,600 is to be raised in the southtown area, according to Raymond S. Blunt, general chairman. If this sum is raised the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago will provide additional funds.

Kick-off meeting for all team captains and workers in the Englewood community will be held in the Y at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. Henry Kloese, 1337 W. 72d pl., will be chairman. A similar meeting will be held Wednesday night for workers in the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 7832 Union av. Bert Hunter, 2165 W. 115th st., is community chairman.

NEW AIR SHOWS POP UP; MANY ON W-G-N - MUTUAL

BY LARRY WOLTERS

New shows, one after another, are popping up this spring—the season of the year usually marked by tapering off of radio activity. Many of the newcomers are W-G-N and Mutual productions. Mutual has introduced a group of attractive new half hour evenings productions.

Arch Oboler has been summoned from Hollywood and is writing and producing a new series of plays, aired at 9:30 p. m. Thursday. Oboler is well remembered here for his old Lights Out series and for much subsequent highly original radio drama.

The Freshup show features Barney Grant, a comedian who has met with considerable favor entertaining troops overseas. It's aired at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays.

Revive Broadway Hits

The Brownstone Theater, aired at 8:30 p. m. Wednesdays, features revivals of old Broadway hits. Jackson Beck and Gertrude Warner are regularly featured. The show has just begun a guest star policy with Jane Cowl appearing as the first one.

Jean Goldkette, who returned to the air last Saturday with a 60 piece orchestra, features unusual arrangements of old and new music. He is inviting composers and arrangers to make suggestions. Dell Parker, his songstress, has an unusual voice. This show is aired from Detroit at 8 p. m. Saturdays. Just ahead of it comes a new program titled Symphony of the Americas, devoted to music of the many American nations.

Sweetheart Time, a half hour musical variety interlude, was introduced recently at 1 p. m. Sundays, with Marion Mann and Phil Kalar as vocal soloists.

Calling All Detectives

Calling All Detectives, a thriller already running on Mutual, will be introduced on W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, April 28. Elsa Maxwell, wit and commentator, will preside over a series titled Party Line. Miss Maxwell will be heard at 10:15 a. m. week-days over W-G-N starting Monday, April 30.

The Human Adventure, the dramatic series broadcast by W-G-N in coöperation with the University of Chicago, will be aired shortly under commercial sponsorship.

WGNB, sister FM station, recently introduced many new features and adopted a policy of emphasizing live talent programs.

Other New Shows

New shows on other networks include these:

The Billie Burke show, with Florence Lake, John Brown, and Eddy Howard's orchestra, 7:30 p. m. Wednesday over NBC.

CBS has started a new series featuring dramatization and narration of great novels. Currently "A Tale of Two Cities," with Michael Scott as narrator, is presented at 2:15 p. m. week-days.

The Mood and the Melody, recently introduced on the Blue at 8 p. m. Mondays has been moved to 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays. It features Nancy Evans, a singing newcomer on the networks—promising, too—Boyce Smith and Rex Maupin's orchestra. Another new one on the Blue is "The Man from G-2," spy stories from military intelligence. It is aired at 6:30 p. m. Thursdays.

Salute Highland Park on Citizens Program

Highland Park High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program at 10 a. m. next Saturday over W-G-N. Arthur E. Wolters, principal, will be host. Philip Maxwell, who conducts the program, will interview Majorie Mann, and add her name and that of Eunice Guse of Marinette, Wis., to the honor roll. Louis Calderelli, violinist, will be the star student entertainer. The school chorus, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner, will sing. Robert Harvey will read interscholastic news.

Quiz Kids to Welcome John Steuart Curry

The Quiz Kids will welcome John Steuart Curry, celebrated American artist as their guest on WENR-Blue at 6:30 o'clock tonight. The small fry savants slated to appear on tonight's show are: Joel Kupperman, Ruthie Duskin, Harve Fischman, Richard Williams, and Lorene Heath, a newcomer who specializes in coping with questions concerning art and opera. Joe Kelly will be quizmaster.

On Comedy Show

Annette Warren is the songstress on the Fresh-Up show, starring Comedian Barney Grant, aired at 7:30 p. m. Wednesdays over W-G-N.

'MLLE. MODISTE' NEXT OPERETTA FOR AIR THEATER

Victor Herbert's comic opera, "Mlle. Modiste," will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air from the stage of Medinah temple before an audience of 4,500 next Saturday. The program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, will speak.

Melodies familiar to Herbert fans, including "Kiss Me Again" will be sung by Marion Claire, soprano prima donna of the series, who will take the part of Fifi. Angelo Raffaeli will sing Etienne and Bruce Foote, The Count.

Henry Weber will direct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus in the popular background music of the opera.

The dramatic cast will include Sondra Gair, William Everett, Philip Lord, Hope Summers, Herb Butterfield, and Carl Kroenke. Jack La Frandre, writer-producer of the series, will direct the performance.

Chicago Artists Join Quiz of Two Cities

Chicago and New York artists, who are represented in the Encyclopedia Brittanica's exhibit of contemporary American art now at the Chicago Art institute, will compete in Quiz of Two Cities over W-G-N at 2 p. m. today. The Chicago team consists of Aaron Bohrod, Francis Chapin, William Schwartz, and Copeland Burg. The New Yorkers are: Rockwell Kent, Anton Refregier, Frank Kleinholtz, and Philip Evergood.

Armand Roth Is Soloist with W-G-N Orchestra

Armand Roth, first violist with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will be soloist in the broadcast of Alan Shulman's "Theme and Variations for Viola and Orchestra" on W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. Henry Weber will conduct.

Air Premiere of Salta Work Over WMAQ Today

A premiere presentation of Salta's "Nocturne" will highlight the NBC Symphony of the Air hour over WMAQ-NBC at 4 p. m. today. The orchestra, under the direction of Frank Black, also will play the overture to Flotow's "Martha," Saint-Saens' "Henry VIII Dances," and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Capriccio Espagnol."

Fluff and Stuff!

When people are moved by personal experience or world events, the result may be a sentimental ballad, a caustic wisecrack, a bit of homely philosophy or a pat pun which is sent with dispatch to Arch Ward's column, "In The Wake Of The News." You will enjoy their outbursts, daily in the Tribune.

SGT. W. J. CONROY LEAVES POLICE AFTER 39 YEARS

Hopes to Take Place as War Worker

After 39 years as a policeman, during which he solved a number of homicides and participated in nearly all the other activities of the force, Sgt. William J. Conroy doesn't intend to take life easy just because he's 63 today and being retired.

"I've been working since I was 12 and I'm not going to stop now if I can help it," he declares. Leaving the police department today, he will soon take up the equally active life of a war worker, perhaps as a machinist and millwright, his trade before he became a policeman in 1906.

If ever he has time for reminiscence, however, Sgt. Conroy will have some genuine adventures to recall.

Covered G. O. P. Conventions

As a member for 17 years of the first police drill company, organized here in 1907, he aided in directing some of the largest parades Chicago has seen. The company was also assigned to duty at conventions, including two national Republican meetings. He was stationed, at various times, at the old 1st, 2d, and 3d districts, and at the detective bureau. For nine years he was at the Englewood station, part of the time as a detective sergeant, and during the last 12 years he has been at the Brighton Park station.

One vivid memory is of the Eastland disaster, July 24, 1915. "I was out at 50th and State sts. when we got word that the boat had gone down, and when we reached the river we were there to stay," Sgt. Conroy recalls. For four days and four nights, without rest, he was on duty at the scene—first removing bodies from the water to a warehouse, then standing guard while tearful relatives came to identify them. "It seemed to us that everybody in the United States was coming," he says.

Probes Deaths of Policemen

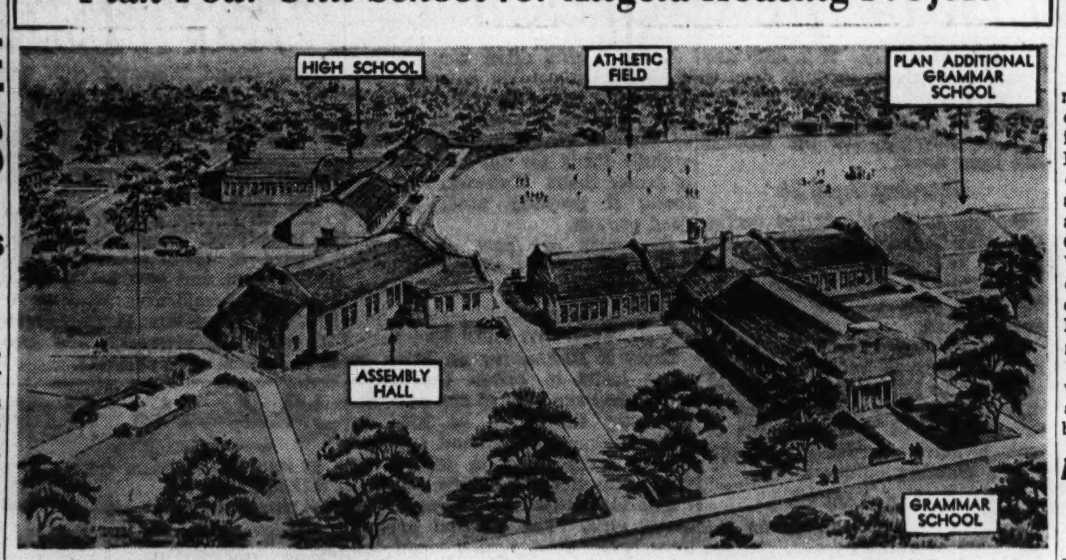
Two south side slayings which Sgt. Conroy was assigned to investigate were of fellow policemen. On Christmas eve, 1915, he and his partner were walking thru their district when they met Policeman John Ransford, who had retired from the force just three days earlier. Conroy was introduced to Ransford, and after a brief conversation about holiday plans they parted.

Fifteen minutes later Sgt. Conroy was notified that Ransford had been shot in a holdup attempt at 45th and State sts. The victim was taken to the Provident hospital where he later died and Conroy and other policemen followed the slayer's footsteps thru the snow and arrested him within a few minutes. He was convicted.

Son of a policeman in the town of Hyde Park, Sgt. Conroy is the third of five generations of his family living in that section. His father and grandfather were Hyde Park residents, as are his two sons and two daughters, and his only grandson, 9 year old William J. Conroy III. Sgt. Conroy is a widower and lives at 6100 Greenwood av.

In accepting a war plant job, Sgt. Conroy will be following the lead of his children. Both William Jr., 30, and Edward, 28, are war plant mechanics, and Eleanor, 24, has a secretarial position in a war industry. His other daughter, Patricia, 14, is a student at Hyde Park High school.

Plan Four Unit School for Altgeld Housing Project



Plan of the new four building school unit under construction at 132d st. and Corliss av. When completed the unit will consist of a high school, and an all purpose building, including assembly hall and gymnasium, to be opened within two weeks; a recently opened elementary school building, and a planned additional elementary school building. The entire project, including athletic field, will cover nine acres. The school will serve children living in the Altgeld housing project. (Story on page 1)

MOBILE X-RAY UNIT WILL VISIT BLOOM TWP. HIGH

A mobile X-ray unit of the Tuberculosis institute of Chicago and Cook county, will visit Bloom Township High school on Friday to X-ray students and faculty members who reacted positively to the Mantoux test, previously given the entire student body. It is expected that 300 will be X-rayed.

The mobile unit, parked in the lot behind the school, is operated by one woman and can take about 50 pictures an hour. A report on the pictures will be sent back to the school thru Mrs. Ester Pfab, school nurse, three weeks after they are taken.

BOOK OF HOUR CLUB OF RIDGE WILL HOLD TEA

Ridge Book of the Hour club members will meet Wednesday afternoon for a tea in the Trinity Methodist church, 90th st. and Winchester av. Mrs. Titus G. Le Clair, 1924 W. 102d st., president, will be in charge. Mrs. A. S. Daniels is program chairman. The meeting, which will begin at 2 p. m., will be the last of the 1944-'45 season.

CARBOLA

HELPS TO CONTROL UNDERGROUND INSECTS
Such as cutworms, beetles, maggots, grubs, which become troublesome to the Gardner by feeding on new shoots of young plants.
TREAT SOIL, SEED, PLANTS
In many cases destruction can be reduced by treating the soil, seed and plants with dry Carbola Dust. One pound for each fifty square feet in the average garden is usually sufficient. Very economical. Safe to use. Not a poison. Also is applied directly in the row. Helps to control potato scab and wireworm, cabbage and radish maggot. Helps prevent crows from picking seed corn. Also very effective and economical when used as a dry dip on hogs, cattle, poultry, dogs, horses, sheep.
Hardware, seed, feed, drug stores. 1 lb. 20c; 5 lbs. 60c; 10 lbs. 98c; 25 lbs. $1.90; 50 lbs. $3.50; Write for free handy garden chart.

BONDS OFFERED FOR YOUNG S. W. SIDE GARDENERS

Kiwanis, Y Groups Will Repeat Contest

In a contest sponsored by two southwestern neighborhood organizations youthful gardeners will compete this summer for war bond and stamp prizes for raising carrots, lettuce, beets, and other vegetables in their back yards.

Students in the Barnard, Clissold, Esmond, Kellogg, Fort Dearborn, Mount Greenwood, Mount Vernon, Shoop, Vanderpoel, Sutherland, and Gresham elementary schools will participate, it was announced this week.

Sponsors of the garden contest are the Kiwanis club of southwest Chicago, of which Russell Augspurger is president, and the Beverly Y. M. C. A., of which Byron Sommers is board chairman.

First place prize will be a $25 war bond, with stamps totaling $10 and $5 for second and third place winners. Only youngsters who have cared for their gardens without assistance will be eligible for these awards.

Winners of the bond and stamp prizes will be honored at a Kiwanis meeting next fall. Ribbon awards will be presented at special school assemblies. Prize winners in the 1944 contest were Paul Pfrommer of Clissold school, Merwyn Raetzman Jr. of Kellogg, and Robert Sommerfeld of Sutherland.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 23

Certain tools are necessary for a successful garden and new tools are difficult to obtain. Hence all broken tools should be repaired. If a handle is broken all that is necessary is to remove the rivet in the old handle and replace with the new. Grease the new handle and it can be driven in place and secured with a rivet.

Tools allowed to stand outdoors may become warped. Always hang tools with their handles down. Trowels are best kept in baskets which can be easily carried from place to place. Keep tools clean and sharp with a flat file.

Tuesday, April 24

A sowing of the cole crops of vegetables should be made at intervals of 10 days or two weeks and all crops should be used when "garden fresh" if they are to be enjoyed to their fullest capacity and the vitamins they contain be utilized completely.

Wednesday, April 25

Keep the vegetable garden cleared of weeds by cultivating when cultivation is necessary. It is only necessary to cultivate an inch deep to obtain results. If weeds are permitted to grow tall it is then too late to cultivate, for the damage has been done.

Thursday, April 26

Set out tender plants not earlier than May 20 and later if the weather is cold and changeable. Never be in a hurry to plant tender plants for they will require protection against frost.

Keep close watch on the plants in the coldframe and hotbed, especially as to ventilation and watering. On very cold nights protect by covering the sash with boards or mats, be sure to harden-off all plants before planting outdoors.

Friday, April 27

Some of the nicest plants for the home are the citrus fruits, such as the Ponderosa lemon and Othadeite orange. Both will flower and bear fruit if given maximum light and kept free from insect pests. If a garden plot is at hand, plunge the plants during summer, a position that may induce flowers to set fruit.

These plants often can be purchased from catalog houses. Seedlings may flower in time but it is much better to buy started, grafted, or budded plants. Fertilize with organic foods for the plants seem to prefer them. However, chemical foods, if properly used, produce good growth.

Gardenias are now offered for house culture but they demand a humid condition not generally successful.

Saturday, April 28

Grow a Boston ivy on brick or stone walls to soften the harsh lines; they are easy to grow requiring only that they be kept in bounds, especially around window frames. The Virginia creeper is very attractive but needs support.

The bittersweet is a strong, vigorous vine. The oriental species have better foliage with about the same kind of fruit as our native. Both do well in partial shade. One or two pollen bearing plants should be planted near others to be sure of fruits. English ivy is not hardy in the Chicago area unless well protected.

SUBURBAN CLUB WILL CONCLUDE YEAR TUESDAY

Blue Island Woman's club will hold its annual spring luncheon Tuesday in the Windermere East hotel, marking the conclusion of the club year. Miss Sylvia Lubi, lyric soprano, will entertain with songs of all nations.

Officers for the coming year will be introduced. They include: Mrs. Leonard C. Holt, president; Mrs. Alden Klein, and Mrs. James Bronson, vice presidents; Mrs. E. V. Hill, treasurer; Mrs. B. E. Frobish, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. T. T. Easton, state delegate.

APPOINT 4 S.W. SIDE STUDENTS U. OF C. FELLOWS

Geography Major Wins Honor 2d Year

Four southwest side students at the University of Chicago have been appointed fellows for the scholastic year 1945-'46. Charlotte R. Bond, Chicago Heights; William R. Sinclair, 1336 W. 83d st.; Robert G. Van Duyn, 2251 W. 111th st., and James R. Wray, 3502 61st st., are the recipients.

Miss Bond, fellow in the department of zoölogy, was graduated from the university in 1940. Since receiving her bachelor of science degree, she has been an X-ray technician at Billings hospital, and a chemistry instructor at Loring school, Beverly Hills.

Will Study Chemistry

William Sinclair, research assistant, is working on his bachelor's degree. As a fellow, he will do advanced work in chemistry.

Both Van Duyn and Wray were granted Walgreen Foundation fellowships, valued at $600 each. Van Duyn, dean and assistant principal of Morgan Park Military academy, will work on his doctorate of philosophy in education. He received his bachelor and master's degrees from Ball State Teachers' college, Muncie, Ind.

Wray Wins Second Time

Wray received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Chicago in 1944. This is the second successive year he has been granted the Walgreen fellowship for advanced study in the field of geography.

The four are among 94 students from 31 states granted more than $85,000 in the university's $594,912 annual budget for student scholarship awards.

SISTER, BROTHER MEET IN PACIFIC AFTER 3 YEARS

Lt. Mary H. Molloy McMorrow, stationed at an army hospital in the Netherlands Indies, recently had a surprise meeting with her brother, Sgt. James Molloy, whom she had not seen for almost three years. Returning from church services, Mary found her brother waiting outside her door.

Their last meeting occurred when both were stationed at Scott field, Ill., in 1942. During their reunion Sgt. James met his new brother-in-law, Corp. George McMorrow, whom his sister married last January.

The brother and sister's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Molloy, 3319 61st pl. Mary volunteered for overseas duty in April, 1942.

St. Thomas Mothers

Mothers of freshmen at St. Thomas Apostle High school will sponsor a party at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday in the school social room, 5467 Woodlawn av.

Enacts Bernadette

JUNE O'HARA
[Marshall Photo]

Visitation High school seniors will present "The Song of Bernadette," a dramatization of Franz Werfel's novel, for one week beginning tomorrow in the school auditorium, 900 Garfield blvd.

June O'Hara, 5720 S. Rockwell st., will appear in the title role at the opening performance. Alternating in the role will be Lorraine Gallagher, 209 W. 72d st. Others having leading roles are: Ann Rose Bartik, Rita and Annabelle Dvorak, Rose Grahovec, Mary Elizabeth Kenny, Joan Murray, Marie Tobin, Mary Lou Murtaugh, Charlotte Neumann, Dorothy Petit, Helen Redlin, Rosemary Sullivan, Lenore Zeleski, and Helen Young. A total of 150 girls will participate in the presentation.

All sets for the play have been designed and constructed by the students in the art department, under supervision of Sister Mary Susanne. Costumes have been designed and made by members of the cast. Joan Madden, 6320 Fairfield av., is stage manager. Howard L. Rooney, head of the drama department, is director.

"Song of Bernadette" was given its premier production by the speech department of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C. The play depicts, in three acts, the heroine's development from age 10 to 24.

Beautiful Luisa was his for the asking
But his heart said "yes" to

CATANA

HE was madly in love with beautiful Luisa, daughter of the wealthy Marquis de Carvajal—but the call of adventure ran riot in his blood. Casting aside his heart's desire, young, handsome, aristocratic Pedro de Vargas set sail for the New World, in search of gold and glory, intending to claim his prize upon his return. His wits, his sword and his courage were the weapons he successfully used to fight intrigue, hardship, and death. Only his heart was vulnerable—and Catana, the poor dancing girl won it—the hard way—against the most formidable odds! It was a matter of course that she be his mistress—but it was scandalous to think of marrying her instead of suitable, adorable Luisa! Don't miss "Captain from Castile", by Samuel Shellabarger! Save Money on New Books

Literary Guild books are selected by our Editorial Staff from proofs submitted by leading publishers long in advance of their publication date. Because the Literary Guild is the largest book club in the world, a huge special edition is printed at a tremendous saving in cost This saving is passed on to members. The Literary Guild edition is manufactured at the same time as the publisher's edition, yet Guild members pay a flat price of only $2.00 for each Guild book accepted, instead of $2.50 to $4.00 for the same book sold at retail in the publisher's edition, to non-members! In addition, Guild members receive a $2.50 to $4.00 popular new book as a bonus for every four Guild books purchased! To be a "member in good standing" merely requires that you accept a minimum of only four Guild books a year out of the 12 or more new and important fiction and non-fiction Guild books submitted for your approval.

'Mme. Dubarry' Opens Summer of Operetta May 12

All Season's Shows to Be New to City

By Claudia Cassidy

Our opera house and the Shuberts again have their heads together over a summer of operetta and will begin operations May 12, with "Mme. Dubarry," a new name for "The Dubarry," Carl Millocker's musical about the notorious mistress of Louis XV. It will be new here, altho it was played in Europe and London years ago and Grace Moore was a decorative Dubarry for 87 costly New York performances in 1932, with Howard Marsh, Pert Kelton, and Percy Waram also in the cast. Marita Farell and Michael Bartlett will be featured here. Miss Farell has appeared with the Metropolitan opera, and Mr. Bartlett, late of the marines, rushed to town last fall to rescue Jeanette MacDonald from the plight of a Romeo-less Juliet.

Marita Farell

Resorting to the Burns Mantle shelf no theater department can exist without, I find the operetta takes some gay liberties with history and is content to spirit Jeanne from milliner's apprentice to Pompadour's successor with no more than some Manon-like intrigue. The truth would be more grim. The Dubarry was a beautiful pawn in the hands of ambitious courtiers, and she lost her head beneath the guillotine because she had gone to England to try to raise money on her jewels. Biographers credit her with grace, wit, and seductive charm, but most of them firmly deny she wrote the volume of letters and anecdote sometimes listed to her credit.

Rowland Leigh and Desmond Carter no doubt made many changes in the book they adapted from the German of Knepler and Willeminsky, but the score is probably unchanged. At last word, its song hits were "I Give My Heart," "If I'm Dreaming," and "Jeanne."

According to the management, all this year's shows will be new to Chicago, and each will run as long as it draws business. Casts for each production will be engaged as needed, but chorus and ballet again will be chosen from local talent. Natalie Kamerova, who directed last season's ballets without memorable results, will be back on the job. Harry Walters will stage the book, and the cast of the musical also will include Rex O'Malley and the dancer, Pittman Corry. Performances will be played nightly, with Saturday and Sunday matinees. There will be a special matinee May 30.

Meanwhile, New York tells me my guess on "Song of Norway" to open the Majestic is wrong, but fails to rise to the bait and tell me what is right. It can't be "Carmen Jones," because that is due in town Labor day, probably at the Erlanger. The Negro "Carmen," as you know, is being redirected by Hassard Short for New York's City Center May 1, and will play Cleveland the the west coast before coming here. Billy Rose says the show will be exactly the size it was on Broadway, and that principal players include Muriel Smith, the original Carmen, alternating with Inez Matthews, plus Buck and Bubbles, Napoleon Reed, and John Hutchinson. So that still leaves the Majestic a mystery. I am told by a man who should know that the first attraction easily could turn out to be Olsen and Johnson in "Laffing Room Only," but does that sound reasonable? Is any one going to spend a lot of money remodeling a theater just to let those zanies wreck it?

"Dear Ruth" caught on overnight at the Harris, where it seems destined to give a lot of people a lot of fun. A gay, supremely unimportant little comedy, it has no purpose but to entertain and it does that royally. In the first night rush I see I called it Moss Hart's best directing job since "Lady in the Dark," which left me hanging over the chasm of "Winged Victory." That was quite a job of keeping a big show simple and I just forgot about it. Suppose we settle by saying "Dear Ruth" is infinitely more deft in direction than Mr. Hart's way with "Junior Miss." He has learned the sense of pace and timing that means the difference in this type of comedy between the soggy and the crisp. I haven't seen the New York company of "Dear Ruth," and at the moment I don't particularly care to. There's nobody like Lenore Lonergan in Lonergan roles, but otherwise I'm not trading.

Sad to see Burl Ives starting his last week in "Sing Out, Sweet Land!" but he is reported under contract to the Theater Guild for another show and maybe the guild won't miss the casting boat this time. Mr. Ives tells me one of his uncles was the river boat gambler "Cameo Kirby" was based on. He was a kind of Robin Hood who won money from the rich planters and scattered it on the streets for the poor. I'd like to see the men who wrote and directed "Oklahoma!" do something about that for Mr. Ives.

At the moment nothing is booked to follow "Sing Out, Sweet Land!" at the Great Northern or "Ten Little Indians" when it closes May 5 at the Studebaker and sets out for Detroit. The latter show plays its 200th performance Wednesday night.

"Othello" will play a benefit performance for the Abraham Lincoln school at the Erlanger Saturday night, May 5. The performance has been made possible by Paul Robeson, star of the show, who was one of the founders of the school.

THE GOLDEN TOTEM

BY BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

(Copyright: 1945: By Barrett Willoughby)

INSTALMENT XVI.

LATE one afternoon the Prospector brought back the fishing party—every man smelling powerfully of salmon and porpoise, and vocal with the joy of a perfect outing. A gala evening followed, with Lynn and Stella in their loveliest dinner gowns. Mrs. Strum, in her depression, served a dinner to be remembered. Greer brought out his finest liquors and cigars.

It was during the after dinner session in the living room that Lynn heard the story of the dim scar over Greer's left cheekbone. The men had been talking of emergency operations in the wilderness when Dr. Baxter said, "By the way, Greer, that's a neat job some one did on your cheek. I hope you don't mind my speaking of it. I noticed it the first time I met you last winter."

Greer ran his fingers over his scar. "Yes, it's not bad—for an Eskimo job."

"Eskimo job!" exclaimed Stella.

"Well!" The doctor brightened. "I wager I've stumbled on a story. Tell us about it, won't you?"

It was a tale of Arctic perils quietly and very effectively told. On foot, with an Eskimo boy, Greer had been fighting his way along the shore ice of Bering sea, when the section they were on broke away. A strong off-shore wind carried them, marooned on the ice pan, into the North Pole drift. For two days they huddled together without shelter, without food. They had given up hope of survival when their ice pan crashed into, and stuck to, another pan on which a polar bear stood growling over a seal it had just killed.

Greer continued: "My boy was out of his head from hunger and exposure. He rushed at the bear, hoping to scare it away from its kill. Sheer suicide, of course. I leaped to save the kid, if possible. With my only weapon, a hunting knife, I lunged for the beast's jugular. She slapped at my head. I ducked; but one of her claws ripped across my cheek as I drove my knife home in her throat. We went down together in a welter of warm blood. To avoid her raking claws in her death struggle, I clung to her until she lay still. It seemed—a long, long time."

Exclamations of admiration and wonder came from the men; but Stella Chandler sat silent, her luminous black eyes on her host and one tightened corner of her painted mouth going in and out.

Dr. Baxter cried: "Don't tell me your Eskimo boy sewed up that cheek with raw bear sinews!"

Greer laughed heartily. "You're trying to make fun of me, Doctor. What really happened was totally unspectacular. We ate raw meat and got strength enough to get to the Eskimo village at Kotzebue. By that time my scratch was a bit feverish; but the mother of my Eskimo boy took care of me. She did the job—fine needle workers, those Bering sea Eskimos. And while I was laid up there the boy's father, a splendid native craftsman, made me this little keepsake from nuggets he had picked up on the Kobuck river." Greer held out his wrist so that the sportsmen might see the watchband he always wore.

"Pretty fancy!" commented one of the men.

"I know." Greer smiled. "It's gaudy. But I wear it because I appreciate the gratitude that prompted it. And, to be frank, I like it as an ornament. I've been out in front for so many years I suppose I've taken on some of the sartorial—or shall we say—decorative ideas of my native friends."

Lynn had listened to Greer's explanation of the nugget watchband with a hollow sense of surprise and pause. Only yesterday, as she sorted a basket of old papers and bills, she had come on a receipted statement dated a year ago, from the Nugget Curio Shop in Juneau. It was made out to Jefferson Greer. She remembered the item, perfectly:

1 nugget wrist watch band, $197.50.

She felt a queer, illogical embarrassment at having seen it. The next instant, however, she shoved her suspicious aside, not because she believed Greer incapable of lying, but because to her mind only a very stupid person would tell such a petty and purposeless lie. And Greer was not stupid. The bill must be for some other nugget wrist band. He might even have had his own copied for a friend, she told herself, very firmly.

Every one went to bed early that night.

Snores had been issuing from the sportsmen's rooms for an hour when Stella Chandler stepped cautiously thru her door. Buttoning her mink coat around her throat, she ran bareheaded downstairs and out along the woodland trail that led to the dark office of the Golden Totem Mining company.

She entered, tiptoed across the floor, and softly pushed open the door into Greer's sitting room.

He turned his face to see who had entered. Stella stood, insolent and challenging, her mink coat thrown back to reveal a long, pale-green chiffon negligee. His expression did not change. He did not rise.

He asked, coldly, "What does this mean?"

She shrugged out of her coat, and lit a cigaret.

"This means, Jeffy boy, that one of your secretaries has come home to roost," came her delayed answer to his question.

"What?" she exclaimed, sarcastically. "You don't remember me? Why, I'm the gal who doubled as bedfellow on your Peru gold swindle."

Under the faint scar across his cheekbone began a tiny movement like a pulse beat. But his manner was one of utter boredom as he rose, drew the curtains across all the windows, and returned to the sofa to pick up his magazine.

Stella swung her leg. "So-o-o-o," she crooned in a tauntingly sweet voice, "A great, big polar bear did rip his little cheek open when he was nobly battling to save the life of an Eskimo c-h-e-i-l-d! . . . Bah!" she blurted indignantly in her natural tones. "You've got your nerve, Jeff Greer, telling that one right in front of me. What if I'd bawled out the truth? Told 'em I whacked you one across the cheek with a brass edged ruler the day you turned me adrift in Peru with nothing but a new mink coat!"

Maintaining silence, he turned a page, keeping his eyes on the magazine.

She shrugged. Easing herself off the table, she strolled over to the liquor cabinet and mixed herself a highball. She drank half of it on the spot, then, glass in hand, returned to her seat on the table.

"Hell," she sighed. And meditatively she addressed what was left of the highball. "To think that only a few years ago he was the dream-guy for me. . . . The very smell of the shaving lotion he put on his face used to send me into a tail-spin. . . . The big, brave, honest Alaskan who introduced me to luxurious travel; to the flesh pots; to—love. Especially love." She lifted her glass as for a toast, drained it, and put it down on the table beside her.

"Funny," she went on, as tho to herself, "it never was the same afterward. My Argentine polo player. . . . My middle aged appliance manufacturer. . . . My well fed sugar daddie from Honolulu."

"Cut it out!" snapped Greer. "I'm not interested in your love affairs."

"Ah, me! How the sight of you brings back old memories, Jeffy boy. To find you still the teetotaler—so's you can take advantage of the suckers who get drunk. To find you still merging business and pleasure in a sylvan retreat, only this time with a highbrow little blonde who——"

"Shut up, damn you!" He sprang from his seat, gripped both her wrists and thrust his tensed face close to hers. "Leave Lynn alone, you—you——"

"Damn it!" Greer flung his magazine into a corner. "What are you driving at, Stella? Why did you come here? What do you want?"

"What do I want?" She was sitting well up on the table now, both feet off the floor and her hands grasping the curved edge on each side of her. "Look at me, Jeff."

"Get down to business, Stella. We haven't all night."

"I'll get down to business, believe me; but in my own way, Jeffy boy. And that's from the beginning. And the beginning was the day my Hawaiian sugar daddie gave me the brush-off for a bleached blonde a couple of years older than I am. Yes, I said older, precious. But when I took a good, honest look in the glass I could see why. Seven nights a week in a cocktail bar, with incidental activities, hadn't done any good for Stella's looks. I was in a tough spot.

"And then, while I waited for my turn in a dentist's office, I opened—guess what? An old number of SNAP!"

Greer met her derisive smile, and quickly turned away.

"Yes. There before my bloodshot eyes appeared, quote: Wealthy Alaska bachelor with gold mine in his back yard. End quote." She lifted her chin and loosed a ripple of malicious laughter. "A double page spread of my first love, looking younger than ever in his beau-ti-ful, carefully posed, carefully retouched publicity pictures!"

"Get down to business, Stella. How much do you want to get the hell out of here?"

"Precious! What a mercenary turn of mind you have! I didn't come up here to collect on—well, what I happen to know about you. All I ask is home and love, Jeff." She grinned at him.

He half rose. "Why, you——" He choked, and sank back. "Look here! You can't pull that innocence-betrayed stuff on me. You had a natural bitchiness when I met you. Otherwise you wouldn't have grabbed at my proposition."

Stella's grin vanished. Indignantly, she drew herself up. "Jeff Greer, I'll have you know I was an honest country girl working for my living in the city when——"

"When you fell into my arms like an overripe persimmon, because you wanted a trip to South America. You were nuts about the salary I paid you. And you agreed, when the Peru deal was over, you'd go your way and let me go mine."

She eeled down from her perch on the table and stood a moment, the lines of her tall, opulent figure half revealed by the thinness of her pale green negligee. She held out both her hands, and, suddenly languorous eyed and seductive, swayed toward him.

He was on his feet in an instant, backing away from her. "None of that, Stella, I'm thru."

"Is that so!" she flung at him, her mood changing. "Well, I'm not thru. I'm staying at Illahee. Furthermore, you're going to begin courting me. After a suitable period of coyness, I shall give in and permit you to make me Mrs. Jefferson Greer. Get it?"

He stood very still looking at her; not as a man looks at an attractive woman, but as an adventurer estimates the strength and weakness of some obstacle that is barring his way. But just as he started to speak, a knock sounded on the outside door of the office.

For a moment both of them stood like statues. Then Stella skipped to Greer's side and slipped a possessive arm thru his. "Can it be," she breathed, laughingly, "that I've butted in on a midnight date with your little blonde——"

"Shut up!" he whispered so fiercely that she drew away from him. With one hand he caught up her mink coat, and with the other swiftly propelled her into his bedroom. In the darkness he tossed the garment toward the bed. "Remember, Stella, it's to your advantage as much as to mine that no one learns of your presence here."

He closed the door on her.

By the time the knocking sounded on his sitting room door, he was back on the sofa, holding his magazine.

"Come in!" he called, looking up to see who was seeking him at this late hour.

At sight of his visitor a swift change crossed his face, like wind over water. He came quickly to his feet. Professionally genial and smiling, he stepped forward to greet his unexpected visitor.

"Ah! It's you, Mrs. Strum! You look worried. Come in and tell me what I can do for you."

The housekeeper was hesitating on the threshold—short, wide, in her old white polo coat. Her face was mottled as tho she had been crying into her pillow. Her eyes looked out red-rimmed under disheveled dark hair.

"Mis-ter Greer, I—I—" she swallowed; then as tho lashed by some desperate necessity, burst out: "I can't wait any longer. I've got to catch that next steamer south. I——"

"Now, now, dear lady, calm yourself." Greer's voice soothed; and already he had a firm hand under her elbow and was solicitously leading her to the soft, black leather sofa. "There. Snuggle down and relax for a moment."

He drew a chair for himself opposite her and close enough so he could reach out and pat the plump, cold hand she had curved over her knee. "Now, my dear?"

Mrs. Strum abruptly gripped both hands together in her lap and turned her eyes away as if to escape the disarming kindness of his look and manner. "It's my husband—Harry. I—I tried to tell you before you took out the Baxter party. The news came on that mail. But you wouldn't let me. You wouldn't listen. You——"

"There, there, Mrs. Strum. Don't cry. I was terribly rushed then. And I didn't realize—I had no idea. Forgive me, won't you? Please?" He leaned forward and with a big, clean handkerchief gently wiped away Mrs. Strum's tears. "Now, tell me all about it."

"It's his lungs," she sobbed. "He took a turn for the worse. They made him go back to the Livermore Vet's hospital."

"Ah-h-h. I remember. He was gassed in the last war. I'm sorry, Mrs. Strum. Terribly sorry."

She moved uneasily. "He's lonely. He wants me. He——" She bit her trembling lower lip.

"Of course he wants you! And I think you should go. I'll see that you're aboard the next steamer, Mrs. Strum. Leave everything to me."

"O! Then it's all right, Mis-ter Greer?" She wiped her eyes with the back of her hand and looked at him, brightening. "And I can have the money before I go?"

"Money?" He appeared to be puzzled. "Haven't I paid you your wages every two weeks?"

"My wages—yes. But I mean the other money you promised me. The five thousand we lost in your Peru mine."

He shook his head with an amused, indulgent laugh. "Ah, these women! No more idea of business than the man in the moon. . . . Mrs. Strum, I told you I'd give you that money after I'd sold enough stock in the Golden Totem to do so. And so far I——"

"You sold stock to those guests you had in here in June," she reminded him, diffidently.

"Yes, I did. But all that money had to be put back into more development work. But by the end of October, I'm sure I'll be able to——"

"October? Harry may be dead by October! No, no, Mis-ter Greer. I want it now. I want to take it with me so I can take Harry to the desert. The doctor says he may get well if——"

"Mrs. Strum," he interrupted in a patient, reasoning tone. "Please try to understand: Your husband insisted on investing in my gold mine in Peru. Circumstances beyond my control—an act of God, in fact—ruined that mine. Your husband lost his investment. But so did every one else, including myself. Legally, I don't owe him a cent. I'm in no way obligated to pay his losses. You realize that, don't you, my dear lady?"

Mrs. Strum didn't look convinced. "But that was all the money we had in the world, Mis-ter Greer! Harry sold our steady-paying little lunchroom on the highway and put every cent he got for it into your mine because you promised to double it for him in six months."

"And I would have done so, if the mine hadn't flooded."

"An act of God, you said. But it nearly broke Harry's heart. He's a sick man. He's not big and healthy like you. That's why I began looking for you to get our money back. But no one knew where you were. O, Mis-ter Greer! You'll never know how discouraged I was. And then I happened to run across that magazine SNAP, with your picture in it, and——"

"Yes, Mrs. Strum. I know. And you found me. And I wasn't the villian you suspected me of being, was I? And when you wanted to stay here and work, I made you my housekeeper at a better salary than you could get any other place in the world, didn't I?"

"Yes," she admitted. "But I was going to stay anyway, until I got back that $5,000 for Harry. You promised to give it to me as soon as you sold enough Golden Totem shares.

"Yes, Mis-ter Greer. But maybe the Golden Totem isn't a safe mine either. Maybe another act of God will——"

"I assure you, Mrs. Strum, nothing like that can happen to the Golden Totem." A flick of his eye took in the bedroom door that hid Stella Chandler. He lowered his voice. "And we've got the highest grade free milling ore in Alaska. You don't have to take my word for it. I can show you reports from reputable assayers——"

"O, Mis-ter Greer!" Her tear-stained face lighted again. "I'm so glad! Then there's really no reason why you can't give me back the $5,000 now so I can go back to my husband."

Greer limply dropped his hands and in patient despair lifted his eyes. "Can't I make you understand, dear lady? In October I'll——"

"No. October will be too late." Mrs. Strum suddenly sat up straight. A firmness had come into her voice. She said slowly and with significance, "My Harry's life depends on that money. You will give it to me now, before the Baxter party looks at the mine."

He laughed and shook a finger at her as tho at a child who had just made a ridiculously amusing statement. "If I didn't know better, Mrs. Strum, I'd suspect you of attempting to blackmail me."

There was no answering smile on the housekeeper's face. She came to her feet. "In the morning, while I'm serving breakfast to the Baxter party, I shall entertain them with the story of how I happened to be at Illahee cooking for Jefferson Greer."

He stood up, also. During a taut, silent interval each took the other's measure. Greer was the first to speak. "Why not, dear lady!" With a low, indulgent laugh he brought a hand down on Mrs. Strum's shoulder. "Why not? It's an interesting story of a woman's peculiar courage—and tenacity. However, let's get back to our subject. I appreciate your keen anxiety, Mrs. Strum. I want to help you. And so, in the morning before you serve breakfast, come over here to my office. I'll have your $5,000 check ready. And, as a token of my gratitude for the way you've managed Illahee for me, I'll add another check for a month's salary."

"O—o-o." Mrs. Strum's mouth fell open. She was taken aback by his sudden generous compliance with her demand. Obviously, she was regretting her covert threat. Obviously, she was thinking it might not have been necessary after all. She burst into effusive thanks.

Greer, escorting her to the outside door, could not have been more courteous or deferential had she been the largest stockholder in the Golden Totem. He said good night to her with a gentleness that somehow gave an impression of compassion and great personal loneliness.

Mrs. Strum, looking abashed and apologetic, scuttled away along the dusky woodland trail that led back to Illahee.

What Has Gone Before

Lynn Clonard spends her vacation with one of her Aunt Julie's friends and meets Perry Holloway, who is heading for Alaska. Perry asks her to marry him. They become engaged and will marry at Christmas time. Perry wires he has a job as foreman in a mine and asks her to come immediately to Alaska and marry him there. Lynn has just enough money for a one-way passage. Court Faber, young mining engineer, rescues Lynn and her dog from an accident on the boat. Perry is late meeting her, arriving helplessly drunk. Lynn tells Perry she will not marry him. Jefferson Greer is approached by Court and refuses to grant him a right of way to Faber's claim. Greer tricks Lynn into asking for a job as secretary at his mine, the Golden Totem. En route to the mine Lynn learns that Greer is Perry's boss. Out canoeing, Lynn sees Faber and Tonglaw, Greer's houseman, studying over papers. Perry asks for another chance. Out walking, Lynn meets Flan O'Hara and Court, who is impressed when he learns she is not married. Later Greer tells Lynn he loaned money to Faber's father and in his absence acquired the Golden Totem when the mortgage was foreclosed. Court's father was drowned and Court is still bitter. Greer sends Perry to Juneau to meet some prospective investors. While Perry is gone Greer tells Lynn she is his ideal woman. Mrs. Stella Chandler, one of Greer's former secretaries, arrives with the party from Juneau. Greer discovers Court is taking advantage of the high tide to get his drill stem across Greer's land. Lynn helps Court outwit Greer. Lynn learns Perry has gambled away her engagement ring, a wedding check, and money she loaned him. Stella is found checking records in Greer's office, and, accompanied by Lynn and Perry, she investigates the mine.

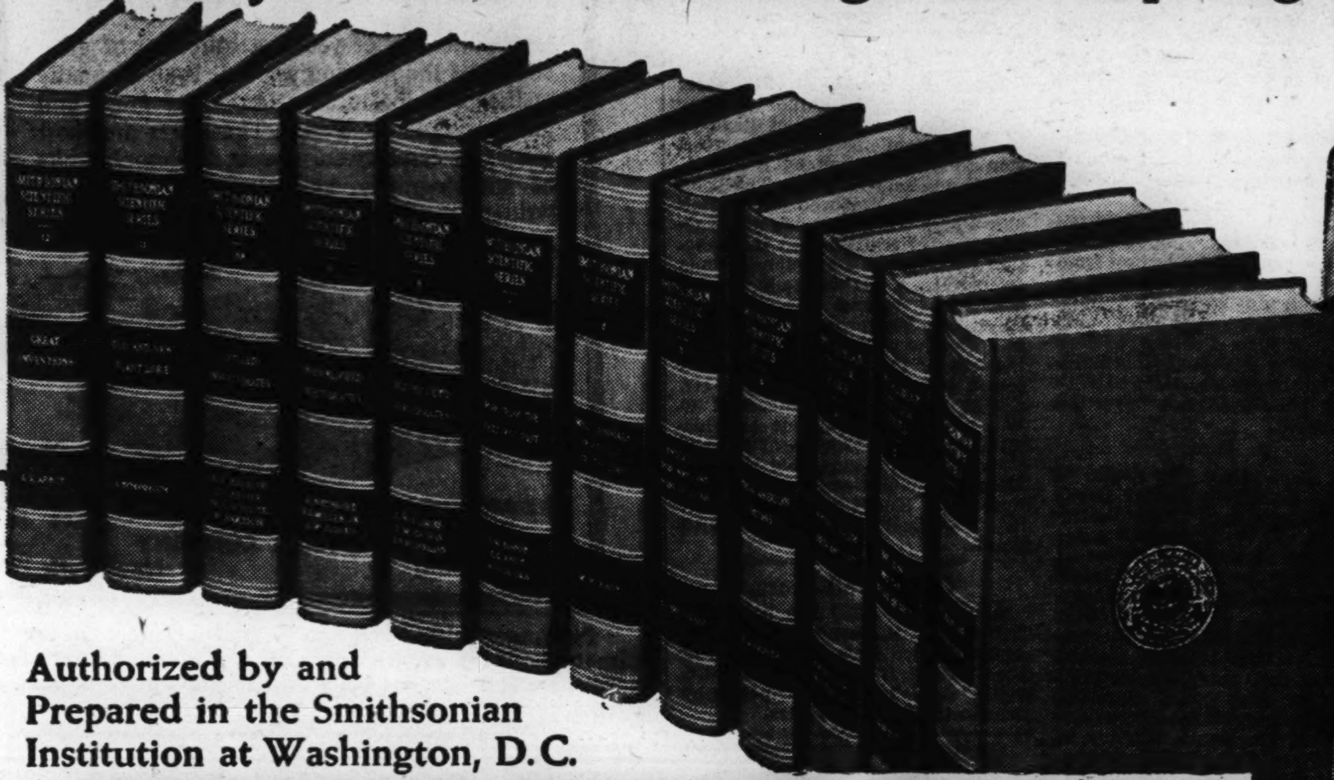
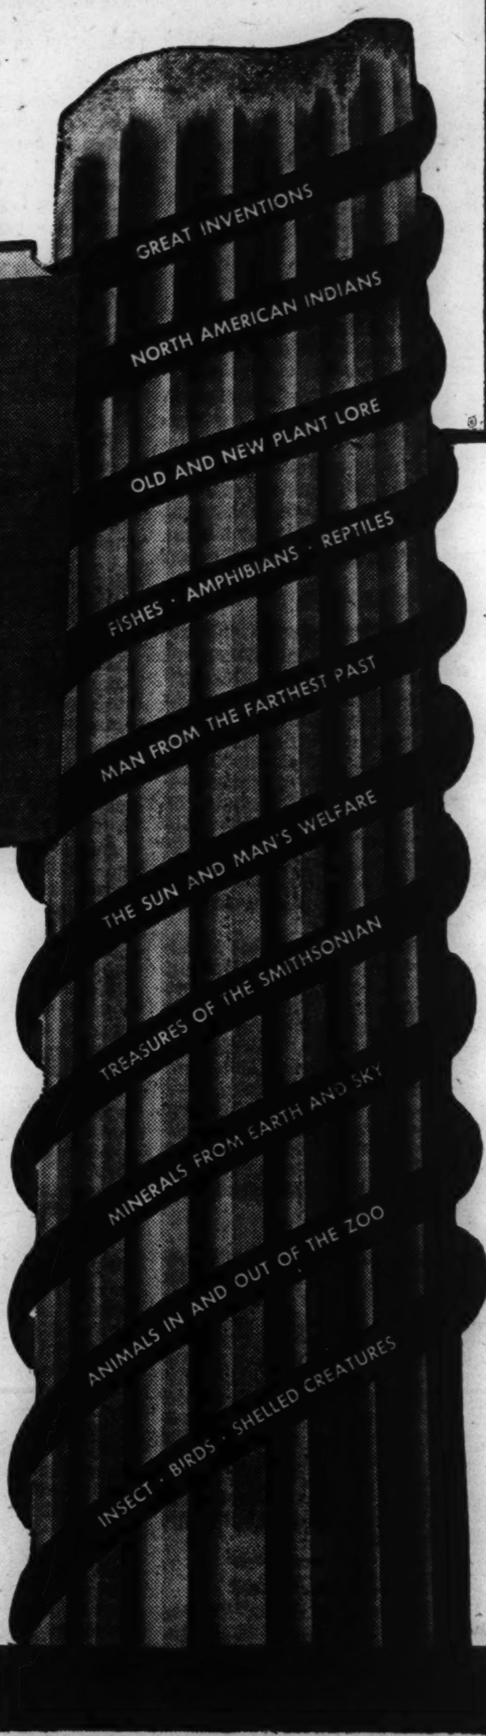
Now You May Have—in Your Own Home—this Great Treasury of Man's Knowledge and Inspiring Achievement





Authorized by and Prepared in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D.C.

THE SMITHSONIAN SERIES

Is an Official Record of the Wealth of Information Assembled at the Institution as a Result of its Wide-Ranging Scientific Investigations

FOR NEARLY ONE HUNDRED YEARS, the SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION has functioned as a great world headquarters of man's knowledge. It has amassed the fruit of human achievement and discovery from all corners of the globe—and made them available to all. Its researches have made it virtually the scientific arm of our Government, under whose trusteeship it functions. And its vast accumulation of treasures, covering virtually every field of man's progress, attracts millions of visitors yearly to its famed halls in Washington.

Now the Smithsonian's Riches Are Brought to You—In Your Own Home!

To fulfill the dream of its founder, "to increase and diffuse knowledge among men"; to bring the Institution to you, you who may never see it, or, as a visitor, may not have sufficient time to absorb more than a fraction of what it offers: that is the purpose of these magnificent, these uniquely privileged books. The SMITHSONIAN SERIES brings to your chairside, in word and picture, the vast storehouse of knowledge that is the SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION. It brings to you, to your family, to your work and to your hours of self-improvement those things which in the opinion of the scholars of the Institution are of the greatest importance to the greatest number of people.

Each of these twelve volumes opens another door of the Institution to you: each volume reveals a wonderful new world of interest and information.

In the volume devoted to the Institution itself, you learn of the multitudinous ways in which the knowledge amassed by the Institution is gathered and how important a part the Institution plays in our national life. In The Sun and the Welfare of Man, Dr. Charles G. Abbot, Editor-in-Chief of the series, tells vividly of his own research on the sun's rays; how the sun's rays may be used for cooking, for heating the domestic water supply, and even for power; how the sun's energy may replace our diminishing natural fuel not far in the future.

In Minerals from Earth and Sky, you learn how our planet has been a target for "celestial bombs" for ages; you also read the fascinating story of the rarest of earth's own minerals—gem stones. The volumes on Insects, on Wild Animals, on Birds, Fish and Plant Lore reveal to you the amazing secrets of all living things. Between the volumes Man from the Farthest Past and Great Inventions you get an extraordinary account of the earliest beginnings of man's progress on earth as well as modern man's greatest mechanical achievements. This space does not permit full description of the Series, but here are some facts:

- To complete this huge publishing project, it took years of time and engaged the unstinting efforts of many scholars.
- International figures in finance, government and education, leaders in all walks of life, subscribed a total of $437,500.00 in advance in order to see this work accomplished—thus paving the way for the present popular priced edition. Among those who subscribed for the first edition were Andrew Mellon, J. P. Morgan, Charles E. Hughes, W. A. Rockefeller, many others.
- Among its 1800 illustrations are many beautiful color plates acknowledged to be the finest examples of their kind.
- The Series has been hailed by universities, schools, libraries, and individuals from coast to coast, for its clear, concise human coverage of useful knowledge.

Now this great work is offered to you at a remarkably low price—in fact, only a small fraction of the original price—as a further step in the SMITHSONIAN'S program to make man's knowledge available to all. This new printing contains all the material of the original edition: 1,800 illustrations, 5,000 pages, completely revised—brought up to date!

By special arrangement with the Smithsonian Institution, the Smithsonian Series is published and distributed only by The Series Publishers, Inc., a private corporation organized solely and exclusively for this purpose.

Civic Orchestra to Play Concert Thursday Night

on the Aisle

by Claudia Cassidy

WITH the Metropolitan Opera's spring visit just a week away, the box office seems, however inadvertently, to follow the news. First of the operas to sell out was "Lucia," to be sung by Lily Pons, just returned from long trips overseas, and the next call has been for "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg," Wagner's festival opera, laid in the festival city recently entered by allied troops, who had previously invaded Bayreuth and found the Festspielhaus undamaged.

Memories of a Music Critic's Visit to Bayreuth

A lot can happen in five years of blood and terror, and I wonder how many people remember that Ravinia night in June, 1940, when Eugene Ormandy opened his guest engagement with the Chicago Symphony by playing the "Meistersinger" overture. France had fallen and the civilized world was stunned by the shock, yet it didn't occur to any one to toss that music off the scheduled program. We had at least learned not to confuse music and politics, which was something, however minor, between one World war and another. Just the same, that triumphant overture will have a different sound, now that victory is on our side.

It has been seven years since Chicago heard the opera, and the visiting production is going to look familiar, because our settings are on lend-lease to the Met. But "Die Meistersinger" dates back in our archives to 1889, just a year after the first Bayreuth production, that followed the Munich première by two decades. It did not join our resident repertory until 1930, when Egon Pollak conducted a remarkable cast holding Lehmann, Olszewska, Maison, Nissen and Bocklemann alternating as Hans Sachs, Kipnis, and Habich. The Metropolitan's revival is in charge of George Szell, with a cast including Steber, Thorborg, Kullman, Janssen, List, and Pechner. Mr. Pechner plays Beckmesser, the reactionary critic who scratches furiously on his slate while Hans Sachs listens with kindly wisdom to Walther's departure from traditional song. It took no delver into inner meanings to know from the start that Wagner, himself, was Walther, while Sachs represented enlightened souls who appreciated his music, and Beckmesser the warped fellows who did not.

I never got the chance to hear Wagner in its festival setting, but Albert Goldberg did, back in 1927, as roving correspondent at music festivals for the vanished Herald-Examiner. He arrived at Bayreuth of a late July afternoon, caused considerable havoc in traffic by the unorthodox accenting of his hastily acquired German, and finally got settled for the festival duration with a German family whose sanitary arrangements will require a chapter in his memoirs.

A Counterpart of Richard Wagner

More to the immediate point is the fact that after his first Bayreuth dinner he climbed the hill on the edge of town to look at the Festspielhaus. "The long German twilight was drawing to a close as I approached the clearing under the pines," he says, "and while I stood impressed before this famous monument of musical history the solitary figure of a short, slightly rotund man with gray hair and aquiline features turned the corner of the theater and came toward me. I had an eerie feeling that I was seeing a ghost, for in the dimming light the man was an exact counterpart of the great Richard Wagner. Then, as he stood looking up at the sprawling theater, I realized that this was the only son of Richard and Cosima Wagner, Siegfried, himself.

"Cosima at that time was still living in the spacious Wagner home, Villa Wahnfried, on the other side of the town, with the great composer buried in the garden, just as another famous man recently was buried in the garden of his estate. Cosima was then nearly 90, and blind, and except for her son and his wife, Winifred [later widowed and reported affianced to Adolf Hitler], her only visitor was said to be the famous conductor, Karl Muck, director of that season's 'Parsifal,' himself rumored to be Wagner's illegitimate son.

"The press box in which I sat for the festival performances was at the back of the theater—constructed, like our Goodman, with only lateral aisles—and next to the official box of the Wagner family. Siegfried Wagner and Frau Winifred were, of course, at each performance, with distinguished guests, and altho during that entire summer in Germany I never once heard the name of Adolf Hitler or national socialism, it is quite probable that he was a guest, as the Wagners were among his earliest supporters.

"At the conclusion of the first performance of the festival, 'Tristan and Isolde,' there was an enormous ovation. Curtain calls by members of the cast were barred at Bayreuth, and for at least 20 minutes nothing happened. Then the curtains parted and Siegfried Wagner appeared alone on the vast stage to acknowledge the applause on behalf of the cast and the eminent departed."

About this time Mr. Goldberg gets a touch wistful for days that are no more, remembering uncut performances that got under way in mid-afternoon and proceeded in leisurely fashion with hour long intermissions in which to linger over bountiful refreshments and stroll in the pines, secure in the ability of the brass section to mount its balcony and summon laggards with intimations of the act to come.

Double-Crossed by a Carriage Driver

Everybody who was anybody, he says, or even ex-anybody, including the daughters of the ex-kaiser and the ex-czar of Bulgaria, drove to the performances in old-fashioned, horse drawn vehicles, with natives gathered to gape at their splendor until they were unloaded in triumph at the Festspielhaus. So he and Eugene Stinson, then critic of the News, decided to be grand, too. They pooled their resources, hired a carriage, and set out in the aristocratic manner. It was a nice ride, but nobody noticed them, and the driver double-crossed them. He dumped them at a side entrance, which suggests he was psychic and shared Wagner's opinion of music critics.

But it takes more than that to down a music critic. "During one of the days when there was no performance at Bayreuth," remembers our critic, "most of the tourists took a special train to Nürnberg to hear a remarkably fine performance of 'Die Meistersinger.' Between acts I stepped out on the opera house balcony and saw, bathed in moonlight, the fabulous old town immortalized in Wagner's opera, the town now reported to be a shapeless heap of rubble."

Event Is 25th Anniversary of the Group

By Albert Goldberg

The Civic orchestra of Chicago will celebrate its 25th anniversary with its first full length concert in two years at Orchestra hall on Thursday at 8:15 under the direction of Hans Lange.

The Civic orchestra has proved itself one of the most useful of Chicago's musical institutions, but in recent seasons one of the least publicized. The orchestra came into existence in 1920 as a result of the late Frederick Stock's desire to provide an opportunity for young American musicians to receive training which would fit them for positions in the major symphony orchestras of the country. Until that time the great majority of American orchestras had been forced to import players from Europe to fill their ranks. The Civic orchestra thus became the first important training school for symphonic players in the United States.

Hans Lange [Nelidoff Photo]

At the beginning Mr. Stock devoted much personal attention to the activities of the orchestra, but as his own duties with the Chicago Symphony increased the direction of the orchestra was turned over to his associate, Eric De Lamarter, under whose supervision the group of young musicians for a number of years played an annual series of concerts of high caliber. As a direct result of the training received in the Civic orchestra, its graduates are now found in the ranks of almost every major American orchestra. Forty-five Civic trained musicians are now members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, including John Weicher, the concertmaster, and the following first desk players: Milton Preves, viola; Florian Mueller, oboe; Jenska Slebos, assistant first cellist; Harvey Noack, flute; Hugo Fox, bassoon; Helen Kotas, horn, and Frank Crisafulli, trombone. Originally administered jointly by the Civic Music association and the Orchestral association, operation of the Civic orchestra was taken over exclusively by the Orchestral association five years ago, with expenses defrayed from special funds.

30TH WEEK

K. T. Stevens and Hugh Marlowe, who begin their 30th Selwyn week in John Van Druten's popular comedy, "The Voice of the Turtle."

Upon the retirement of Mr. De Lamarter, Hans Lange assumed the duties of conductor, with Clarence Evans as assistant. Originally of full symphonic size, war has reduced the personnel to 50 members and Mr. Lange this season has wisely confined the orchestra's studies to classical symphonies, one of which, Haydn's "The Clock," appears on Thursday's program. Section rehearsals under the supervision of first desk Chicago Symphony players have continued, as well as three general rehearsals a week.

Soloists will be Mary Louise Boehm, who will play the first downtown performance of Arne Oldberg's third piano concerto, a work she premiered with the Northwestern University Symphony orchestra last season, and Paul Anderson, the orchestra's first cellist, who will contribute Popper's "Hungarian Rhapsody." The orchestra also will play Bizet's first "L'Arlésienne" suite.

The Russian Singers and Dancers will give a program of folk songs, battle hymns and dances, and selections from Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounoff" under the direction of Nicolai Popov at the Amalgamated auditorium, 333 S. Ashland av., this afternoon at 4:30.

Nancy Carr, Chicago soprano, will give a recital in Kimball hall on Friday at 8:20, singing an aria from Handel's "Acis and Galatea," Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love," Pergolesi's "Se Tu M'ami," Mozart's "Alleluia," lieder by Brahms, Wolf, Marx and Strauss, French songs by Debussy, Chausson, and Ravel, De Falla's "Nana," and songs in English by Griffes, Gibbs, Boyd, Hyde, and Woodman.

Physical Therapy Boosted as Career for Women

Free Training to Fit Many for Life Work

By The Rev. John Evans

The profession of physical therapist as a career for women will be emphasized by women's organizations thruout the United States in connection with the award by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis of scholarships to relieve the shortage of specialists in that treatment.

"The young woman who takes advantage of the free training for nine months or a year in an approved school has a life work," said Basil O'Connor, president of the foundation. "The physical therapist may work in a hospital, clinic, doctor's office, or treat patients in their homes under prescription from a doctor of medicine," he added.

Mr. O'Connor explained that this profession is uncrowded and will long remain so because of the increased use of physical therapy both in disease and injury. Moreover, the need for physical therapists has lately become more acute thru the rehabilitation program for veterans, the demands in industrial medicine, and the post-nosal care of infantile paralysis.

Tuition, living expenses, books, and transportation of qualified students will be provided, according to their needs, thru these scholarships which have been made possible by contributions to the annual March of Dimes.

To offset the continued isolation of the Netherlands universities of Leyden, Delft, Amsterdam, Utrecht, and Groningen, the minister of education has opened temporary academic centers at Eindhoven for physics and medicine, at Maastricht for medicine, and Heerlen for mining engineering. The Catholic university of Nijmegen, and the Catholic College of Economics at Tilburg, also have reopened.

One hundred and fifty scholarships, valued at $75,000, for the academic year 1945-'46 will be awarded in the college of the University of Chicago to students who have completed sophomore, junior, or senior years in high school, President Robert M. Hutchins has announced. These scholarships to be granted in a nation-wide competition held yesterday are awarded from the university's $594,912 annual budget for aid to students attending the university.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of high school record, the four hour examination, ability for critical thinking, comprehension of words and concepts, familiarity with facts and ideas, and appreciation of the arts, including literature.

Met Opera Schedule

The Metropolitan Opera association will present the following operas at the Civic Opera house during the week of April 30 thru May 5:

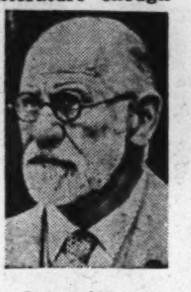
Literature Affected by Freudianism

"FREUDIANISM AND THE LITERARY MIND," by Frederick J. Hoffman. [Louisiana State University Press, $4.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Whether Sigmund Freud's theories influenced literature enough to change its course and open for it new fields of psychological exploration is doubtful, but Dr. Hoffman makes it clear that the attention given to Freud by the literary and intellectual world has had a marked effect upon writers since the Viennese doctor's works appeared.



Sigmund Freud

In the 1920s, when Freudianism had its greatest vogue, we also experienced a revolt against conventions which came close to being a complete abandonment of the staidness and smugness which had been, for generations, the dominant characteristics of our society and literature.

The connection between this revolt and the psychoanalytic method of curing neuroses was, as Dr. Hoffman is careful to point out, largely a marriage of convenience. People who were tired of obeying the rules and conforming to the established order used Freud as an excuse — they were "breaking the bonds" of repression and setting their souls free. But those who were able to read Freud intelligently were able to find in him something that could help to make both literature and life fuller and freer.

Interesting from a critical standpoint are the author's chapters in which he discusses specific effects of Freudianism in literature, with reference to such authors as James Joyce, D. H. Lawrence, Franz Kafka, Thomas Mann, Sherwood Anderson, Waldo Frank, Conrad Aiken, Ludwig Lewisohn, and others, not all of whom accepted Freudianism, but who were all influenced one way or another. These studies deserve the attention of all students of literature.

Interesting, too, is his chapter on the precursors of Freud, in which he shows that the philosophers Schopenhauer, Nietzsche, Bergson, Kierkegaard have all had a considerable part in shaping the modern distrust of rationalism. Unfortunately, he does not have time, or does not choose, to discuss what this trend away from rationalism is going to lead to—a plunge into animalism or mysticism, to the lower or the higher planes of irrationalism. It all looks somewhat like intellectual anarchy.

Novel Prize Winner

"Darkly the River Flows," by Lt. Comdr. John Macdonald, R. C. N. V. R., to be published in May by Coward-McCann, was awarded the prize of $1,000 in the Canadian Book contest last fall.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock

VISITING in Chicago Wednesday, Ben Zevin, newly elected president of the World Publishing company of Cleveland, received word of the death of Ernie Pyle. . . . The notification came soon after the World people had brought out a reprint edition of Mr. Pyle's "Here Is Your War." . . . Two hundred thousand copies had been ordered before publication, and another 50,000 a few days later. . . . Originally published by Henry Holt, the book had sold so well that it had made a big dent in that house's paper supply. . . . Mr. Pyle's second book, "Brave Men," had done likewise, and so the reprint rights were sold to Grosset & Dunlap.

Mr. Zevin has edited, and written an introduction for, "Cobb's Cavalcade," a 300,000 word selection from the writings of the late Irvin S. Cobb, and it will be issued in July. . . . Other forthcoming World publications include Sumner Welles' "The Time for Decision," Ring Lardner's "You Know Me, Al," and Walter Van Tilburg Clark's "The Ox-Bow Incident."

Eight days after the death of President Roosevelt, Pocket Books started publication of "Franklin Delano Roosevelt—a Memorial." . . . Three hundred thousand copies of the 250 page book were printed. . . . The President died on Thursday, April 12. . . . Under the direction of Editor Donald Porter Geddes, the staff of Pocket Books worked day and night, compiling material from press and radio, excerpts from Mr. Roosevelt's speeches, autobiographical fragments, tributes in prose and poetry, and photographs. . . . The manuscript was rushed to Clinton, Mass., and printing began last Thursday. . . . By Friday the books were bound, and on their way to all parts of the world.

James S. Thompson, president of the McGraw-Hill Book company, writes this department: "As an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin, I should like to call your attention to a book we have just published. It is a symposium entitled, 'Problems of the Post-war World.' Prof. Thomas C. T. McCormick is the editor, and, with two exceptions, the several authors are members of the Wisconsin faculty. Practically all the current controversial subjects, such as international relations, economics, labor, government, and agriculture, are covered." . . . The book will be reviewed in this section next Sunday by Dr. Melchior Palyi.

"Too Small a World," Theodore Maynard's biography of Mother Cabrini of Chicago, will be issued by the Bruce Publishing company of Milwaukee April 30. . . . "Peoples of Malaysia," by Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, is to be released by the D. Van Nostrand company May 7. . . . Herbert Hoover's and Hugh Gibson's analysis of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals is scheduled by Van Nostrand for April 27—two days after the opening of the San Francisco conference. . . . The book is titled "The Basis for Lasting Peace." . . . Pravda already has taken a few swipes at it.

In town last week, William E. Larned, director of Whittlesey House, said the first edition of Adria Locke Langley's "A Lion Is in the Streets" would be one of the largest in the history of the book business. . . . Mrs. Langley will autograph copies at the Marshall Field store May 19. . . . Two new pictorial books announced by Mr. Larned: "Pink Lemonade," Maxwell Coplan's and Beverly Kelly's story of circus life, and "United States Naval Academy: The First Hundred Years." . . . Annapolis will celebrate its centennial next October.

Harry J. Owens of Flossmoor and Chicago is the author of "The Scandalous Adventures of Reynard the Fox," an idiomatic American version to be published by Alfred A. Knopf on June 11. . . . The book was originally prepared for the Holiday Press, which is made up largely of master craftsmen at the Lakeside Press [R. R. Donnelley & Sons company]. . . . It was to have been distributed among the members only. . . . The project was carried as far as the page proof stage, when the loss of members to the armed forces brought a halt. . . . Mr. Owens showed the manuscript to W. E. Woodward, author and historian, and Mr. Woodward liked it so well that he suggested it be offered to a publisher for a trade edition. . . . Knopf promptly bought it. . . . Illustrations are by Keith Ward.

Gift to Red Cross.

A check for $750 has been presented by A. S. Barnes & Co. to the American Red Cross as its share of the proceeds from the sale of "Reveille," a book of original poems by men in the armed services.

TIME TO BE YOUNG

Edited by WHIT BURNETT
Editor of The Seas of God and This Is My Best

"An anthology of youth, a collection of great stories of the growing years. It is an unusually well-chosen, balanced selection of grave and gay, spring-like material. The pieces are short stories, excerpts from novels, philosophy, bits of autobiography, and essays, all very well written." — Rosemary C. Benét, Book-of-the-Month Club News.

MILITARY AND POST-WAR ETIQUETTE

THESE are just a few of the thousands of questions that come to Emily Post every day in the year, from all over America—from business men, from wives, from teen-age girls, from soldiers and sailors and their anxious folks at home. For them she has completely revised and rewritten ETIQUETTE—retaining the fundamentals of good taste that do not change, but omitting customs that have become obsolete with the changing conditions of modern life; and adding much material that is new. ETIQUETTE is now, more than ever, the infallible guide to what we say and do, what we think and are.

Own Words Prove Japs' Power Lust

"THROUGH JAPANESE EYES," by Otto D. Tolischus. [Raynal & Hitchcock, $2.]

Reviewed by Philo M. Buck Jr.

1. "What a glorious day it will be when the foot of the white man no longer presses the soil of Asia. How much more wonderful will be the day when the divine mission of Japan is accomplished and the white race shall have been exterminated from the whole world."

2. "A Japanese is born to march proudly over the entire world."

3. "Fall apart like the petals of a flower for the emperor's sake.
"Fall apart and thus turn into a devil to protect our country.
"Three thousand years of glorious victory,
"Wherever our great army exists.
"In serving on the seas, be a corpse saturated with water.
"In serving on land, be a corpse covered with weeds.
"In serving in the sky, be a corpse that challenges clouds.
"Let us all die close by the side of our sovereign, without the slightest regrets."

4. "Complete destruction of American naval power and maritime trade; abolition of private banking institutions and trade unions; restriction of American steel and oil production; destruction of all ship yards except those building river and coastal vessels; creation of a political authority, free from 'influences wielded by economic interests' and modeled after the 'pure sovereignty of Japan,' to maintain strict surveillance over the United States for 10 or more years, or perhaps indefinitely."

Otto D. Tolischus

The first quotation is from a book of Japanese poetry published before the war. The second is from a text book for secondary schools, also before the war. The third is war poetry. The last gives the peace terms for the United States, drawn up by two experts and wirelessed to us in May, 1944.

Instead of writing about this interesting book I have allowed Japan to speak for itself. For Mr. Tolischus here has enabled us in one small volume to hear the voice of Japan preparing for war and now carrying on. It is the Japanese "Mein Kampf." It is breath taking as a record of arrogance. Read it and ponder.

Story of South American Hero Well Translated

"SAN MARTIN, KNIGHT OF THE ANDES," by Ricardo Rojas. [Doubleday, Doran, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Mason Warner

Hershel Brickell and Carlos Videla, translators, have rendered the work of Argentina's foremost biographer so well that they have interpreted not only the text but the spirit of his fine book into English.

It is a volume so conscientiously compiled that there is more than an abundance of detail. This surplus makes for tedious reading of many pages, but to delete would be to detract from the complete life story of a great American hero.

San Martin was a mystic military genius, devoting his life to freeing Argentina, Chile, and Peru from the rule of Spain. Enrolled as a cadet at 11 years of age, he was in his first battle at 13. He was a colonel in the army of Spain at 30. Seldom in good health, he waged his victorious campaigns for 20 years; to retire voluntarily to a 30 year exile in Europe, alone, poor and partially blind, attended only by his devoted daughter in his old age.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

BIOGRAPHERS of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and historians of American political, economic, and social life will be able to consult the greatest wealth of source material ever available on a public man in the Franklin Delano Roosevelt library at Hyde Park. . . . There are housed not only the public papers and the official correspondence, but also the late President's large private collection of paintings, drawings, prints, manuscript letters, and documents relating to the American navy from 1775 to date, his extensive collection of material on the Hudson river, Dutchess county, and Hyde Park, and the private library of almost 20,000 books. . . . The correspondence files are gigantic. . . . Thousands of letters received daily at the White House during the last 12 years supplement the hundreds of thousands of letters of President Roosevelt's previous years of public life.

Books bearing the name of Franklin Delano Roosevelt as author are: "Whither Bound" [1926], "The Happy Warrior: Alfred E. Smith" [1928]. . . . In 1928 he also edited "The Records of the Town of Hyde Park." . . . "Government—Not Politics," a collection of magazine articles on taxes, public utilities, and tariffs, was published the year he was nominated for the Presidency the first time. . . . "Looking Forward," a collection of articles and speeches written before 1933. . . . "On Our Way" [1934], a history of the first year of the New Deal, including the Presidential speeches and executive orders. . . . There are nine volumes of his official public papers and addresses from 1928 to 1941. . . . Announcement has not as yet been made of the publication of the volumes to bring this source material up to date.

Sally Benson Talks

Poetry magazine closed its series of four lectures on the Modern Arts with a talk by Sally Benson of New York and Hollywood, unofficially in her talk and her chic outfit an evangel from both of those dazzling centers of culture. . . . Mrs. Benson is, as any one who has read "Meet Me in St. Louis" or seen the movie knows, a native midwesterner, but she bears no scars of it. . . . She talks about "New Yok" and many times in her amusing and intimate talk she encouragingly spoke of the joys of making money. . . . She can speak with authority, for by this time she ought almost to be safeguarded in Fort Knox, her golden rewards have been so great.

Sally Benson said quite frankly that she wrote "Junior Miss" to make money. . . . And no one would deny that it richly earned its fortune, with its funny, tender, subtle understanding of the teen agers. . . . She had been writing 30 stories a year since 1930, she said, and reviewing sometimes as many as 17 mysteries a week and she never made more than $6,000 a year until "Junior Miss" was a co-choice of the Book-of-the-Month club for June, 1941. . . . It was the greatest thrill of her life, she said, to go right out and buy a car for cash.

She never saw the play of "Junior Miss" until the opening night. . . . She wrote the St. Louis stories because she was homesick for St. Louis, she confided. . . . She went to Hollywood to write the treatment for the movie, "Meet Me in St. Louis" and naively finished it in two weeks. . . . Script writers are supposed to take six weeks on a treatment—at $3,000 a week! . . . The place they put writers in Hollywood, she said, is known by the initiates as "The Iron Lung."

A Boogie-Woogie "Pinafore"

Miss Benson said that the most exciting thing she has done lately is a boogie-woogie arrangement of "Pinafore." . . . "I had the nerve to louse up Mr. Gilbert," she put it with an infectious grin. . . . It is due to open in Boston with an all-Negro cast, and its background will be a Mississippi river boat at Memphis. . . . But you'll not hear the word Mississippi mentioned in her treatment of "Huckleberry Finn" as a musical for the movies. . . . "I'm going to cut out Tom Sawyer. And I'm tired of the Mississippi, too. We'll just say, 'Here is the river,'" she reported to her studio. . . . She found no opposition there to her novel literary surgery.

"I don't think things are messed up by Hollywood," she declared. . . . Lots of movies are better than the book and they do pretty well by their material. . . . "Every writer hopes to sell to the movies," she declared. "There's not a person living who doesn't want to make money." . . . She later declared, "If somebody gave me enough money, I'd never write again." . . . Her ardent admirers hope that her standard of living always keeps ahead of her earning power.

"I write about women with malice because I love every annoying thing about them." . . . And, "I think I'm sort of a lightweight," she declared with irresistible candor. "I don't think I'm a great writer."

Poets Write Better Prose

Sally Benson's next book will be about three young service wives with three babies and their fantastic life in what she described as a "horrible little place in Carmel, Cal., incongruously called Shangri-La." . . . One of them is her daughter, whose young husband died in action. . . . One of the characters in the book will be like, but not a portrait of, her daughter. . . . "I did not do my daughter in 'Junior Miss,'" said Mrs. Benson.

"All poets can write prose probably better than prose writers" was a serious note in a morning of gay and intimate discussion of the life and work of one of America's most successful popular writers, who, proclaiming herself no true appreciater of poetry, disproved that contention by generously contributing her services to the cause of Poetry.

A success story with a backfire concerns the new director of British Information Services in Chicago, John Duncan Miller. . . . He was once a publisher and he owned the copyright to the works of Mary Webb, author of "Precious Bane," among other mss. . . . He sold the rights and three weeks after they were legally out of his possession Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin made the public announcement that Mary Webb was the greatest modern English writer and "Precious Bane" the greatest of her books, and it became a best seller over night.

"If enough such books are written, if enough millions of people read them, maybe, someday, there will be a greater understanding and a more true democracy." —Orville Prescott, N. Y. Times

Tony Pastor Scores Definite Hit at College Inn

Stan Kenton's Band to Open There Friday

By Will Davidson

The Pastor gates are swinging in the Sherman's College Inn. It is the first time that Tony and his boys have played a Chicago cafe date, but it won't be anywhere near the last, according to the reception being given Mr. Pastor and his troupe. The present stay is brief, however, ending Thursday night. Friday marks a new stanza in the Inn's swing song, when Stan Kenton comes back to give more of his wonderful music.

Barbara Blane [Seymour Photo]

As usually happens in the odd and wonderful world of staying out late, there is another important opening that same Friday night. Jan Murray, the tall comedian; the dancing Condos brothers; Alice Strickland, acrobatic dancer; Viola Layne, the singing mimic whose artistry has won her two holdover contracts; a new line of Lynne Manion "Dancing Debutantes"; and Duke Yellman's music launch a new show at the 51 Hundred club.

The week starts off with an opening in the Tavern room of the Bismarck hotel tomorrow night. Earl Roth's orchestra and Ozzie Osburn's musical Fun Makers will launch a policy of continuous dancing and entertainment in the informal room.

Then comes Wednesday and comes another reason for going back to hear Del Courtney's deluxe music. It will be the occasion of a new floor show, in which, of course, Del and Dottie Dotson, and Johnny Williams, and the boys will have a large share. Star act in the new revue will be comedian Vic Hyde, with some supporting entertainment as yet unannounced.

While we are on the subject of openings, don't forget Sophie Tucker's at the Chez May 3, Ted Lewis' at the Latin Quarter the same night, and Dorothy Dorben's debut as the Stevens hotel show producer in the Boulevard room May 4. Ted Weems' elegant band holds over there until June 15, when Frankie Masters comes in. Then in August the long rumored engagement of Guy Lombardo—his first in Chicago in many years—finally comes true. During all this time Mischa Novy's excellent relief band will be carrying on.

But back to Tony Pastor. The chunky scat singer has an amiable crew with considerable talent in the swing field. For dinner the boys play it soft, but with a tabasco touch that seasons it nicely. For dancing and during the show the Pastor selects another texture—and his musical sermons are loud and forceful.

Brother Stubby Pastor works out on the trumpet, Tony gives his slow and long version of "Whoopee," Dick Dyer croons, Ruth McCullough Ac-Cent-Tchu-Ates the Positive, and drummer Jimmy Vincent illustrates "Paradiddle Joe" with some scalp lifting percussion work.

Stars of the floor show are Mardoni and Louise, the ever popular magician-mindreaders, and Robert Crum, genius of the piano. Mardoni and Louise have revived their very amusing and startling effect, the haunted house, and it is a honey.

Robert Crum proves most effective in a superb boogie woogie variation. He won't enjoy my saying that, because his heart is set on his very original conception of symphonic improvisation, and he demonstrated his ideas most pointedly in his opening number, a toccato livid with dissonance and harsh disdain for familiar design.

ORGANIST

Adele Scott is the beautiful organist now being featured at the luncheon and dinner hours in the Park Row room of the Stevens hotel. [Maurice Photo]

Intended for the organ, this composition, if it can accurately be called that, probably loses much of its effectiveness on the less well cushioned and harshly amplified concert grand. It is not, I think, a good opening number for a cafe show—at least without some preliminary explanation.

No performer has a right to insist that his audience— particularly one which is present solely for the purpose of entertainment in its lightest sense—be alert to the significance of a musical form that is extremely different in its appeal. If he can bring them to such a state of alertness, very well.

Mr. Crum has superb talent and amazing manual dexterity. His ideas are excellent and his desire to raise standards of cafe musical appreciation most commendable. I think he would be of more service if he delivered his lessons in a little more graduated doses.

The Rio Cabana has been running in extreme bad luck of late, and Tuesday night was no exception. On opening night, Friday the 13th, Mario Naldi, of the dance team, Mary Rae and Naldi, strained his back and was forced to leave the show for the week-end. Tuesday, his first night back, Mr. Naldi's place in the strained-back ward was taken by Lenny Kent, the excellent young comedian. Lenny injured himself doing a comic dance in the first show Tuesday.

Gene Baylos, who had just closed, pinch hit for Lenny and did a superb job. He is wonderfully funny —except when like Jackie Miles he lapses into one of the most disgusting skits in cafedom. Even tho they get laughs there is no excuse for such performances.

Rae and Naldi were never better, despite Mr. Naldi's injury. Their movements are magnificently graceful; smooth and liquid compliments to Miss Rae's beauty and poise.

Barbara Blane is one of the best of the acrobatic dancers. Her beauty, her excellent taste in gowns, and her amazing control give her dances an unusual quality—and very high quality. Toni Lane is a peppery singer of the "Is You Is" school, and popular with the crowds.

Boswelling the bistros:

Adele Scott, beautiful pride of Danville, Ill., is the new feature of Park Row room entertainment in the Stevens hotel. Adele is an organist, recently heard in the Edgewater Beach hotel's Marine dining room. She plays during the luncheon and dinner sessions in the Park Row, and is a definite attraction. . . . Thanks to Ward Caille I now know where it was I had previously seen that amazingly good police character in the Bogart-Bacall film "To Have and Have Not." He is Dan Seymour, who used to stooge for Willie Shore at the old High Hat.

One of those pleasant little bonuses you sometimes get in the cafe world was handed out last Monday by the Palmer House when it presented Burl Ives, ballad singing star of "Sing Out Sweet Land," as a one-show pinch hitter for the ailing Hildegarde. Mr. Ives was superb, even despite the difficulties inherent in such a hastily arranged appearance, and most probably will be starring in a Palmer House show soon.

Talia, darling of the Bismarck, opens April 30 in the Detroit Statler, first of a series of Statler chain engagements. . . . Tonight's the night of Gene Krupa's concert-dance at the Arena. It is an unusual opportunity to hear unusual, and unusually good, music. . . . Charlie Dawn and Harry Murdock should be spared this for they've already moaned over my self-designation as a cocktail drama critic. You know, dramartinis.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"Tonight and Every Night"—A technicolor extravaganza starring Rita Hayworth and Janet Blair dancing and singing into the hearts of Lee Bowman, an R. A. F. flyer, and Marc Platt, a young dancer. The setting for the picture is in England. [Chicago.]

"Forever Yours"—The daughter of a doctor, Gale Storm, falls victim of poliomyelitis. Her father, interested in a new treatment perfected by John Mack Brown, allows him to use his treatment on the stricken girl. [Oriental.]

"I Love a Mystery"—This film is based on the radio program of the same title. Jack and Doc are portrayed by Jim Bannon and Barton Yarborough, and Nina Foch and Carole Mathews have the feminine leads. [Grand.]

"A Song to Remember"—Beautifully filmed in technicolor, the picture unfolds the immortal love story of Frederic Chopin [Cornel Wilde], the noted composer and musician, and Mme. George Sand [Merle Oberon], a writer, remembered for her influence on Chopin. Much of Chopin's music is entwined in the film. [Apollo.]

"Sudan"—The queen of the Nile, Maria Montez, sets out to avenge her father's murder by selling herself into slavery. Jon Hall and Turhan Bey are the leading male characters. [Palace.]

"National Velvet"—In a little English village lives the Brown family, Donald Crisp, Elizabeth Taylor, Angela Lansbury, Jackie Jenkins, and Anne Revere. The story is concerned with the visit of Mickey Rooney, and the courage and faith the small family gives to him. [State-Lake.]

"Hangover Square"—A talented composer, Laird Cregar, has lapses of memory in which he commits crimes, leaving no clews. The plot is based upon his activities and his association with Linda Darnell, a dancer, and Faye Marlowe, a pianist. [Garrick.]

"It's a Pleasure"—Michael O'Shea, banished from professional hockey, joins an ice skating show, meets Sonja Henie, and marries her. They have differences over star billing and separate, only to be reunited. Marie McDonald also has a prominent role. [Woods.]

"The Suspect"—Charles Laughton is the murderer who kills his nagging wife and marries the young and pretty Ella Raines. They are happy until a blackmailer appears to spoil everything. Dean Harens also is in on the plot. [Jeffery, Ogden, Grove, Highland, Met, Biltmore, Senate, State, Maryland.]

"The Princess and the Pirate"—Bob Hope and Virginia Mayo portray a conceited actor and a princess AWOL. The couple, on board a sailing vessel, are taken prisoners by a pirate ship and hilarities start. Walter Brennan also is in the cast. [Argmore, Avon, Broadway Strand, Buckingham, Davis, 400, Michigan, Southern, Town.]

"Hotel Berlin"—A story of the underground and the Nazis, from the book by Vicki Baum. Faye Emerson, Helmut Dantine, and Andrea King have the leading roles. [Roosevelt.]

Drama Notes

When John Van Druten recently came to town to look over his private gold mine, the Selwyn's "The Voice of the Turtle," he went out to Evanston to help his friend, Edward Crowley of Northwestern, audition a cast for another of his plays, "The Damask Cheek," due for four performances there starting Wednesday night. Florence Schwartz won the leading role created by Flora Robson, and others in the cast are Bradford Macy, Jean Verhagen, David Glismann, Gerri Goral, Eugene Mitch, Lydia Clarke, Jean Morris, and Sara Jane Hedgcock.

"Jacobowsky and the Colonel," S. N. Behrman's adaptation of Franz Werfel's comedy, chosen as the best foreign play of last season by the New York drama critics, arrives at the Blackstone Monday night, May 14, on American Theater society subscription. Directed by Elia Kazan, the play retains most of its leading players, including Louis Calhern, Oscar Karlweis, and Harold Vermilyea. Marianna Stewart is playing the role created in New York by Annabella.

When Sigmund Romberg comes to the opera house next Sunday afternoon for a concert of his and other composers' music, his program will include selections from "Up in Central Park," his newest musical now one of the New York major hits. Along with his orchestra will be several soloists, including Victoria Schools, Lorna Byron, and Ann Andre. The "Up in Central Park" music has been recorded by Jeannette MacDonald and is listed for immediate release by Victor.

John Wayne's Football Knee Weather Prophet

HOLLYWOOD—Disregarding advice of John Wayne who insisted on three different occasions that rain was imminent, production officials sent "The Invisible Army" on location. It rained as predicted and the company had to return to the studio. "My right knee always forecasts a change in the weather," Wayne explains. "Hurt it playing football."

Gaudy-Hued Romance Is Fast Moving

"MAGIC LANTERN," by Lady Eleanor Smith. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.].

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

The title of this book was probably intended to indicate its kaleidoscopic, vivid quality. It serves quite as well to indicate its complete unreality.

Lady Eleanor Smith

There are romantic novels which represent a fresh combination of the materials of human experience in a new creative pattern, constituting a vision of life, as Cabell would say, not as it is but as it ought to be. And there are romantic novels which are merely so much evasion, a prettifying of life, with about as much human significance in them as a gaudy technicolor film.

"Magic Lantern" is a romantic novel of the second variety.

Half-gypsy Nicholas Randall, of Georgian and early Victorian Devonshire, both of whose parents died violently, starts out with the idea of becoming a great violinist, but when he finds that he lacks sufficient talent, that interest is dropped, and everything that is of any particular fineness or interest in Nicholas drops out with it.

An incredible romance with a Hungarian countess ends with the departure of his mistress for a convent, following the accidental death of their son.

In the last part of the book, the interest tends to shift from Nicholas to a beautiful young hellion named Gemma Troy, from whom Nicholas gallantly saves his conventional minded friend, only to marry her, miserably, himself. Finally, an artificial unity is imposed upon a loose book by having Gemma kill her husband on the same staircase where, as a child, he saw his father slain.

If you don't ask anything more from fiction than rapid, highly colored narrative, "Magic Lantern" is your dish. But if you want more than that, I doubt you will find it here.

Van de Water Novel

A new novel by Frederic F. van de Water, "Fool's Errand," will be published in June by Duell, Sloan & Pearce.

Drawing by Diana Thorne for "The Little Fellow," the story of a colt by Marguerite Henry (Winston).

Story of a Boy Shows Writer's Technical Skill

"THE CRADLE WILL FALL," by Stephen Seley. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly

"The Cradle Will Fall," blurbed on the book cover as a "first novel . . . compact and integrated . . . with unusual writing skill," is actually not a novel but rather a lengthy sketch, tho the unusual writing skill is evident even beyond the build-up of the jacket. It is a story centered on the reaction of a sensitive young boy to the death of his mother. The story begins a little more than a month before the mother's brief illness and reaches its climax with her sudden death.

Stephen Seley

Written with acute insight and close range little boy perception, the author becomes amateur only in several punctuationless, stream of consciousness passages interposed on the story and in his eager presentation of too many bickering relatives who add confusion rather than character and background.

The boy, Junior Barbor, is real and human, personable enough in print to overcome the reaction to the rather irritating nickname of "Junebug." The total story given here, divided into four parts, might better be considered as part one of a longer, more complete novel. Perhaps after this excellent beginning, young Mr. Seley will take up his evident talent and give it a more fair trial.

American Farming

THE first complete set of essential books containing information you need for greater efficiency in farming, for successful life as a citizen in a rural community. The AMERICAN FARMING Series represents a new concept in agricultural information collected for practical farmers and farm-owners. Planned as an integrated whole, the way the farmer farms, this series presents each of the single phases of farming in its relation to all the others. Here in four complete volumes are all the facts the farmer and the would-be farmer need to know about farming, from the selection of the land, types of farming, and methods of farm accounting, to production and breeding improvements.

PREPARED by four of the leading experts in various fields, each chapter was carefully and critically reviewed by other specialists from experiment stations, universities, and federal agencies. Each volume deals realistically with present-day farm problems. The authors have combined the actual records, practices, and experiments of successful farmers with the results of research work at experiment stations and the United States Department of Agriculture—all of which serves as a basis for analysis of the efficiency with which a farm is operated. In no other single series of books, has so much valuable material, which every farmer needs, ever been compiled.

VOLUME I: An Introduction to Farming provides a general introduction to agriculture as a means of livelihood, opportunities and various types of farming. Chapters include: Where and How; Layout; Equipment and Organization; Soil; Growth of Plants and Fruits; Dairying; Beef, Swine, and Sheep Production; Poultry; Horses and Mules; Livestock Feeding.

VOLUME II: Organizing the Farm Business deals primarily with the accounts, records, inventories, and improvements. Chapters include: Kinds of Accounts to Keep; Family Income and Farm Earnings; Analysis and Cost of Production; Inventory, etc.; Small Grains, Rotation, Culture; Corn; Pasture Crops; Sugar, Fiber, and Tobacco Crops; Improving Beef, Swine, Sheep, and Poultry; Care and Feeding, etc.

VOLUME III: Operating and Managing the Farm treats the actual problems and procedures with crops and livestock. Chapters include: Measuring Efficiency; Adjustments and Shaping the Work Program; Equipment; Marketing; Place of Livestock in Farm Operation; Production of Cereal Crops, Corn, and Grain; Fruit Growing; Care and Management of Dairy, Beef, and Swine Herds; Sheep; Poultry; Turkey Production, etc.

VOLUME IV: Farm Ownership, Production Programs, Breeding and Improvement, deals with the more advanced phases of farm management. Chapters include: Legal Matters, Farm Leases and Mortgages, Installment Buying; Use of Capital and Credit; Marketing; Principles of Genetics; Improvements of all varieties of Grains, Corn, Grasses, Fruits, etc.; Systems of Breeding Livestock and Poultry.

AMERICAN FARMING was prepared by a Board of specialists under the editorial direction of Dr. A. M. Field, Professor of Agricultural Education at the University of Minnesota, composed of Professor Andrew Boss, one of the outstanding authorities on farm management in the United States and long associated with the Minnesota College of Agriculture; Dr. H. K. Wilson, Professor of Agronomy at the University of Minnesota, actively engaged in research and experimentation as well as in teaching; and Dr. W. E. Petersen, Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the University of Minnesota, internationally recognized for his work in nutrition, dairy cattle breeding, and milk secretion. He is the author of more than 150 publications in the animal husbandry field, and in 1941 received the Borden Award for outstanding work in dairy research.

Whether you are a farmer, or plan to be one after this war is over, AMERICAN FARMING answers all your questions on farming as a vocation and investment. It contains all the latest information on farm management, soil conservation, cattle breeding, crops, etc. Each volume contains hundreds of charts, photographs, maps, and drawings. Single volumes, $4.00 each, the set, boxed, $15.00.

NOW the U.S. Marines' OWN story of the Battle of Tarawa

BETIO BEACHHEAD

By Marine Corps Combat Correspondents
Introduction by Gen. Holcomb
Summary by Gen. A. A. Vandegrift

Here, in complete detail, are the strategy and tactics of our first assault on a defended atoll—an operation that cost us dear, but taught us lessons which saved thousands of lives in later amphibious invasions.

Here, too, are the men who made the strategy and tactics real—the men who laughed, wept, prayed and cursed up the bloody beaches of Tarawa in a campaign which will endure as a monument of unsurpassed heroism.

Illustrated with 72 pages of large photographs, 6 maps.

"CAN A MAN OR WOMAN REALLY STOP DRINKING?"

● Out of their own experience, two anonymous authors ("Eliot Taintor" is a pseudonym) have written the story of one man's experiences during his "year of regeneration". It's a robust novel about the commuting males who regularly miss the 5:15, the 6:27 and the 7:30 because of "business engagements". It's about cafe "zooiety", and about the things that make a marriage go—or go bust. It's about the momentous decision a young girl faces when she falls in love with an alcoholic. And it's about the companionship of men off in a fishing boat or in a duck blind in the chill of dawn . . . It will introduce you to some unusual characters—members of that remarkable organization, Alcoholics Anonymous—people who slowly, bitterly—and quite selfishly—have found how they can solve their problems and are showing others the way. $2.75

This Writer Merits Our Attention

"FIREMAN FLOWER AND OTHER STORIES," by William Sansom. [Vanguard Press, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Robert Penn Warren

This is a collection of stories by a young English writer who deserves our serious attention. The stories, to give some notion of their kind, are usually allegorical fantasies, tho sometimes the interpenetration of realism and fantasy is such that it would be difficult to establish the boundary between them. As the publishers point out, this writer has gone to school to Franz Kafka. This is true, and he has learned his lesson well. At times, almost too well.

William Sansom

By this I mean that in some of the stories he has not only applied a method developed by Kafka in a very special sense [tho as old as parable and fable], but has, in certain stories, such as "The Long Sheet" and "The Inspector," taken over directly the issues, the temper, and the atmosphere which we associate with Kafka.

We can see the difference between this kind of profiting from Kafka and a better kind if we compare these stories with stories by certain other writers who have learned something from Kafka but have drawn that something into their own general artistic context. I should point out several stories by Eudora Welty, for instance, "Old Mr. Marblehall," and "A Still Moment," a story by John Peale Bishop, "If Only," and a story by Katherine Anne Porter, "Flowering Judas," tho in this last case the element to which I refer is minor in the story.

But we can also see the difference in the best pieces by Mr. Sansom, "Thru the Quinquina Glass," "The Peach-House Potting Shed," and "The Forbidden Lighthouse," stories in which his great power of atmospheric evocation and suggestive and compelling metaphor comes into full play and in which he has explored subject matter more his own. But it is perfectly clear, even in the weakest pieces, that Mr. Sansom is a writer of distinction and strong imagination, and that any one with a real interest in the contemporary story should read his book.

Satirical Story of War Writers Is Found Hammy

"TELL SPARTA," by Alexander C. Sedgwick. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50.]

From the title, and from the warm understanding with which he treats the Greeks, it can be presumed that Mr. Sedgwick intended to write a tribute to the little nation that gave the world such a noble example of fortitude and heroism. It is dismally unfortunate that this worthy purpose has been boggled so excruciatingly.

Mr. Sedgwick had, evidently, a second purpose in writing this book—to deflate the gaudy lads and lassies he met among the war correspondents. For his sake we will assume that he thought he was writing satire when he traced the adventures of Pearl Nesbitt, Francis Xavier McSweenie, and the others. As a reporter Mr. Sedgwick is well thought of. As a satirist he still lingers fatuously in high school freshman English. There is no semblance of reality in his picture or his characterizations of newspaper men and women; therefore his attempts to deflate them prove inexcusably hammy. It is extremely unfortunate, for when Mr. Sedgwick is serious, he writes most effectively.

His pictures of Greece at war rank with the best war fiction.

Heart of Robert Frost Is Buried Deep in Poetry

"A MASQUE OF REASON," by Robert Frost. [Holt, $2.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

There is a popular view of Robert Frost as a gentle Vermont rustic whose poems are full of country sounds and innocence. There is even a hideous description of him as "Puck in a sack suit." He certainly is not Puck, and as for the clothes a poet wears, let them be ignored. There has always been, under the green leaves and the branched symmetry of the poems, a tough and growing heart. It has been unperceived because it is casually mentioned, barely revealed, or diffused all thru the texture of the poem.

Robert Frost

That heart, far from being worn on the sleeve or on the face, is held deep down, and only sudden flashes of it are permitted. You have to know where to look, even, to catch the flash when it does come.

This is his whole way of writing poetry. It uses the range of a vigorous and terse and imaginative mind without making the poetry into dry abstraction. This is the genius of it.

"A Masque of Reason" is a good example of this method, and the latest. Its theme is that it is unreasonable of man to expect the course of his life to be reasonable. The final truth is that "There is no connection man can reason out between his just desserts and what he gets."

The little play consists of talk between God, Job, Job's wife, and the devil about the suffering of Job long ago. God makes the point that Job, by enduring torment, actually freed God freed him from the compulsion of having to reward virtue and punish wickedness, thus leaving him a free agent. It is an amusing and subtle poem, a necessity for all readers of poetry. Of course Job's wife gets the last word!

Service Men and Writer Take Two Different Views

"BETIO BEACHHEAD," by U. S. M. C. combat correspondents. [Putnam, $2.50.]

"THE FAR SHORE," by Max Miller. [Whittlesey House, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson

If one noun were needed to typify this war "invasion" would do as well as any. Lt. Comdr. Max Miller and four marine combat correspondents have now given us two very different views of two very different invasions.

Max Miller

The marine corps comes off the better. In describing the historic battle of Tarawa the combat correspondents [Capt. Earl J. Wilson, 2d Lt. Jim G. Lucas, Master Tech. Sgt. Samuel Shaffer, and 2d Lt. C. Peter Zurlinden] have done a superb job of reporting. Taking their material from experience, from witnesses, and from official reports, they have constructed a narrative that is dynamite in its impact, tremendous in its informative simplicity. Without any literary histrionics they make you feel the humanness of the boys who went onto that bloody beach; they put hot sand down your neck and toss nerve shattering mortar shells at you thru a hot and hideous night. This is the clearest picture of that crucial battle yet written.

Max Miller's narrative of his participation in the Normandy and Riviera invasions is excellent, but its musing quality lacks the terrible impact of the marine story. Miller does give a detached picture of the navy's work in amphibious warfare, and handles it entertainingly enough.

Burns Mantle Lauds Work of Stage Players

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK—[Special]—You were writing the other day—and very properly, Mr. Chapman—of the fact that this has been a season in the theater that will be remembered as long as such events are remembered, which isn't long, as a season in which new and young playwrights have scored a majority of the hits.

You were right. And good news it was and is for the theater, too. A year ago we were lamenting the fact that the war had smothered or discouraged the work of the older and more experienced playwrights. In an introduction to the annual year book of the drama I had permitted myself the observation that "the theater season of 1943-'44, our third war year, may reasonably be listed with other war casualties." But, I was also cagey enough to insist that, despite the seasons' preponderance of failures, it still had its points. "Men must work and women must weep thru such [war] emergencies," I wrote; "inspirations falter and routines fail, but some good is bound to come out of the overall adventure."

And now, you see, we are reaping the good. The older playwrights have, it is true, failed us. Partly because they have had no heart for play writing, but mostly because war work of one kind or another has kept them occupied. Their failure has given novice authors their chance, not only to try their hand at writing new plays, but also a chance to dig up and call renewed attention to plays they had already written and submitted unsuccessfully.

Thus we have Tennessee Williams winning the critics' award with

GARDEN GARB

This costume of Rita Hayworth's is known as a garden ensemble. She wears it in "Tonight and Every Night." At the Chicago.

"The Glass Menagerie," Mary Chase collecting oodles of royalties from "Harvey," Norman Krasna cashing in with "Dear Ruth," John Patrick making a new name for himself with "The Hasty Heart," Howard Richardson and William Berney selling "Dark of the Moon," Robert Wright and George Forrest breaking out of Hollywood with "Song of Norway," and so on down a truly remarkable list of boxoffice winners.

I give you your new playwrights, Mr. Chapman, and glory with you in their success. But there is another phase of this unusual theater season that I should like to call to your attention. I suppose it is the veteran in me that fathers the impulse. But, have you also noticed that with all the rush of novice writing talent, it still is the players, and often the older players, who continue to dominate the scene?

New writers have added hopefully to the excitements of the season, but it is the older players who have given it its stability. And usually the players who have provided its boxoffice popularity.

The prize winning "Glass Menagerie" would have been a thrilling novelty in any man's season, being that simple, human, and holding drama, for all its obscuring lights and scrim curtains. But I submit that it would be pretty hard to imagine what might have happened to it if the blessed Laurette Taylor were not there to give it life and reality. Nor should we overlook the balance and weight that the shrewdly calculating but impressively casual Eddie Dowling has added to the presentation, or the outstanding half of Anthony Ross and Julie Haydon.

I know my actors pretty well, and have never been one to insist that any play is completely dependable upon any one actor. Despite first impressions, and certain God-given individual talents, I have long contended, any play ever written can be cast and recast a half dozen times without injury to its text, if the players are available.

Even so I still am wondering who else there is who could have done for "Harvey" what the reclaimed Frank Fay has done. The late Hugh O'Connell, maybe, could have carried this part thru. Victor Moore might do it, with a deal of coaching. Probably some complete unknown will yet come out of radio and romp away with a road tour success. Up till now, however, it is Fay's part and Fay's play, whatever it may do to his vulnerable ego. Or however greatly he is indebted to the lovable Josephine Hull, his main support.

You'll remember that you and practically all your confreres admitted that Philip Barry had written a brilliantly worded comedy in "Foolish Notion." But you'll remember, too, that you and they also admitted that it was Tallulah Bankhead who had held your attention, and who would be responsible for saving the play at the boxoffice. Not discounting, of course, the help she has from another returned old timer, Henry Hull, and the still young and helpful Donald Cook.

If you sat in on the reception that greeted the sight of Katharine Cornell stretched on her Elizabeth Barrett couch the opening night of the "Barretts of Wimpole Street" revival you must have been again impressed with the hold the love and admiration of this favorite has upon the playgoing public. Her performance would be weakened without the enthusiasm and skill of Brian Aherne and Brenda Forbes in helping to sustain it. But it would be a pretty sad affair to most of us, were it stripped of the inspiring presence of Miss Cornell.

"A Bell for Adano," I confess to you, is my type of forthright and satisfying drama. It can be, and doubtless will be, played by many different companies before it is put aside or swallowed up in the Hollywood quicksands. But right now I wouldn't want to see it again without Fredric March being there to wrinkle his forehead, square his shoulders, catch the proper pitch of an army major's voice, and give his listeners his perfectly convincing picture of a velvet-gloved man of steel. I'd miss Everett Sloane a lot, too.

In "Seven Arts" it's Beatrice Lillie; in "Firebrand" its Melville Cooper; in "Apley" its Leo Carroll; in "Mama" its Mady Christians; in "Norway" it's Irra Petina.

All these we can cheer for, I think, and still toss a salute to the fastcoming Richard Widmark of "Kiss Them for Me," to Joan Fetzal of "Mama," to Richard Hart and Carol Stone of "Dark of the Moon," to Maurene Cannon of "Central Park," to Sono Osato, Nancy Walker, and Betty Comden of "On the Town," to Hilda Simms of "Anna Lucasta," to Joan McCracken of "Bloomer Girl," to Beverley Tyler of "Firebrand," to Vera Zorina of "The Tempest," and to all those other advancing young folk who will be writing to inquire just why they were overlooked.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Lyra Singing society, conducted by Frank Kubina, will make one of its infrequent downtown appearances at Orchestra hall this afternoon at 3. Gathering its 65 male members from the Czech community, the Lyra has been active in Chicago music since 1890. Highlights of its history include two European tours, an appearance at the Golden Gate exposition in San Francisco in 1939, and the winning of first prizes at the Century of Progress exposition and the Chicagoland Music Festival in 1933. Soloist at the concert will be the Russian soprano, Maria Kurenko, who will sing groups of songs by Russian and Czech composers and join the chorus in several numbers. The Lyra's own contributions list songs by various Czech composers, as well as one group in Russian, Polish, and Croatian.

Maria Kurenko

The American Opera company will present "Cavalleria Rusticana," sung by Rosaltha Hale, Michael Lester, Mildred Staley, Agatha Kish, and Harold Willer, plus the garden scene of "Faust," with Roberta Jean Cook, Lola Gilbert, Eleanor Kaposta, George Weber, and Michael Lester at Kimball hall tonight at 8. Joseph Banahan will conduct.

The Augustana choir of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., will give its annual concert under the direction of Henry Veld at Orchestra hall tomorrow night at 8:15. The personnel of the group consists solely of students of the college, who rehearse for seven hours each week for a total of 225 hours during the season. The program includes a selection from Bach's Magnifical in E-flat, six Love Songs by Brahms, Bach's motet for double choir, "What Can Life Be but a Shadow," and various shorter works.

Webster Aitken, American pianist, will make his Chicago debut in a recital for the benefit of the University of Chicago Composers' series at Mandel hall on Tuesday at 8:30. Mr. Aitken made his American debut in New York in 1935, six years after his first professional appearance with the Vienna Symphony orchestra. His program consists of Haydn's Andante with Variations, Chopin's Sonata in B minor, Copland's Piano Variations, and Ravel's entire suite, "Le Tombeau de Couperin."

Esther Payne, Chicago pianist who has been heard with the Illinois, the Women's and the W-G-N Symphony orchestras, will give a recital in Kimball hall on Thursday at 8:15. Her program lists Medtner's "Primavera," Granados' "The Maiden and the Nightingale," Ganz's "Scherzino," two pieces each by Chopin and Brahms, and the Schulz-Evler arrangement of "The Blue Danube." Proceeds of the concert will be devoted to the benefit of the personnel of the 108th General hospital.

Sara Hammerschmidt, organist of the North Shore Baptist church, will appear in recital at Kimball hall on Tuesday at 8:20, as the winner of a Society of American Musicians contest. She will play the Allegro from Widor's Sixth Symphony, two chorales and the Passacaglia by Bach, a Scherzo by Gigout, Arioso and Toccata by Sowerby, a movement from Vierne's First symphony, DeLamarter's "Carillon," and "Thou Art the Rock" by Mulet.

Jose Iturbi, whose piano playing of Chopin music provides the music for the current film based on Chopin's life, "A Song to Remember," will give a recital at the Civic Opera house this afternoon at 3:30. Having established a reputation of versatility as a performer of music in both popular and classical styles, Mr. Iturbi will offer as examples of the former a "Blues" and an "Etude in Boogie Woogie Style" by Morton Gould. The remainder of his program is classical in profile: two Scarlatti Sonatas, Mozart's Sonata in F major, Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata, Chopin's "Fantasie-Impromptu" and Scherzo in B-flat minor, Debussy's "Claire de Lune," and De Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance."

Jose Iturbi

Marjorie Morgan, soprano, will give the third of her series of four historical song recitals at Lufkin hall tomorrow night at 8:20. Her program, with William Whittaker at the piano, will consist of songs by Franz, Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, Grieg, Ferrari, Widor, and Bemberg.

The Northwestern University Concert band will give a concert under the direction of Harold N. Finch in Cahn auditorium, Scott hall, Evanston, this afternoon at 4. Joseph Sperry, a returned navy flyer, now a student in the school of music, will be soloist in Vitto's Scherzo for band and tympany.

The Chicago Negro Opera guild, Theodore Charles Stone, chairman, will give its third annual concert this afternoon at 3:30 at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 5700 S. Prairie av. Chief Specialist John Carter, former Metropolitan Opera tenor, will be guest artist.

Ethel Blackwell will make her debut in piano recital in Kimball hall tomorrow night at 8:15, playing Bach's French Suite in G major, Mozart's Sonata in C major [Köchel 330], a first Chicago performance of Piston's Passacaglia, two Preludes by Shostakovich, Debussy's "La Terrasse des audiences au claire de la lune," Beethoven's Six Variations, Opus 34, Chopin's "Fantasie-Impromptu," and a group of Brahms compositions.

BOOK NEWS AND REVIEWS

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

MARK TWAIN anecdotes are a dime a dozen by the latest quotation, a figure fixed by George Hiram Brownell, executive secretary of the Mark Twain Association of America, who nevertheless collects them avidly and records them for posterity in The Twainian, official organ of the society. This department's latest Twain discovery, in its desultory reading about books and authors, is not exactly "grade A" Clemens, but as a first hand reminiscence of the great humorist perhaps it should be preserved. The story is related in Basil Tozer's "Recollections of a Rolling Stone," a London publication of a few years ago.

Mr. Tozer knew Twain intimately, many years ago in Paris, he says, when they both lived at the Hôtel Brighton. One afternoon he met the American coming slowly along the Rue de Rivoli, looking very depressed.

"Why so despondent, Mark?" he asked.

The humorist scowled. "I'll tell you," he answered in his slow voice. "I have just read extracts from my books for more than an hour at your British embassy to raise funds for a charity. As I came out with the audience I thought I might overhear some one express appreciation. All I heard was one of your countrymen say in a loud voice to another: 'What a beastly American accent that man has!'"

Father Asks About Father

Dame Madge Kendal has a rather better story to tell of two famous Americans in her volume of random reminiscences, which she calls simply and comprehensively "Dame Madge Kendal." It was told her by the elder Oliver Wendell Holmes, she says, about a sudden meeting with his son, the famous jurist, in a Washington street. This—quoting Dame Kendal—is what happened:

"Sir," said the doctor, "I hope your father is well."

"I hope he is," replied the judge gravely.

"Have you heard from him lately?"

"Yes, quite lately."

"And how is he?"

"Quite well, thank you!"

Then they shook hands and each continued on his way.

W. Pett Ridge, in his joyous volume of memories, "A Story Teller Forty Years in London," has a quite wonderful tale to tell involving the American actor, Edwin Booth.

"On one of those tremendous nights in early playgoing days, when the waiting outside was a joy and the experiences within a felicity," he writes, "I saw Booth, the American actor, play in 'King Lear.' It had not been done, I fancy, in London for some time, and people seated near to me endured it with an air of pained resignation. When the scene between the demented king and his daughter Goneril was ended, a matronly lady in a private box turned to another matronly lady in the next private box. "'Rather,' she said, in tones which could be heard all over the theater, 'rather an unpleasant family, these Lears!'"

Man's Best Friend Is His Hat

This week's column, a sort of story-teller's holiday, is being written in Toronto, in a bookroom filled with a haphazard but delightful collection of old books, many of them volumes of reminiscence, most of them of English origin. The Canadian branch of my family ran strongly, it would seem, to biography and memoirs, and was passionately addicted to anecdote. There is perhaps a preponderance of theatrical reminiscence of the Henry Irving period, now a little dull, if the truth be told; but my search has been for stories illustrating the vagaries of the writing tribe.

One of the best is from Hesketh Pearson's "Thinking It Over," and concerns the late G. K. Chesterton. A journalist friend of Mr. Pearson was walking down Fleet st. one windy day, just a little way behind Chesterton. Suddenly G. K.'s hat blew off and came flying toward the staring journalist, with its owner in hot pursuit. A gust of wind carried it into the road, and the newspaper man managed to rescue it almost from beneath the wheels of a bus.

Chesterton thanked him courteously, but explained that his wife had just bought him a new hat and would be disappointed at the rescue.

"In that case," said the journalist, with all the exasperation of a man who has uselessly imperiled his life, "why on earth did you run after it?"

"It's an old friend," replied G. K. C., with deep emotion. "I am fond of it, and I wanted to be with it at the end."

A Plot for Bernard Shaw

It is interesting and surprising to read, in Alfred Sutro's "Celebrities and Simple Souls," that Bernard Shaw once thought he required a collaborator. In his early days William Archer, the drama critic, used to meet the young red-haired Irishman in the British museum reading room, according to Sutro, and one day Shaw confided to Archer that it was his wish to write plays. He had plenty of dialog, he said, but no plots; that was all that stopped him.

Archer had heaps of plots, it developed, but could not manage the dialog. So they agreed to collaborate, and Archer duly handed over a plot for Shaw to work on. After a fortnight, however, Shaw wrote that he had used up all the plot Archer had given him and had got only to the middle of the first act. That ended the collaboration of two figures later to be famous in English theatrical literature.

The play was "Widowers' Houses."

Cecil Hunt brings together a good bag of anecdotes in "There's Fun in Fleet Street." Perhaps the best is one told him by John Drinkwater about Sir James Barrie. The poet met Barrie in the Strand one day, and walked with him to his flat in the Adelphi.

Altho the playwright's manner was most genial, writes Mr. Hunt, Drinkwater could elicit no reply to any of his questions; thruout the walk Barrie's whole contribution to his companion's animated conversation was a series of nods and an occasional queer noise. When they reached the flat Barrie, "with complete unconcern, took from his tongue a piece of paper bearing an unused stamp, which he proceeded to remove."

Finally, from Bernard Falk's curiously titled volume of memories, "Five Years Dead" [the number of his years away from Fleet st.], here is a typical story about the elder Pierpont Morgan's way of collecting. He was at Agnew's, the famous art dealers, one day, examining a roomful of mezzotints, and it was observed that he was checking a few items here and there in the catalog. "Well," said one of the salesmen to himself, "the old blighter is going to buy three or four anyway. He's put crosses opposite quite a number."

At length the inspection was finished and the millionaire turned and handed the catalog to the expectant salesman, saying: "I will take all those except those I have marked."

The self-told story of a man who re-discovered the American dream and brought it to reality.

PINE, STREAM AND PRAIRIE

by James Gray

Two of the most colorful states—colorful scenically, politically, and as to individual citizens — are described, examined, and judged in this affectionate and evocative book by the well-known novelist and literary editor of the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press. He discusses in an informative but highly readable way how the citizens of the Badger State and the Gopher State work, think, create, play, and argue; where they came from, and where—perhaps—they are going. Striking individual sketches of many outstanding personalities are included. The resulting portrait has few rivals among American regional books for richness and variety of interest. A Boy's Hero Worship and Its Outcome

"THE FOLDED LEAF," by William Maxwell. [Harper, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan

To identify yourself with the past so that it is clearer than the present, to remember details of yesterday as tho they were still alive, requires a special sensitiveness to emotions. This gift arises not from perfect memory but from recollection of experience. Cronin proved this in "The Green Years," and brought from the past emotions, impressions, and sensations well known to him, thereby lending those years reality.

William Maxwell.

Maxwell does the same thing in "The Folded Leaf." He follows Lymie Pearson from the day he lost his mother—a determining factor in his life—until the day he freed himself from a certain hero worship that caused him to sacrifice material things as well as his own personality. For Lymie was at loose ends emotionally and Spud Latham stood for all the things he wanted, and did all the things he would like to have done.

Lymie, a frail youngster, sublimated himself in this big, athletic fellow. When Spud wanted to join a fraternity, Lymie even advanced him the money and rejoiced in his "social success." A completely unselfish friendship on Lymie's part, it was taken for granted by Spud, who couldn't understand why any one wanted to be so tiresomely unselfish. The whole situation arose, of course, from both boys having experienced curiously unhappy family problems.

A cross-section of American family life familiar to all of us who know middle class midwest America emerges from this personal history. The strong paradox of personal devotion stands out in strong relief as the two youngsters try to find their footing in a world of incomprehensible contradictions, heightened by the fact that they are both in love with the same girl.

William Maxwell is an artist, in that he sees beneath the surface and interprets life from its subtler motives, and not from the obvious. His earlier book, "The Swallows Came," was an unforgettable experience. This one, as Lymie frees himself from the bonds of his own forging, is equally beautiful.

Here Is a Book That Tells All About Outdoors

"WILDWOOD WISDOM," by Ellsworth Jaeger. [Macmillan, $2.95.]

Reviewed by Bob Becker.

Altho the title of this book has a musical ring and technically is correct, it could well be changed to "The Complete Encyclopedia of Woods Lore." This writer has read or owns practically every book written on woodcraft and related subjects, but he never has seen one that equals this handsomely illustrated volume in scope.

There are chapters on just about every woods and waters subject that an outdoorsman would be interested in, from packs, clothing, shelters, camp cookery, and fire building, to useful plants, calling animals and how to make moccasins.

The author, curator of education in the Buffalo museum, Buffalo, N. Y., is just as expert an artist as he is a writer. Result, more than 500 illustrations to illustrate the text. The recommendation on this book to all outdoor fans is that they add it to their duffel bag outfit before they make another fishing, hunting, or camping trip.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

"NOWADAYS," said Gertrude Stein in a lecture to some G. I.s in Paris the other day, "nobody says anything nice to anybody any more."

Well! This department—cost what it may—proposes to say something nice right now about Gertrude Stein.

Forty years ago she wrote a readable book.

It was in plain English, English that obeyed the rules. The sentences could be parsed. They had subjects and predicates—verbs doing things to nouns. It was in a prose that had learned to walk. Like this:

> The tradesmen of Bridgepoint learned to dread the sound of "Miss Mathilda," for with that name the good Anna always conquered. The strictest of the one price stores found that they could give things for a little less, when the good Anna had fully said that "Miss Mathilda" could not pay so much and that she could buy it cheaper "by Lindheims."
> Lindheims was Anna's favorite store, for there they had bargain days, when flour and sugar were sold for a quarter of a cent less for a pound, and there the heads of the departments were all her friends and always managed to give her the bargain prices, even on other days.
> Anna lived an arduous and trouble life.

The title of the book is "Three Lives" and it is composed of three longshort stories. The paragraphs quoted are the beginning of the first story, "The Good Anna," which is, I think, the best brief character sketch of a house servant I have ever read. [My opinions change from time to time, but this one has stood unshaken for some years.] The other "Lives" in the trio are those of an extraordinary Negress, "Melanctha," and "The Gentle Lena." Thus far I have heard of no one who has read these stories without excitement and pleasure. Fortunately it is not necessary to search for first editions. The Modern Library has done an excellent republication job, with an introduction by Carl Van Vechten.

It was in Life magazine that I came across Miss Stein's adventure in lecturing to the G. I.s. Life said: "This Stein is easier to understand when she is talking than when she is writing, but a considerable gap remains between her mind and that of the average G. I."

They asked her questions—which is usually a mistake—but they did get one good answer when they asked if it were true that Picasso, the painter, had read Karl Marx. "I assure you he hasn't," said Miss Stein. "He's never read a book in his life. I've known him for 40 years—he can't read a book."

Stein and Einstein are alike in having achieved fame by being incomprehensible—to most people. Probably the best known Stein quotation is the line asserting, "A rose is a rose is a rose." There is an anecdote about that. Gertrude liked the line so well that she had it engraved on her stationery. Once, inviting a lady to tea, she used the "rose paper" and received a reply, declining, with the scornful postscript, "A pose is a pose is a pose."

I mentioned this once to Moustique, my irreverent colleague, and she promptly made a limerick entitled "A Gertrude is a Gertrude is a Gertrude." Here's the limerick:

A rose is a rose is a rose,
And a pose is a pose is a pose;
But a Stein is a Stein,
And I firmly decline
To read her anfractuous prose.

"I found that word 'anfractuous' in the dic," said Moustique, "and I've been waiting weeks for a chance to use it. It means all broken up, twisted, tortuous. It is a very good word."

Here's a teaspoonful of the Stein anfractuous:

"Anyhow means furls furls with a chance chance with a change change with as strong strong with as will will with as sign sign. . . . Then does not celebrate the there and then. Who knows it. I wish to be very well pleased and I thank you."

Atta girl, Gertie! The Declaration of Independence asserts the right to the "pursuit of happiness," but you demand more than "pursuit"—you want an outright capture. You wish to be very well pleased, and I hope you are, as I am whenever I read those of your works that I can understand.

MODEST HERO OF LEYTE TELLS HIS STORY

Indomitable Courage Is Its Keynote

"AMERICAN GUERRILLA IN THE PHILIPPINES," by Ira Wolfert. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

This story of Iliff David Richardson, American, must be added to any shelf of epics of pioneer American courage, ingenuity, and the habitual, paradoxical, modest self-assurance and confident good humor that is typically American. Iliff David Richardson was one of Lt. John Bulkley's "expendables" who just escaped being expended and lived to spend his American courage and ingenuity in the guerrilla campaign in the Philippines and quite literally guide Gen. MacArthur back to their release. It took ingenuity, Yankee ingenuity, to rig up the radio set which kept Leyte in touch with the general. And the courage which was a part of that daily contact overshadowed the ingenuity.

But by the time that Lt. Richardson of the navy had become chief of staff of the guerrilla army on Leyte he was well calloused to risks and well rehearsed in ingenuity. What the young man went thru in months and what it takes, a reader no more than an evening to share with him, it will take both of them a lifetime to forget. Ira Wolfert, who records those epic days and months, has done so almost literally. That is, he has acted as a recording instrument to Lt. Richardson's words, thoughts, and deeds. But Ira Wolfert has done more than merely record. He has edited the recording.

The language in which the tale is told is deceptively homely. There are pages now and then, however, which are so epically intense, so poetically picturesque, that the skill of the recorder is unmistakable. There is one such place in the beginning of the book, after the Japs have landed and every one—natives and American soldiers alike—are trying to escape them. If any one ever has written more vividly of such panic I haven't read it.

"People speak of the Jap flood. There was no flood of Japs. We were the flood. We were in it and we were it, while the Japs were just the rocks and walls sticking up that the flood flowed around. You couldn't seem to stand still. Whatever you stood on crumbled away and became part of the flood and set you drifting again."

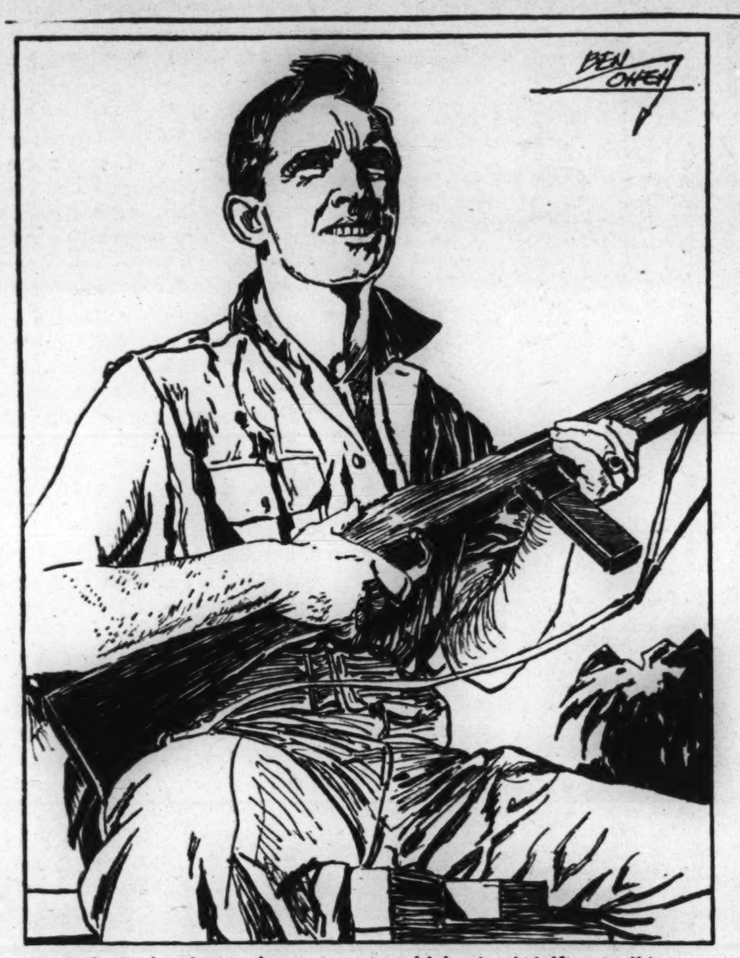
What Lt. Richardson finally drifted into, after trying to get away to Australia in a little boat named with characteristic American humor "Leyte Luck," was at first inanition and then both love and guerrilla warfare.

His sentimental idyl is, in the record of such heroic events as filled each hour, fragile and tender, and under the thrills and the recital of stirring adventure the book is a searching observation of man's indomitable will to freedom. How the guerrillas, with literally no equipment, managed to feed, clothe, and arm themselves is an epic in itself.

The will to freedom is a part of every device, and freedom rings in every ping of the crude firearms.

In his breezy idiom Lt. Richardson says "Somebody always passed a miracle" about his being able to keep Leyte on the air and in contact with Gen. MacArthur. He might have said the same thing about everything that happened. "Somebody always passed a miracle and kept us going by hook or by crook or by the devil knows what all. It wasn't me that did it. It was all of us together."



Lt. I. D. Richardson, whose story is told by Ira Wolfert in "American Guerrilla in the Philippines," reviewed today by Fanny Butcher. Sketched by Ben Cohen from a photograph.

American Place Names Give Picture of Nation's Growth

"NAMES ON THE LAND," by George R. Stewart. [Random House, $3.]

Reviewed by Tremaine McDowell

That ingenious Californian from Pennsylvania, George Stewart, has found a fresh and vivid medium in which to retell the story of the settlement of North America and the growth of the United States. That medium is the history of name-giving.

Mr. Stewart's magnificent pageant of names and name-givers is as varied as American life. Mendendez, namer of St. Augustine, and Sir Richard Granville, namer of Cape Fear. The Dutch of the Bowery and Broadway, the French of Detroit and Lake Superior, the Indians of a thousand names. And our native American namers, from the Revolutionary generation thru the forty-niners and congressmen and postoffice employes to real estate promoters and war-fevered patriots.

Back of certain American names, Mr. Stewart points out, lie the contrasted ways of life which differentiate Scotchmen from Englishmen, Yankees from southerners, plainsmen from mountain men. Back of other names lie personal friendships, humor, political partisanship and, perhaps most often, the errors of folk etymology.

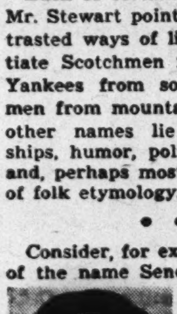
Consider, for example, the history of the name Seneca lake. A tribe of Iroquois called themselves "the people of the standing stone," and that name was transferred to the lake. Next the Mohicans translated the name into their speech. Then the Dutch transcribed the Mohican name as Sinneken. This the English spelled Sennicky until, finally, a classically minded official made it, by false etymology, Seneca. Years later this name provoked the local land commissioners to an orgy of classical naming, and Seneca was joined in upstate New York by Cato, Cicero, Manlius, Marcellus, Romulus, Scipio, Fabius, Homer, Virgil, Tully, and many more.



George R. Stewart

Consider, also, how names were given in the primitive west. The Cherokees called a mountain Gurahi, for a plant which grows on its slopes. This the pioneers crudely anglicized as Curry He. Then they invented, for a mountain which lies beside it, the name of Curry She.

This is a book to be read straight thru, for it is built around a solid, chronological backbone. It is also a book to dip into, guided by the lively chapter headings and the exhaustive index. And it is a court of last resort for the settlement both of academic debates and of argumentative bets on the origin of names. Picturesque and readable as every chapter is, the work as a whole carries the unmistakable stamp of authenticity, in a field where conjecture has hitherto been more common than scholarship.

What Fighting Men Think and Say About Their War

"THE BEST FROM YANK," selected by the editors. [Dutton, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

This is the way the war looks to the men who fight it. By cartoons, letters, personal accounts, and interviews the enlisted men of the United States army give as exact and close an account of fighting in every theater of the war as words can give. All the material was first gathered by Yank's men on the spot and later published in that weekly newspaper. There is a story about how it felt to enter Cassino at night, how the Japs lived under banyan roots on Bougainville, how a Negro howitzer battery put a shell thru the turret of a Nazi tank at nine miles, how the gray English dawn looks to a man who knows that in a few hours he will be sitting in the flak over Berlin.

It is a swell book. No fireworks, just solid firing. No effort to throw a lot of super-patriotic slogans at you. Just the daily misery of doing the fighting for freedom instead of talking about it. There are the little remarks men make in battle, often without knowing they are speaking at all. There are the swamps and bugs and Japs of New Guinea and the mountains and cold and Germans of Italy. They all give you an immense respect for the GI's of this war, probably the most unmilitaristic-minded bunch of men in the world, but making an unbeaten military force by guts and shrewdness.

One of the remarkable things about Yank is the letter column, where any man may air his complaints. Included among the letters reprinted here is the famous controversy about pin-ups. One of the letters, from a Negro corporal, tells how he and eight other Negro soldiers were forced out of a lunchroom and into a kitchen before they would be served. While in the kitchen, they watched two dozen German prisoners of war being fed the best food at tables in the lunchroom. The despairing fact is that such a thing could happen. The hopeful fact is that Yank printed the letter, and the writer received nearly 300 letters, most of them sympathetic notes from white soldiers.

It is hard to believe that an army in a war could permit the kind of free discussion Yank carries on. But here is a whole book of it, with superb photographs and good, clean writing. It is a relief to find that nothing in the book is written in that grim triteness of language that makes many American newspapers sound as if they were all written by the same man in a hurry. And it's hard to think that an army would publish a paper about itself so restrained, so straight, and so funny. Read it.

A Young Pioneer in Development of Air Transport

"HIGH JOURNEY," by Carleton Putnam. [Scribner's, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson

Aviation, by its very nature, has the pioneer appeal for most of us, and Carleton Putnam responded avidly to that lure. A young man of considerable wealth, a good education, a vivid imagination, and a deep interest in the history and meanings of our American heritage, he found himself at loose ends in 1928—mulling over his own indecisions in the not exactly monastic confines of El Tovar hotel beside the Grand canyon.

Carleton Putnam

A salesman for a scenic air line sold Mr. Putnam a ride over the canyon, and inadvertently planted a seed that was to grow into a full career. Mr. Putnam's conversion to the air way of living was gradual, but complete, and finally he had the exciting experience of seeing the first plane of his own little air line take off into the California skies.

The story of how Pacific Seaboard Air Lines suffered and struggled and finally, with the help of government revised mail contracts, burgeoned into the now very sturdy Chicago and Southern is a fascinating narrative. To the layman it is a most enlightening revelation of the struggles a young business must go thru.

Mr. Putnam writes clearly and intelligently for the most part, altho there are too many moments when philosophy overwhelms him, and the naivete of a well intentioned young man of wealth becomes amusing. You can't help cheering, however, for his sound and sane ideas about the importance of free enterprise.

International Intrigue Is Now a Drama of Real Life

"SURRENDER ON DEMAND," by Varian Fry. [Random House, $3.]

Reviewed by James Gray

When Hitler "burned the books," he fatuously assigned to himself, among many other monstrous tasks, that of changing the course of letters in our time. He has changed it, but in ways undreamed of in his own mad philosophy.

For example, since Hitler first cast his malign shadow over Holland, Belgium, Norway, France, the drama of international intrigue has taken on enormous interest and significance. It used to be written with a kind of naive garishness of ornamentation by minor literary figures like E. Phillips Oppenheim. Now, while it retains all of its hit-and-run frenzy of movement, its touch-and-go intensity of mood, the adventure story, ceasing to be fiction, has acquired a brilliant cast of characters and has attracted, as interpreters, men of wit, sophistication, originality, and style.

Varian Fry is such a man. He undertook, after the fall of France, to get distinguished anti-Nazis, like Franz Werfel, out of the great trap that was western Europe. Operating in Marseille, ostensibly as an administrator of relief funds from America, he actually performed such varied tasks as finding forgers to make nice, plausible passports; smuggling refugees onto boats bound for forbidden ports; sneaking the lame, the halt, and the terrified over the border into Spain.

Varian Fry

One thing that Fry's book makes ludicrously clear is that Hitler's "new order" could never have been anything but a new chaos. Too many people, even among those who submitted to Nazi tyranny, really despised it and were ready to exploit its irremediable weaknesses. Fry and his associates had to deal with an unlovely underworld of professional criminals, sneaks, liars, and hypocrites. Happily they dealt also with a few officials who looked the other way in order to help them and with the silent majority of the citizens who set the stony mass of their contempt between the Nazis and their purposes.

Varian Fry and his French friends were all young. Even in the midst of their danger, indeed quickened into the most attractive kind of audacity by it, they managed to have a great deal of ribald fun on the side. "Surrender on Demand" makes no effort to exaggerate the tension of the drama. A false air of casualness enveloped the story as it was lived. It envelops the book, too, making it seem completely believable and also imparting to the most commonplace incident an effect of almost startling novelty.

Writer Suggests Plan of Federal Union of Europe

"EUROPE FREE AND UNITED," by Albert Guerard. [Stanford University Press, $2.50.]

America is a highly successful federal state founded by Europeans who sought surcease from the recurrent tyrannisms of the English and continental political and social systems. That modern Europeans, given a chance, could establish in time an equally successful federation of their own has been the belief of sound thinkers since Henry VI. Prof. Guérard, a European by birth, knows well the problems that would attend the creation of a European federation; but he knows also the Europeans who would solve those problems. Pointing to the successful universality of the church, of certain commercial enterprises, and of educational institutions, he outlines a procedure for the federalization of Europe that has both sound historical precedence and exciting potentialities.

This book should be in the portfolio of every delegate at San Francisco; it should be read by every American who would preserve his country's greatness by helping establish in Europe a political regime that will not periodically need and demand our blood and our wealth to settle human problems of its own breeding. U. S. Freedom Viewed Thru French Eyes

"DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA," by Alexis de Tocqueville. [Knopf, 2 vol., $6.]

Reviewed by Arthur Bergholz

This beautiful edition of "Democracy in America" brings to mind afresh what a truly remarkable contribution it is to our intellectual heritage. Published a little over a hundred years ago, De Tocqueville's wise and fair observations on the inner principle of democracy are as pertinent today as when first they illuminated the workings of that principle in our own political and civil life, and relatively in the countries of Europe.

A profound scholar of the underlying continuities in the cultures of western Europe, De Tocqueville was deeply impressed, upon his visit to the United States, by the general equality of condition among the people. As he attentively observed and conversed with Americans he realized that this equality of condition is the essential nature of democracy. With the true touch of genius, he saw that the principle of equality was the thematic continuity underlying governmental and civil change which was going on with varying rates in all the countries which comprised western European culture. Only in the United States, due to its peculiar frontier character and the vigor of its people, the workings of this principle lent themselves to study and reflection; study and reflection which lead to knowledge of democracy of greatest relevance for future action.

The essence of equality is not simple. On the contrary, it is bafflingly complex; composed of a polarity which constantly threatens to deprive the individual of that which he specifically seeks: the freedom of his personality and freedom of opportunity to realize its full powers. It is this wish which De Tocqueville saw with prophetic clarity.

On the one hand the individual, filled with the confidences which his talents give him, seeks to make his own opportunity among his fellow men. On the other hand this very self-reliance compels the individual to face his problems without clear avenues of appeal when his own abilities and energies are insufficient. If an individual's endowments are sufficient for his success he is apt to be insensitive to those less endowed. If on the other hand and individual fails, he is insensibly drawn to find anonymous aid in the agencies of his government and surrenders all but the shell of his democratic freedom to its central powers.

De Tocqueville set himself as his proper task to understand and evaluate this dilemmatic polarity which constituted the principle of equality. With infinite richness he examines the political, social, cultural facets of American life; always alert to find how this polarity is met.

It is a measure of his stature that his painstaking study never led him to despair that democracy would be its own degradation. He found that this self-destroying polarity could be mitigated. Everywhere he saw the potency of an informed and participating citizenry in keeping vital the forms of democratic procedures. Proper education, true freedom of the press, courts of unquestioned probity, active citizens politically; all are safeguards against the polar tendencies of equality.

These remarks merely point to the significance of what De Tocqueville is saying. Essentially it is De Tocqueville's point that to understand democracy in process it is important to know the philosophy which underlies it. The philosophy of democracy is the principle of equality attended by all its dominating and derivative influences on other principles of human behavior.

Reading "Democracy in America" is an experience not to be missed. The intellectual spaciousness of its ratiocination, the fine phrasing of its perceptions give the whole a symphonic character which catches the reader up into a complete esthetic experience of surpassing beauty.

De Tocqueville Editor Is Feted by Publishing House

By Harry Hansen

PROF. PHILLIPS BRADLEY of Queens college found that publication day, on Monday, meant more than a book display in a store window. In his honor Blanche and Alfred Knopf arranged for one of their informal dinners at the Dorset and invited friends from the literary and academic world to commemorate the publication of De Tocqueville's "Democracy in America," which Mr. Bradley had just edited and annotated anew. He tells me that he enjoyed every minute of his work on this classic, which is now probably in as fine an edition as it will ever get.

I enjoyed meeting a score of authors not usually encountered at literary gatherings. H. L. Mencken came up from Baltimore and George Pierson, Yale historian, came down from New Haven; Dean Harry Carman and Prof. John Krout attended from Columbia; Alvin Johnson, director of the New school, and Dr. Houston Peterson of Cooper Union, and Lawrence Gipson of Brown university were there. Among the authors from the brilliant Knopf list were Katharine Anthony—her most recent book dealt with Charles Lamb—Jules Romains and Louis Hacker.

One of the men who enjoyed himself hugely was Frank Bailey, author of "It Can't Happen Here Again," known for his benefactions to Union college, who at 82 has still to get gray hair and attributes his fine health to his country place on Long Island. Capt. Janta, author of "I Died to Live," was there, plus a number of critics who were happy to greet Mr. Bradley in spite of the fact that he had unloaded about 350,000 words on them for their daily stint.

An Author in the Dark

From Rome an aged Harvard professor, long since retired, writes a modest inquiry to John Hall Wheelock, Scribner editor, to find out what has become of a manuscript of his. It is George Santayana, wondering whether the book called "The Realm of Being," which they had planned to publish, was ever issued. It is hard, says he, when an author does not know "whether one has published or not, and not to have seen it when issued." The war, alas, has caused this and Mr. Wheelock has conveyed good news to Mr. Santayana in his reply. It is to the effect that "The Realm of Being," which was published in 1944, has just been awarded the Nicholas Murray Butler gold medal of Columbia university, awarded once every five years to the most distinguished contribution to philosophy in the previous five years published anywhere in the world.

"The Realm of Being," if that title is unfamiliar to you, is a one volume edition of four books previously published separately: "The Realm of Essence," "The Realm of Matter," "The Realm of Truth," and "The Realm of Spirit."

And the philosopher in Rome had just learned that his book, "The Middle Span," was being published last week and expressed himself as surprised and pleased. He will be happy now to be in touch again with his American friends, even tho he may never return here. He has settled down to complete revision of a work on religion, the first of its kind to come from his pen. The new title will be "The Idea of Christ in the Gospels or God in Man," and it will be published in the fall. Mr. Santayana has always remained a Catholic [with reservations] and there will be great interest in his treatment of the subject.

"Strange Fruit" on a Billboard

If you travel into New York by way of the New York Central or the New Haven, you will discover something new in book promotion. It is a big billboard advertisment for "Strange Fruit," conspicuously placed in Mott Haven where the two lines merge. Until now the big billboards have talged about cigarets, hats, and theaters. "Strange Fruit," which is well over the half million mark and will reach an entirely new audience when Grosset & Dunlap take it on in June, has been a big card for Reynal & Hitchcock, who are responsible for the billboard. Mrs. Barbara Rae of the Green Brodie agency said it was the first and only one and she didn't know whether they would do more of it.

I thought in my impractical way that it would be hard to check results, and she said she didn't know what system would be used. She thought, however, that the literary world had been reached by other media, "and if it hasn't read the book by now it probably won't." Many startled [or somnolent] commuters will suddenly become aware of something new in books and I'll probably get the usual inquiries: "Where can this book be bought?" Mrs. Rae said her agency also had experimented with car cards in Cleveland. "How about sky writing?" I asked. "We'd have to get a book by I. J. Fox for that," said she.

Sinclair Lewis Is Happy

Our Nobel prize winner, Sinclair Lewis, is settling down to that period of expectation that every author enjoys; his manuscript is off his hands and all he does now is answer queries about its publication from interested friends. Louis Untermeyer met him the other day and noted a special cheerfulness in "Red," and found out that he thinks highly of "Cass Timberlane," which will appear Oct. 3. "How much will you make on this one, $200,000?" asked Mr. Untermeyer, in a spirit of literary research. "Well," replied Mr. Lewis quietly, "a little more." He had just heard from Alan Collins that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had paid $225,000 for the motion picture rights. This time, I hear, Mr. Lewis has written a book that has much in common with "Main Street" for its background and action—it takes place in Grand Prairie, a mythical town in Minnesota. And it's a love story—the love of a middle aged judge for a girl of 21.

An Editor's Baby

Harry E. Maule, the Random House editor, was chuckling the other day over a new number in the Modern Library. "It's my baby," he said, examining "Great Tales of the American West," which he had chosen and for which he had written an introduction. I don't know any one better qualified to edit a book of western tales. Harry knows all of them—especially thousands of action stories that passed his eye when he was editor of Frontier, West, and Short Stories. Like many another New Yorker, he's a westerner—born in Fairmount, Neb., and educated in Denver, and if he'd adopt a 10 gallon hat he'd pass for a sunburned Texan.

EDNA FERBER

tells a rich, lusty story of a family and a city...

"HERE was something that cried aloud to be written and would not be denied . . . The Northwest crowded into my mind, reared itself indomitably as the background for a book about the Bearded Boys of America—the Bearded Boys of Seattle all the way from 1851 to 1941. Adventurous, bold, nerveless. Courageous. These bearded boys whom we saw smiling out at us from the newsreels and the magazines and the newspapers were the new pioneers . . . Fighting and dying for an intangible thing, a spiritual thing, a thing called freedom.

"A line presented itself as a title—a line from Shakespeare, as there always is a line from Shakespeare . . . 'Thou knows't, great son, the end of war's uncertain.'

"But it isn't a book about the war."

EDNA FERBER

"This, of course, is not only Seattle and the Northwest, but all America. GREAT SON therefore, is not for Seattle alone; it is a tale for the whole wide land." — GERALD W. JOHNSON, N. Y. Herald Tribune

SOCIETY CLUBS TRAVEL
NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS B

Clubs to Fete Shakespeare's Anniversary

Tomorrow being the anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare, his memory will be honored at meetings of a number of Chicago women's clubs.

In a moment of inspiration the Chicago Drama club struck upon Shakespeare and Northwestern university's brilliant young English professor, Bergen Evans, as a program combination for its anniversary meeting Tuesday in the Arts club. But the Evans lecture on Shakespeare carried a burgeoning seed of worry for those charged with practical arrangements for the meeting. Mr. Evans is so popular a speaker with league members that every one seems determined to hear him, and Miss Martha Orr, the executive secretary, declares visitors hanging to chandeliers is likely to be no mere fanciful figure of speech.

Mr. Evans' talk, "Shakespeare—a Revised Estimate," is set for 11 o'clock, and after the program there will be a luncheon at which the league will entertain the cast of "Dear Ruth." Each member will be permitted only one guest because of space limitations. This will be Mr. Evans last lecture appearance before the league for a full season, for he plans to give all his spare time next year to the writing of a book.

Rich in tradition is the Chicago Woman's club Shakespeare party, which dates from 1895, when Mrs. George F. Bartlett, then chairman of the art and literature department, brought a well known critic of that day to the club to give a lecture. Colorful memories of musicals, pageants, readings, plays, luncheons, and receptions give background to the Shakespearean tea which the club is holding from 3 to 5:30 o'clock today in the north lounge of its suite in the Fine Arts building. Among the guests will be Kenneth Bumstead, senior member of the British consulate here, and Mrs. Bumstead; Frank H. Heck, president of the English Speaking union, and Mrs. Heck, and Mrs. Henry Bartlett Chamberlin, retired president of the club.

Mrs. Harry A. Biossat is in charge this year, and the program she has arranged will bring before the club and its guests Mrs. J. Dick Anderson, a member, in readings from "The Taming of the Shrew," and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Boyd, who will sing and give dramatic excerpts from "The Merchant of Venice." Mrs. Boyd was a member of the Shakespearean Society of Northern Ireland in Belfast.

The club holds innumerable mementoes that recall to the old timers the birthday celebrations of yesteryear. There is the bronze bust of the Bard. That was a gift from Mrs. J. C. Shaffer in 1904. Mrs. Levy Mayer gave the handsome etching in 1908. And the heavy, handcarved chair that was made from a pew of the church in Stratford-on-Avon that Shakespeare attended was acquired by Mrs. Samuel Dauchy on her travels abroad and brought back as a gift to the club in 1907. The charming "Puck" in marble was made by Harriet Hosmer, the Chicago sculptor, and a club member, who presented the piece in 1915.

But the club's truly golden Shakespearean treasures are those stored in the memory of one of its former presidents, Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton. Mrs. Hilton remembers that gay party—the only time that she can recall when the ladies indulged in "intoxicating liquor." Each drank about one-half a thimbleful. The rare beverage was a wine which one enterprising member on a visit to

A picture of health are these two youngsters, Karen Swanson and Jon Stanley O'Connell, whose mothers, Mrs. Walter E. Swanson and Mrs. J. Stanley O'Connell, devote many hours each week so that less privileged children may have health giving vacations at the Arden Shore summer camp in Lake Bluff. Mrs. Swanson and Mrs. O'Connell are members of the Chicago committee of the Arden Shore association, which is in the midst of its annual spring drive for funds. For the first time this summer, Arden Shore will take the responsibility for young children whose mothers must work and whose fathers are in service. More than 2,000 boys, girls, mothers, and grandmothers will be given holidays at the camp this year.

10 Days Left for Fashion Show Designs

By Norma Lee Browning

Only 10 days remain for prospective contestants in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S $6,000 American Fashions contest to send in their fashion designs.

In spite of the approaching deadline, which is midnight, May 1, scores of aspiring designers have written in this last week to request entry blanks and rules for the contest.

The contest selections board urges that all entries be sent in as soon as possible in order to avoid the last minute rush.

Mrs. Grace Pickering, director of THE TRIBUNE'S nation-wide competition, warned:

"Because of the tremendous interest in this year's contest and the great increase in the number of those participating in it, it is important that all designs must be in the contest office on time."

Selecting the winners will be a more difficult job this year, she said, because the sketches already submitted indicate the total number will surpass other years in both quantity and quality.

There will be the added job of selecting winners in the teen age contest, which is offered for the first time this year in addition to the general contest.

In order to be considered for prizes, entries must reach Tribune Tower by midnight, May 1—a week from Tuesday.

Approximately 50 designs will be chosen, and the next few weeks will be spent in buying the finest fabrics and having designs in the winning sketches executed into finished garments, at the expense of THE TRIBUNE and under the supervision of Mrs. Pickering.

The costumes will be modeled early next fall at THE TRIBUNE'S annual fashion show, the gala event which climaxes the contest. At this time a fashion-wise audience will vote on the grand prize winners.

Grand prizes are $2,000, $1,000, and $500, with another $500 prize to be awarded to the designer of the best costume for a teen age girl. All those whose sketches have been selected to be made into finished costumes will receive honorable mention awards of $50 each.

Contestants are reminded to sketch or draw their designs on white papers, 14x20 inches, mounted on cardboard of the same size. They may be done in black and white or in color, and must show both front and back views.

A person may submit any number of designs but each entry must be accompanied by a separate entry blank properly filled out.

Determination of the prize winner will be based on the finished models or garments, and not on the original sketches. However, no actual garments will be accepted in the contest, but samples of fabrics suitable for the finished garment may be submitted, if the contestant wishes.

Copies of the contest rules may still be obtained by filling in the application blank on page 2. But hurry!

Army Flyers' Mothers Plan Lunch Tomorrow

Mrs. Margaret Selleck of Des Plaines will illustrate her lecture on the history of Chicago with an exhibit of original water colors when she appears before the Mothers of Flying Army Officers at a 12:30 o'clock luncheon gathering tomorrow in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., 19 S. La Salle st. Mrs. Selleck is a club member.

Hospital Body Seeking Funds for Research

By Thalia

In the seven days since this column was last written a page of history has turned. The President of the United States has died. A new President has taken office. Perhaps somewhere in our land another President has been born. In the world-wide mourning of last week-end, the shock and sudden bewilderment of Americans small and great was voiced in words which all could hear. With these articulate tributes to the dead leader were mingled tears for those who, too, had died before they saw the end of war and the promise of peace for which they fought. Tears of mothers, wives, sisters, all over America, who had, for the sake of those about them, stoically borne the sometimes almost mortal blow of those words, "—regrets to inform you."

Fathers, who themselves had seen many fine men die in battle in that war which they so ironically believed was the war to end all wars, patted their womenfolk on the back and said, "in battle when a man dies they play the dirge as he is buried, but the ranks close up. Even when a general dies, there is always another general to take his place, and a quickstep sends every one back to his post and into the battle again." President Truman's messages to the congress and to fighting forces were the quickstep which enheartened every American. Officially the mourning for the late President extends for 30 days. In Washington all large society gatherings have been canceled for that period. In Chicago, there has rarely been during the war lavish entertaining for its own sake, and large luncheons and dinners are usually held to work for less fortunate Americans than the lunchers and diners. Such work goes on.

Perhaps some future President of the United States will owe his being to the fund which the board of directors of the Chicago Lying-In hospital is collecting with earnestness this month and next. There are still two dread causes of mortality in pregnancy and childbirth which, despite the brilliant strides which have been made toward safeguarding expectant and young mothers, wreak havoc. To provide a fund for research to discover their cause and conquer their virulence and to share with all of America the inestimable benefits of insuring healthy new generations, the board hopes to raise $100,000 as a fitting monument to its 50th year.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is chairman of the drive. She was president of the board of directors when her committee raised $1,700,000 for the present hospital, part of the medical group at the University of Chicago. The Lying-In hospital was started in 1895 by Dr. Joseph B. De Lee on Maxwell st. It expanded to 15 beds in a private house on the once fashionable Ashland blvd. [by that time not so chic] The idea of having babies away from home was still revolutionary. Among the directors that year, 1899, were Arthur Meeker, Russell Tyson, and the late Medill McCormick. When enough money was raised to buy property on E. 51st st., the uncle of the late President, Frederick Delano, who was then chairman of the board, had to work for five years, I have heard, fighting lawsuits and raising funds to build the hospital. It was filled to capacity and beyond until the new building was built on the Midway in 1931.

Ever since 1906 Mrs. Fairbank has served on the board of directors of the hospital, most of th ime as

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . Simms Valley Sing

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

LITTLE Patty Fern Rainey, 11 years old, let her hymn book flop limply in her right hand and looked at her sister, Loretta, who was playing the piano.

"I can't sing another word," she whispered hoarsely.

Loretta frowned and shook her head warningly. She moved her fingers on the keyboard and the strains of "Prepare to Meet Thy God" filled the schoolroom. At Loretta's left, Jake Pope picked up the rhythm on his violin and played an able second. Behind Patty Fern a chorus of 20 men, boys, and young girls took up the words and the 30th hymn of the Simms Valley Sing was under way. Loudly, clearly, the words floated thru the open windows arousing rabbits, chipmunks, and foxes as far as Calamity Holler:

Why so thotless are you standing,
While the fleeting years go by?
And your life is spent in folly,
O, prepare to meet thy God.

"Careless soul," caroled the sopranos and tenors. "O, careless soul," boomed the basses and little Patty Fern's sturdy alto. The piano and violin joined in brisk, tuneful harmony and the flame of the kerosene lamp atop the piano sent up tiny points of dancing light. When the Simms Valley folks meet for a Sing they don't mess around. They really give.

When the Jedge and I had arrived at the schoolhouse, which serves as meeting place and church, the scant number of pickup trucks and cars was disheartening.

"Not a half dozen here," I grumbled. "I can see myself doing a solo!"

"God forbid," said the Jedge, opening the door.

Inside we found at least 25 young folks and a dozen or more adults. Again we had failed to realize how many neighbors can pile on a truck when they want to get some place. Actually, it was a Young People's meeting, and everybody was busy. One tall boy was lighting the kerosene lamps that hung from the ceiling, not forgetting the one on the piano. Others were arranging benches, erasing the blackboard, and getting out song books. One poked the fire that had been built to take the chill off the room and a red head was opening windows.

After I had met Mrs. Daniels, whose five children, including the 18 months' baby, were all at the Sing, and talked a while with Mrs. Wright and my very special friend, Lena Skirk, I felt a wave of apprehension sweeping thru the crowd. The Raineys hadn't arrived.

"O, they'll be here," said Lena, confidently. "Mr. Rainey is the leader and he has the program."

Two boys in the group had to take a lot of joshing. One was young Sam Rainey, who had been visiting at a friend's house since Sunday school.

"Reckon they couldn't get them cows milked without you, Sam," they said.

The other young fellow was Loretta Rainey's boy friend, who was told gloomy tales of her possible elopement with another fellow. Then the door was flung open and the missing ones were there, Mr. Rainey in blue shirt and clean overalls; Loretta, a curvacious 17 year old, in plaid; Patty Fern and Louise Wright, two slim little straight haired girls in red jumpers and snowy blouses.

"Couldn't get the truck started," explained Mr. Rainey. "Had to walk." Then he smiled and added: "Them two miles stretched out to considerable before we got here."

I thought of those four people climbing steep hills, and feeling their way thru dark wooded valleys, stumbling, tripping, hurrying over rough, rocky roads that they might sing praises to God by the light of a kerosene lamp in a country schoolhouse. However, they seemed to take it in their stride. While the crowd found seats, Loretta exchanged a few words and a smile with her boy friend, then took her place on the piano stool and ran her fingers over the keys. Jake Pope took his place beside her, tuned his fiddle a moment, and then eased it on his knees, waiting to play. Mr. Rainey stood in the middle aisle and waggled the hymn book for a moment as he looked about the room. Then he said, pleasantly,

"Well, git up front and start the singin'."

All the young folks above 9 years, a half dozen men, and Lena, arose and went to the front of the schoolroom. With the ease of long established custom, they took their places on the wide platform at the front of the room. The older men stood at the back of the piano, well within the circle of lamp light, Patty Fern, Louise, and Lena stood in the front row at floor level, while others made a double row in front of the blackboard. The girls were self-confident and pretty in neat flowered dresses and gay hair ribbons; each boy held a song book in one hand and thrust the other deep into his blue jeans pocket, removing it only to brush back a lock of unruly hair. Some one called out a hymn number. Loretta and Jake played the introductory measures and voices leaped into the words of the first hymn.

Glory Hallelujah, I shall not be moved,
Anchored in Jehovah, I shall not be moved.
Just like a tree that's planted by the waters,
I shall not be moved.

"Loretta never had a piano lesson in her life," whispered Mrs. Wright. I listened to the piano. Perhaps a music critic might have had reason for disapproval, but to my way of thinking, the girl put into those famous old hymn tunes a zip and zing that improved them tremendously. Jake, too, played by ear. As I watched and listened I wondered if he would have been with us, in overalls and sweater, fiddlin' at a mountain Sing if he had been willing to follow Dad Pope's pleadings. The father of Jake and Lena was an old time music master and his son's casual disregard of undoubted musical talent was the heartbreak of the old gentleman's life. But I had scant time for worrying about Jake's misspent musical life. As fast as one hymn was finished, another was called for and audience and chorus alike were instantly giving our all to another tune. Finally one of my favorites was sung:

Earthly wealth and fame may never come to me,
And a palace fair here mine may never be.
But let come what may, if Christ for me doth care,
Anywhere is home, if He is only there.

Even as we sang I wondered if I, or any one else in that room, would ever feel truly at home except in these wooded hills, where the haze picks up the blue of the skies and the spring fed streams run crystal clear.

The room grew warm. The only man on the platform in a business suit took off his coat and unbuttoned his shirt collar. Another man turned up the wick of the lamp on the piano, then shied away from its heat. The boys frankly mopped foreheads and the girls pushed up sleeves. The Daniels' baby walked about on unsteady feet and looked grim when he bumped his head on the under side of a desk. Across from me three small boys in a big double seat fished schoolbooks out of the desk and grinned at each other. The smallest, of pre-school age, became interested in a first reader. The others pored over geography maps, obviously fascinated by the colors.

At last, after perhaps a dozen hymns, the chorus came down from the platform and took seats. Mr. Rainey fished a pencil written program from his overalls pocket and called on Patty Fern and Louise for a duet. The song seemed new to the little girls and they sang haltingly. But there was no embarrassment. They laughed at mistakes and went blithely ahead. Their encore was better.

After that there was a prayer, with fervent pleas for the boys in service and the sick who were not able to be with us. Then Loretta deserted the piano stool to sing in an unaccompanied quartet with Sam and the two smaller girls. The words came strangely from such youthful singers:

Life's evening sun is sinking low,
A few more days, and I must go
To meet the deeds that I have done;
Where there will be no setting sun.

Sam's basso profundo may have been a bit uncertain in spots, but the words were clear as a bell. Their encore was a spiritual, mainly a sing-song repetition of the words:

Praise the Lord, I'll have a new body,
Praise the Lord, I'll have a new life.

I looked at the lovely Loretta and thought of all the wisecracking photographers who would promptly say she didn't need a new body! But such irrelevant thought had to be put aside. The chorus was trooping up front again and we were off on another wave of group singing. This time they sang of the heavenly anthem that would be sung by the redeemed as tho rehearsing for that joyous song. More numbers were called out. "I'm Going to Take a Trip on the Good Old Gospel Ship" was followed by "Just Over in the Glory Land." "The Old Rugged Cross" made the rafters ring, and it was followed by "Throw Out the Life Line," "Lily of the Valley," "I Am Just a Weary Pilgrim," and a half dozen others, all sung with undiminished enthusiasm. Occasionally Jake rubbed resin on his bow, and once Loretta shook her tired fingers. At last some one asked for "Just Inside the Eastern Gate." This was followed by the lovely hymn, "In the Beautiful Garden of Prayer," sung softly and tenderly. The three little boys laid down their books, cradled their heads in their arms, and went to sleep. Patty Fern whispered her hoarse complaint to her sister and their father realized that even a Sing must come to an end. But already another number had been called out, so we sang "Prepare to Meet Thy God" before he called for the closing number. We arose and sang "America" without benefit of song books; then stood with bowed heads while Lena spoke the words of the closing prayer.

When the lamps had been blown out and the hymn books put into neat stacks, we trooped out of the darkened schoolroom into bright silver moonlight. Gay, but slightly hoarse, were the good-night calls as singers piled into trucks and cars. The Jedge and I were the last to leave. After Loretta and her boy friend rattled away with a dozen milk cans and eight singers sharing the rear end of the big truck, I turned for a final look at the schoolhouse. So clear was the mountain air, myriads of twinkling stars seemed close to the tops of the tall hickory and oak trees, and as branches stirred gently in the night breeze, waves of moonlight shimmered about the little white building like waves of sound still lingering about that song filled room. Far in the distance the clatter of the trucks died away, and as quiet settled down on Simms Valley I seemed to hear the majestic words:

"O, come let us sing unto the Lord . . . for the strength of the hills is His, also."

An evening utterly nostalgic was one that a few of her friends spent at the home of Mrs. Fairbank recently, just before the drive opened. A few years ago such an evening would not have been unusual, but nowadays one too seldom listens to fine music lovingly played in a private house, before a few friends. To thank her for her kindness to him since he had returned from service in the United States army and become a member of the bank of first violins at the Chicago Symphony orchestra, George Szpinalski asked Mrs. Fairbank if he and his friend, Richard Beidel of the orchestra's cellos, and Mrs. Beidel might play the Tschaikowsky trio for her and a small group of her friends. There was that feeling of warmth in the evening which was not only a tribute to the loveliness of Tschaikowsky's music, itself written in tribute to his friend and mentor, Anton Rubinstein, but to the rare quality of friendliness.

The enrollment drive for memberships in the Seeing Eye was launched on Tuesday with a large luncheon at the Casino for the workers who will uphold the preeminence which Chicago now holds in obtaining new memberships for a work which gives new life to the sightless.

At the Seeing Eye in Morristown, N. J., both dogs and humans are trained, the dogs to their miracles of guardianship, the humans to their use of the dogs. To date there have been some 755 human graduates of the school. The first one from the midwest, now a successful young attorney, Herbert Geisler, guided by his dog, Tina, sat beside Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., chairman of the drive, at luncheon. She introduced him to the expectant audience, already fascinated by Tina, who lay electrically asleep at her master's feet. Tina's plaintive voice was heard in a wail when he rose to speak without first speaking to her. Mr. Geisler gave a dramatic picture of the relationship between the blind person and the guide dog by telling of a questionnaire which the Seeing Eye had sent out to its 755 graduates asking them, "If you were provided with a human guide would you give up your dog?" The answer was five yes, 750 no!

Huntington Henry, chairman of the Chicago Seeing Eye executive committee which gave the luncheon, told of the work which had been done by Morris Frank and his famous guide dog, Buddy II., in the rehabilitation of the wounded in this war. Morris Frank is sightless, but in no sense blind. He is one of the most remarkable and vivid of human beings. Alone, with Buddy, he has visited every service hospital in the United States, and his very presence has been of tremendous therapeutic help, psychologically, for the maimed as well as the blinded. When a man with an arm or a leg gone sees Morris Frank, a useful, happy man, he almost invariably says "If he can be that happy without any eyes I ought to be able to get along all right."

Guide dogs and the training in their use will be provided free of charge by the Seeing Eye to men blinded in the service of their country. Other blind persons pay a maximum of $150 for their first guide dog, out of their earnings and over as long a period as they find necessary, altho it costs many times that amount to train both the dog and his master, hence the necessary drive for financial memberships in the cause.

Incidentally only about one-fourth of the human graduates are feminine, but an overwhelmingly large proportion of the canine graduates are ladies. Which reminds me of a part of the touching story about "The Good Companions" by Alexander Woollcott which was read at the luncheon by Hugh Marlowe of "The Voice of the Turtle." It concerned a young man whose blindness had turned him completely against the world. He went unshaven, dirty, and disheveled. One morning, the day after he first walked thru the streets of Morristown alone with his guide dog, he appeared clean shaven, in a clean shirt, with a tie knotted about his neck for the first time and in a good suit. "A guy doesn't like to go around looking like a bum when he's out with a lady," was his explanation.

If armchair travelers can lose themselves in the maze at Hampden court, or see the Taj Mahal in the moonlight, or feel themselves thrillingly girded by a fragile rope in a chain of humans climbing the Matterhorn just by reading about it, ration point counters can do the same sort of dreaming if they wander thru the current exhibit at the Chicago Historical society. The Garson historical menu collection now on view, opened with an evening reception at which Mr. and Mrs. James Hopkins and Joseph T. Ryerson were among those who received in the name of the society.

The collection, which covers the last 100 years, with menus autographed by the great of the last century here and abroad, contains items of which culinary dreams—and nightmares—are made, and proves that stomachs in the good old days must have been ironclad. One menu, that of a dinner given by the lord mayor of London in 1856, lists among the fowl alone: goslings, woodcock, pea fowl, guinea fowl, partridge, pheasant, widgeon, and braised, broiled, and roast turkey.

A decade before that feast, which even Lucullus must have envied from his ashes, the Astor House in New York opened its career with a nine course dinner whose menu lists every conceivable flesh, except that of the bison, which an enterprising Michigan farmer has recently started raising to supplement our steakless menus. With foresight, the Astor House also lists on the menu the rejuvenating services of "baths in the lower story."

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, April 29, 1897.

Dear Julia: I have spent the day at the Chicago Woman's club as our annual meeting took place and it was an important occasion. We have really taken a step forward, I think, as a motion by Dr. Leila Bedell was passed recommending that the board of directors call a meeting in May to discuss the matter of erecting a permanent home for the club. Many members feel it is possible to build a building large enough to house other clubs as well as our own. Will is quite skeptical about the wisdom of this rather grandiose plan. He says he'd advise the ladies to let the real estate owners and agents do the worrying that is always part of such ownership. It would cost a great deal, of course, but it is thought that our rich members would subscribe for the stock.

Maude Adams

Another important motion carried today was that our club should try to secure a place on the board of education for Miss Jane Addams. Our retiring president is Mrs. Farlin Q. Ball of Oak Park, and her speech as she turned over the office to the new head, Mrs. Marie C. Remick, was quite masterly. Among her suggestions was that of permitting men to be associate members. This idea was greeted with applause. I suppose most of us would find the presence of gentlemen a stimulus. Will didn't enthuse over this suggestion. He cherishes his membership in the Chicago club, an exclusive organization which has its own building at the corner of Michigan av. and Van Buren st., and in the Chicago Literary club, whose members are among our very intelligent masculine citizenry. These, he says, are enough for him.

In suggesting that we open our club to men, Mrs. Ball explained that she didn't mean that they should have all the privileges of our members. She thought they shouldn't be allowed to vote, but that they could have the right to attend classes and other meetings.

The Woman's club is in a most prosperous condition, with 62 new members added the past year. Two new honorary members are Miss Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross society, and Mme. Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, our famous Chicago pianiste.

Will and I went to the theater last evening to see John Drew and Maude Adams in the new play "Rosemary." Have you seen it? It is most delightful. Mr. Drew is minus his luxuriant moustache which he has shaved off, better to represent the titled gentleman of 50 years ago, Sir Jasper Thorndyke, who is the hero of the play. The story is simple—a young couple starting to elope are forced by an accident to take refuge in the Thorndyke country home. The young girl [Maude Adams] falls in love with Sir Jasper, wealthy bachelor, and he with her. But Sir Jasper is prevailed on by a fusty old professor who lives with him and who doesn't want his comfort disturbed, to give up the girl. He tells him it will be all the same 50 years hence. And so it turns out. In an epilog, in which he is shown as a feeble old man of 90, he [Sir Jasper] has forgotten all about the love affair which had been so important to him a half century before. Will didn't like that part of the play. "Why spoil a story by showing our hero in his dotage?" he asked. Yet I thought John Drew was very effective as a forgetful old man.

Will is much interested in the appointment of William J. Calhoun as special envoy to Cuba. Matters are so involved there and President McKinley has much confidence in this Illinois lawyer. Mr. Calhoun really carried the state of Illinois for McKinley in the Republican convention, so it was quite to be expected that he would have some recognition by the administration. Will thinks Mr. Calhoun will go far in political life. And now good night. Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

The Chicago Woman's club did not erect a building until 1926. This building, on 11th st. near Michigan av., which has been occupied for 19 years, is about to be transferred to the Jewish educational board, changing conditions having made it desirable to dispose of it. The club now has headquarters at 410 S. Michigan av. Mrs. Albion W. Headburg is the newly elected president.

The Elegant Eighties

Have you written that letter on the subject, "Why I'm Glad I Lived in the Eighties?" Remember: [1] It must be in our hands by May 15. [2] It must contain only 100 words or less. The prize is a box of "Elegant Eighties" informal note cards, with rhymes by your editor and pictures by Lois Fisher.

Country Sayings

Miss Elizabeth Rush, 7135 Bennett av., sends: "Well wintered is half well summered" [1886] and "A spur in the head is worth two in the heels" [1877]. Both these sayings, writes Miss Ruth, are from old Farmers' Almanacs published in Worcester, Mass. . . . Here is a saying which is new to your editor: "To a good dog, throw one bone, but to a bad one, always throw two." This comes from Mrs. Charles L. Tryon, Woodstock, Ill.

An Early Longfellow Poem

Mrs. Winona E. Reeves, editor of the P. E. O. Record, sends us the March issue of that monthly magazine with a three stanza verse by Longfellow. We have all heard the first stanza beginning: "There was a little girl," but few of us know that there are two more. The little girl's name turns out to have been "Jemima" and her mother, on one occasion, "did spank her most emphatic."

Poem of the Week

There Was a Little Girl

If you'd like this verse, by Longfellow, send stamped, addressed envelope to Herma Clark, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Clubs to Fete Shakespeare's Anniversary

England had made from mulberries plucked from the bushes that grew near the Anne Hathaway cottage. But if she recalls the identity of that daring hostess, Mrs. Hilton has not confided it.

One year—that was 1910—the club produced a fantasy written by Mrs. Elia Wilkinson Peattie, a member of the club and a poet. She was Donald Culross Peattie's mother. Her play was called "How Jacques Came Into the Forest of Arden." It was performed by club members, and a chorus of school children coached by Miss Mary Hinman danced and sang Shakespearean songs between acts. Mrs. Howard L. Krum, recalled by Mrs. Hilton as "one of our truly lovely singers," was the soloist that day, and she sang "Under the Greenwood Tree." On another occasion the club had as a guest speaker a young woman whose maiden name was Mary Shakespeare. She was descended from the same family, and she told how her father impersonated William at the traditional poets' dinners in England.

Another memorable celebration was that in 1913, when Cyril Maude, the English actor, appeared as guest artist with the Chicago Theater society in a Shakespearean program in the Fine Arts theater. There were close to 1,000 guests on that occasion, 175 of them from out of town. Mrs. Hilton herself played in several of the club's productions.

At the College club tomorrow evening, the birthday will be celebrated at a joint meeting with the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago. After dinner the large assembly will see scenes from "As You Like It," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "Hamlet," performed by four young women from Miss Alvina Krause's Shakespeare interpretative class at Northwestern university school of speech—Miss Priscilla Weaver, Miss Roslyn Yathrow, Miss Mina Pendo, and Miss Kelly Green. Miss Christine Bednar, program chairman for the alliance, has arranged for their appearance.

Among other meetings of unusual interest this week is the Lake View Musical society's open house, which is set for 2 o'clock tomorrow at the Cordon in the Fine Arts building. Leo Sowerby, Chicago composer and pianist, will be the club's guest. Mr. Sowerby's music has been performed by the Chicago Symphony and leading orchestras thruout the country.

A concert of the works of member composers will be presented. Among those participating will be Lulu Jones Downing, who arranged the program; Louise Evans, Florence Grandland Galajikian, Franziska Rasbe Parkinson, Alma Wallace Randall, Ruth Rishel, Theodora Troendle, and Cora Willia Ware.

Among the assisting artists will be Catherine McCutcheon Baker, Jessie Buchtel, Marion Bidgeman, Louise Evans, Mrs. Hiram B. Kadish, and Margaret McCall Nichols. The Horace Mann choral group also will participate.

Mrs. Vita B. Cuttone, who also composes, will have charge of tea arrangements, and other composer members will assist as a hostess committee. In the group will be Laura Coolidge, Evelyn Smith La Salle, Emma Menke, Helen Fawn Riordan, Ruth Rishel, Alice Brown Stout, and Cora Willis Ware.

Church Women Will Hear Minister on Friday

The Rev. Ernest Fremont Tittle, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Evanston, will speak before the Women's division of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago at a 2 o'clock meeting Friday in the 18th floor assembly hall of the Stevens building, 17 N. State st. "The Church and the Peace" will be his topic.

Church Club Will Meet in Evanston Tomorrow

The Catholic club of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago will meet at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening in St. Luke's church, Evanston. The speakers will be the Rt. Rev. Spence Burton, bishop of Nassau, and the Rt. Rev. Reginald Mallett, bishof of northern Indiana. The Rev. Frederick L. Barry, rector, will officiate at the office of Benediction.

Three Jewish Clubs Schedule Special Meets

Interest of Jewish women is centered on three large meetings, the annual spring assembly of the women's division of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, set for Monday, April 30; the 18th annual "give and get" luncheon of Chicago chapter of Hadassah, to be held Thursday, and a meeting of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations tomorrow, at which newly elected officers will be inducted.

Mrs. Adolph R. Klein

The women of the Jewish Charities will assemble at 10:30 o'clock on the morning of their meeting in the ballroom of the Standard club. More than 60,000 from 110 different organizations are represented in the division thru a presidents' council, which serves as a coordinating agency and clearing house for philanthropic activities. Mrs. Adolph R. Klein, division president, has been reëlected and she will assist at the forthcoming assembly at the induction of Mrs. Irving S. Florsheim, Mrs. A. Richard Frank, Mrs. Frank D. Mayer, and Mrs. Milton C. Lippitz, newly elected vice president, second vice president, treasurer, and recording secretary, respectively.

Panel discussions on the "big three" of Jewish Charities, care of the family, of the child, and of the aged, will occupy the morning session, with Mrs. Michel H. Weinberg, Mrs. Jacob Weinstein, and Mrs. Joseph Lewis leading the forums and Mrs. Aaron E. Kanter sitting in as moderator.

At lunch the women will hear a talk by Capt. Charles J. Komaiko of the marine corps, adjutant at the marines' barracks at Great Lakes. Capt. Komaikô returned recently after two years of active service in the South Pacific.

Hadassah's luncheon Thursday is to be held at noon in the Stevens hotel. The benefit this year, being the 18th, has a special significance, 18 in Hebrew having the meaning of "life." The organization has rescued some 13,000 Jewish boys and girls from Nazi occupied countries in Europe thru its Youth Aliyah program and repatriated them in Palestine. Its medical and health projects in Palestine are far reaching and have even benefited the allies during the fighting in the North African and Mediterranean areas. Plans are now under way for expanding services for the treatment of tuberculosis.

Maurice Samuel, author and lecturer, will speak at the luncheon. Mrs. James Olshan will preside. The party culminates the annual tithe campaign, of which Mrs. A. Albert Weinberg is chairman. Each woman attending will have donated $50 or raised a "plate" of that amount for the Hadassah philanthropies.

Mrs. A. A. Weinberg [Blue Streak Photo]

Special aides to Mrs. Weinberg on the tithe committee are Mrs. Milton Silverstine, Mrs. Amos Bowman, Mrs. John Rocklin, Mrs. Martin Maremont, Mrs. Mark Rosenfeldt, Mrs. Eli Baron, Mrs. Bertha Read Rissman, and Mrs. Jacob Bedno.

The Conference of Jewish Women's organizations, meeting tomorrow, will gather at 1:30 o'clock at 220 S. State st. Mrs. David Wodlinger will assume the presidency of the conference at the session. She succeeds Mrs. Max Biesenthal, who has served for 5 years. The women will hear a lecture by George de Huzar of the University of Chicago on "Durable Roads to Peace."

Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women will meet at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at 185 N. Wabash av. to hear Lt. Col. Samuel Goldsmith, United States army, retired, discuss "Relocation of Displaced Families Overseas." Col. Goldsmith was with the allied control commission in Italy,, having charge of civilian clothing distribution, and later he was chief of the displaced persons branch of the military government headquarters in the Mediterranean theater of operations.

WED RECENTLY

Mrs. William James Harbeck (Jean Marie Allsopp) is living in Cambridge, Mass., while her husband is taking an advanced training course at Harvard university. Their wedding took place recently in the Georgian hotel. Mrs. Harbeck is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Allsopp of Touhy av., and Ensign Harbeck is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Christian S. Harbeck of Glenview.

Medical Service Group Schedules Lunch Saturday

The 621 members of the Hermaology Research Foundation last year raised $10,000 to carry on medical research in the field of blood diseases and related medical problems. At the foundation's annual spring luncheon, to be held Saturday in the Palmer House, a check in this amount will be presented by Mrs. Irving Frankel on behalf of the members to the president, Mrs. Philip Marcus.

A book review will be given by Florence Bourke Ellis at the Saturday gathering. Special guests will include Dr. William Peterson, director of the Institute of Medicine, Dr. Lewis Levin, and Dr. Samuel Soskin. Mrs. Arthur Davis, luncheon chairman, is to be assisted with arrangements by Mrs. Edward Marks, Mrs. Max Brooks, Mrs. Willard Dean, Miss Rose Ersler, and Mrs. Robert Golden.

Calendar of Chicagoland Club Events

As a benefit for the Dyslexia Memorial institute, Florence Bourke Ellis will give a book talk under auspices of the Dyslexia guild at 4 o'clock next Sunday in the Second Presbyterian church, 1936 S. Michigan av. The institute, of which the guild is a service auxiliary, was founded to assist normally intelligent persons who have reading difficulties, with a view to preventing tragedies of general maladjustment that might result from failures in one field.

Florence Bourke Ellis

Mrs. Charles Foy and members of her ways and means committee are in charge of the program, which is to be followed by a tea under the direction of Mrs. Fannie G. Thorne's social committee. Assisting with arrangements are Miss Violet Moffat, guild president and among others, Mrs. J. H. Appleman, Miss Eva Julstrom, Mrs. Charles W. King, Mrs. Mae Frawley, Mrs. Fred Acker, and Miss Helen S. Rock.

Endocreme helps the face and throat to be more youthful looking

Would you like to look younger than your age? Well, for most women, ENDOCREME can accomplish this beautifying result to a degree hitherto thought impossible. Eight years of use has proved ENDOCREME helps to improve the skin itself, not just its superficial appearance. It is the one face cream that contains ACTIVOL. This ACTIVOL is a scientific replacement for woman's own skin-vitalizing substance. Absorbed by the skin, it helps to restore normal growth to cells and tissue. This aids the skin to regain its firmness, freshness, smoothness and radiant charm. Introduced as the first scientific face cream 8 years ago, ENDOCREME is today assisting thousands to regain youthfulness of face and throat. Isn't this the biggest value any cosmetic dollar can buy? If you agree, try ENDOCREME. Many get marked results in only 30 days.

Institute Has Exhibit on Art Interpretation

By Eleanor Jewett

One of the interesting rooms on the first floor of the Art institute is the Gallery of Art Interpretation. Mrs. Katharine Kuh, who has charge of the gallery, has arranged several notable exhibits in this department, each instructive and each illustrative of some facet of modern art put into ordinary terms. The present exhibit is "Still Life Comes to Life."

In the examples of modern art arranged on the walls of the gallery the visitor is shown by separate sketches what, in the opinion of the interpreter, the artist is trying to do and how he manipulates his brushes, paints, and set-up, to achieve his objective. Monet, generally regarded as the founder of impressionism, is dilated upon rather from the point of view of an artist concerned with light falling upon his subjects, to the diminution in importance of the subjects themselves.

Cezanne is an example of the painter who tried to convey substance and form thru color. The still life by Van Gogh [a chair selected from the "Bedroom at Arles" in the Birch-Bartlett gallery] is displayed to suggest the chair had been in recent use, with emphasis on the pipe and pouch of tobacco. The further bit illustrated, that no one is occupying the chair, hardly needs to be stressed, for it is obvious to the least skilled eye that the chair is vacant.

An interesting feature in connection with the still life water color of the Maine coast by Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, is the presence beside it on a pedestal of water-and-weather-worn objects collected from the beaches along our own lake front. The shell incrusted bottle is particularly intriguing.

In any such exhibit as this the student can follow only so far as he is in sympathy with the ideas of the instructor. Some of the illustrations and theories expressed seemed of value to us, and others irrelevant or presuming. In the long run the artist is the best exemplifier of his own work; the genius that turns out the right picture cannot be caught in any prose summary or detailed dissection.

Stanley Mitruk, a former Art institute student, helped Mrs. Kuh in installing the exhibition and betrayed talent in the job. He is a skilful painter with a well developed sense of color. Last year Mitruk won the Clusmann prize in the Chicago Artists and Vicinity exhibition at the Art institute. At present he is teaching at the Arden Shore Camp and School in Lake Bluff, and he has designed costumes and sets for the Chicago Ballet Repertory company.

The print department of the Art institute is innovating a new procedure this month and is exhibiting in gallery II. a selection of its recent accessions. Eighteen valuable and unique prints, all old masters, comprise the first group to be shown. Month after month other groups of recent accessions will be displayed. Among the world known artists represented now in the gallery are Durer, Van Dyck, Goya, and Rembrandt.

Three Chicagoans, all from the Institute of Design, 247 E. Ontario st., have won prizes in a nation-wide competition for a G. I Joe post-war house. The requirements were for a family of four at an approximate maximum cost of $8,000. Ralph Rapson, head of the architectural department of the Institute of Design, won a prize of $1,000, and an additional project. Two students of the school, Pat Marshall and Stanley Kazdailis, won prizes of $100 each. There were more than 900 entries.

One of the most important and interesting exhibitions ever held by a Chicagoan outside of Chicago is the current exhibt at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, of the unique and valuable collection of costumes and accessories assembled thru the years by Elizabeth Day McCormick on her many journeys abroad. The collection is so extensive that not all of it can be shown at once. Miss McCormick presented the really superb group of embroideries and costumes, one of the world's most complete and important collections, to the Boston museum in 1943. She had considered giving it to the Chicago Art institute, but the institute was not prepared to accept it. Boston feels itself fortunate in being able to accept the collection. It is one of the rare treasures now held in the United States.

Arnold Turtle, Chicago painter, was awarded the Dangel prize of $100 in the current Austin, Oak Park, and River Forest Art league exhibition, 720 Chicago av., Oak Park.

The Olivet College Art galleries is presenting an exhibit of the paintings of Miss Margaret Fisher of Winnetka. Miss Fisher has exhibited in Chicago and her paintings have been well received here and in the east. The current show consists of 13 still life arrangements.

Nicola Ziroli, Chicago painter, has been awarded three prizes in the current 15th annual exhibition of the Springfield, Mo., Art museum. One of his pictures, a pastel entitled "19 Flowers," won two prizes. Both his winning canvases, "Illinois Farm" and "19 Flowers," were bought for the museum's permanent collection.

The eagle has been universally regarded as an emblem of might and courage since ancient times.

Spring Events Signal End of Club Season

The round of spring parties which signals the end of the club season is under way. Members of the Lake City Woman's club will give a luncheon at noon Wednesday in the Illinois Athletic club for their retiring president, Mrs. Rudolph Baumel, who has served for two years. Mrs. Arthur Boone, who served as vice president on Mrs. Baumel's staff, is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Rudolph Baumel [De Haven Photo]

At the group's annual business meeting last week, Mrs. Herman Biersmith was elected to succeed Mrs. Baumel in office. Other executives chosen to fill vacancies on the board were, Mrs. Edward R. Johnson, vice president; Mrs. Conrad Murche, 2d vice president; Mrs. Henry Mars, 3d vice president; Mrs. William Olsen, recording secretary; Mrs. William H. Corning, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Robert M. Stevenson, treasurer.

Also in the party spirit is the meeting of the Women's Chicago Beautiful association, set for 12:30 o'clock Tuesday in the Crystal ball of Hotel Sherman. The association, of which Mrs. Herman C. Lammers is president, works for the beautification of Chicago and its environs.

For entertainment at the spring luncheon, Mrs. William C. Bryan, the program chairman, will present Bernice Barbara Dawson, the whistler, and Alice Stigers. Mrs. Dawson is an authority on bird calls and, in addition to several selections from Grieg and Bizet, will whistle bird songs. Miss Stigers show a film of natural beauty spots and wild flowers in the Chicago area which was produced and edited by the late Albert Hetzner. Before the program, Mrs. Lammers will conduct a symposium on city ordinances governing city cleanliness and there will be reports on war gardens and association's cheer committee working for hospitalized service men.

Maxine Stetson will give her play reading of John Van Druten's "I Remember Mama" for the Friends of American Writers at the group's closing luncheon Wednesday in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field's. Mrs. Colin M. Higgins will preside.

The Campion Mothers' club, an auxiliary of the Jesuit school in Prairie du Chien, Wis., will gather at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday, May 1, in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone for its annual spring luncheon, with Mrs. Robert E. Bonner presiding. Mrs. Bonner is retiring from office, and Mrs. Peter Fox has been elected to take her place. Present at the meeting as speaker will be the Rev. Thomas J. Stemper, president of Campion High school. Olive O'Neil will be presented in a program of songs.

Mrs. Robert E. Bonner

Tuesday will find the "I Will" club gathered at a spring luncheon table in the party room at Marshall Field's. The fete is set for 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. George Burke, music chairman, has arranged for a program by a marimba and piano duo.

At its recent annual election, the club placed in office: Mrs. George J. Teague, as president; Mrs. John R. Doty, vice president; Mrs. Fred Bracken, program chairman; Mrs. William T. Kent, recording secretary; Mrs. Harry Raven, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. L. Halvorson, treasurer, and Mrs. David D. Slagle, Miss Elizabeth Babcock, and Mrs. Arthur Pitann, directors.

Visitors Enjoy Resort Life at Ocean Springs

By Mildred Peterson.

OCEAN SPRINGS, MISS.

It has been like "old home week" here in Ocean Springs on the Gulf of Mexico, where in 1699, two years before the founding of New Orleans, d'Iberville explored the east shore of Biloxi bay and built a wooden fort which he named Fort de Maurepas. Many Chicagoans are here for rest and recuperation, basking in the sunshine and enjoying the warm weather of this scenic spot located on "a sheltered bay where small vessels can come and go in safety at all times," as described so long ago by this intrepid Frenchman.

With the Gulf of Mexico on the south, the Bay of Biloxi on the west, and Fort Bayou on the north, the town is divided into two parts. The outlying boulevard, which swings on an arc along the beautiful beach front, is lined with well constructed homes. Many were built by persons who thought to make their places summer homes but who remained as permanent residents. Back from them, in the great shaded blocks of pines and oaks, are the stoutly built, weathered structures of the older families. Here many of the streets are of crushed white sea shells, and the appearance of even the smallest house is enhanced by a garden of subtropical flowers.

A mile from Ocean Springs, called the "highway of roses" is the heavily wooded resort, Gulf Hills, some 700 acres owned and developed in 1925 by Chicagoan H. W. Branager, who with Mrs. Branager has been down for several months enjoying the blossoming wisteria, camillias, azaleas, dogwood, wild honeysuckle, tung tree, and red bud [some 500 carloads of shrubs were planted here]; the hundreds of songbirds, and numerous outdoor sports.

De luxe hotel villas of Spanish architecture, each with four to eight bedrooms, nestle on the edge of this beautiful estate, which also contains the main clubhouse, where the social activities are centered; the quaint "19th hole" and championship golf course, considered the "sportiest in the south." Several Chicagoans have built homes on the property.

Dr. and Mrs. O. E. Scott, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Fuller, Evanston, were among those enjoying bicycling here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sines and their daughter, Gladys, of Chicago, have been renting one of the villas near the fishing pier.

Others who have been here are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lawrence of Kenilworth; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olsen of Alton, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Alger of Wilmette.

Also guests at this popular resort were the Howard E. Greenes and the Robert H. Adamses of Glencoe, the M. F. Skinners of La Grange, the A. H. Gunns of Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Powers of Aurora, Robert S. Kinsey and Robert W. Childs of Hinsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Dean McCormick of Highland Park, and the David T. Loomises and Thomas J. Boodells, Winnetka.

To be visited near-by are numerous oyster, shrimp, and crab canneries, and the unusual Shearwater Pottery [named from a variety of sea gull found on the coast], located in its picturesque setting. Gulf Hills guests who have visited there are Mr. and Mrs. William Wadden, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. McNulty, Mr. and Mrs. Phelps Johnston, Dr. and Mrs. Lester R. Dragstedt, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Hundley, and Miss Dawn Anderson of Chicago, the Henry H. Thomases, and the J. L. Naus of Evanston, the Byron Howes of Highland Park, the W. H. Hastings and two children of Oak Park, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Tesar of Harvey, and Miss Elizabeth Nordin of La Grange.

Located in the Gulf Hills home site section, at the water's edge, with a beautiful large craft at anchor, is the huge former Lytton home, an attractive Spanish villa, now owned by Dr. and Mrs. Karl Meyer of Highland Park, whose son and wife, Lt. and Mrs. Robert Meyer, have been visiting them.

Another large attractive Spanish villa, built around a peaceful patio, is the old Peacock home, called "Milmarkay," and named for Chicagoans Mildred, Margaret, and Katherine Peacock, who are Mrs. W. W. Haerther, Mrs. G. W. Reynolds, and Mrs. M. V. Reynolds. Mrs. Haerther, with her husband, who is a lieutenant in the navy, stationed at near-by Mobile, Ala., is able to spend considerable time here.

The beautiful large white colonial type home of Chicagoan Mrs. J. G. Little, sister of Mrs. Branager, has recently been purchased by the C. A. Rayners of Chicago. Not far distant from here is one of the sights of this region, or of the country as far as we are concerned, two enormous identical twin live oaks, moss draped, which are considered to be between 500 to 700 years old.

Situated along the impressive Gulf seawall of Point aux Chenes, near Ocean Springs, is the attractive home of the Leslie Cooks of Highland Park.

One of the most interesting estates in the region is that of former Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wiswell, who, when Mr. Wiswell retired some three years ago, purchased a large old place near Ocean Springs on the gulf. The 50 year old home is built in the shape of a "T" so as to get the maximum amount of breeze from the gulf during the hot summer months and has a huge veranda.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

Mrs. Leon Mandel [DuBois, the Drake]

Mrs. Leon Mandel's first "night out" following her return from New York, where she was voted the best dressed representative of the international set by a panel representing the Fashion academy, took her to the Pump room, where other guests craned their necks to see what she was wearing. But if the feminine guests hoped to gain any fashion pointers, they were disappointed. Sitting in one of the room's ample white leather banquettes, Mrs. Mandel and her husband were so hemmed in by masculine friends that it was impossible to get more than a passing glimpse of her dark basic costume. Another dinner guest whose ensemble was more visible when she arose to dance was Mrs. Ferre C. Watkins. Her springlike costume combined muted tones of green and pink. The moss green crepe gown, with sculptured folds drawn to one side, was girdled in twisted ribbons of pale and dark green and pastel pink, which broke into large taffeta loops at one side. A knot of pale pink rosebuds topped her upswept coiffure. The Watkinses, who at present are "between domiciles," have been enjoying a spring holiday at the Homestead in Virginia Hot Springs, and on their return will spend the summer on the north shore. Sharing an early dinner at a near-by table were Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr., she in a simple dark costume whose only flash of color was a garland of red, white, yellow, and blue field flowers around the crown of her hat. Miss Nancy Cochran, dining in a foursome just off the dance floor, wore a cool-looking, short sleeved frock of black crepe with a three inch band of plaid taffeta circling the bodice and ending in a flat bow just below the neckline. A believe-it-or-not item on one of the tables was a quarter of a pound of fresh butter which the host had brought along from his own apartment, having thoughtfully saved up enough red points to provide this extra touch of luxury for his guests.

• • •

Bound for San Francisco where they will spend a few days with Mrs. Ambrose Diehl, Mr. and Mrs. Abner J. Stilwell took along a suitcase full of hard-to-get items that would insure them a hearty welcome from any hostess. Foremost among them were a whole ham and half a dozen sheets, which the Stilwells were able to locate after a veritable treasure hunt when they found that Mrs. Diehl's linen supply was running low. The Stilwells will be back in time for the opening of the Metropolitan Opera association's week long engagement in Chicago, starting April 30. Mrs. Stilwell's preference for comfortable town suits has been inherited by her daughters. To a recent young people's gathering in the Casino club Miss Sally Stilwell wore a dressmaker suit of gray wool with a white blouse tied in a soft bow beneath her chin, and a tiny flowered toque in rust and yellow tones. When the curling season opens here next winter, the ancient Scottish sport will have a new feminine addict, Mrs. Herbert W. Kochs, who learned how to "sweep the ice" on a recent winter sports holiday in Canada and became so proficient that she entered a tournament before she and her husband returned to Kenilworth. Mrs. Kochs explained the fine points of the game when she came into town the other day to accompany her young son to the dentist's, wearing a beige and white checked suit and a small felt cloche. A preview of summer fashions comes from a Chicagoan on holiday in Hobe Sound, Fla., who writes that bare midriff clothes have swept the field. A typical dress is "of short sleeved, vee-necked midriff type—and the openings are at the waist in back, both sides, and a good big open vee right above the tummy," she writes. The same style comes in dinner dresses, street clothes, and pyjamas.

Resort Season at Palm Beach Definitely Over

By Helen Van Hoy Smith

To use a G. I. expression, the Palm Beach season is now "secured." It is definitely done. When the Beach club [Bradley's] closes its little white door, as it did last Monday night, it is a sign in these tropical skies that it's all over, even the shouting.

Several small hotels are remaining open quite late. The Bath and Tennis club still is open and has been the scene of much informal entertaining. The colonists who are left and the army set have taken over the Alibi and Taboo, those two little cocktail bars on Worth av. The Alibi will close on May 15, but Taboo is a sophisticated version of both the first and the last chance saloon. It doesn't close until July, and reopens in October. The Sailfish club remains open all summer.

The rhumba orchestras have packed their maraccas and have hied themselves to greener pastures. The dancing teachers also are in a state of suspended animation, waiting the opening of the summer season farther north. Scores of gray haired men and women in Palm Beach whose dancing days ended with the turkey trot and the bunny hug have taken a new lease on life, thanks to the rhumba.

Golfers have had a fine season, with numerous tournaments. Tennis has also been popular. Missed was the deep sea fishing, yachting, motoring to Miami for the races, and a glimpse of night life, and missed greatly too, was the season of greyhound racing in West Palm Beach which attracted huge crowds of resorters.

Mrs. Robert H. Ritchie who spent the season at the Breakers is now at the Villas. Mrs. John G. Sample came over from Naples, Fla., with a group of friends and spent a few days at Brazilian court. Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock gave a dinner party the other day at Casa Alejandro.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Good who spent the entire season here at their villa on Brazilian av., will leave next week for Moline, Ill. Their daughter, Mrs. Munro Lyeth, who was with them this season now is in New York where her husband, Lt. Lyeth, is enjoying a 30 day leave. Mrs. Thompson Thomas and her daughter, Miss Cynthia Thomas will leave in a few days to attend the graduation of Mrs. Thomas's son, John, from the New York military academy. The family will return to Palm Beach, waiting until later this spring to go to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Kritzer are closing their villa on El Brillo way and leaving today for Glencoe. Mrs. Charles E. Kritzer and Miss Julia Kritzer, Mr. Kritzer's mother and sister, already have returned to Chicago. Mrs. Avery Seaman [Jean Kritzer] is in New York for a visit before returning to Glencoe.

With the social season at an end, numerous real estate changes are taking place. Many of the larger resort properties are on the market, and many have changed hands. The Donohue estate, Ceilito Lindo, on the ocean front is said to be for sale.

A future, bigger, and brighter than ever, is said to loom for Palm Beach as soon as the war is over and building materials are available. A number of ocean hotels are said to be in the blue print stage.

Expected to open soon is the United States navy convalescent hospital in the former Palm Beach Biltmore, recently used as the SPARS training station. This it is understood will be a 1,500 bed hospital.

Daughters of Isabella to Meet on Wednesday

When the Chicago Archdiocesan group of the Daughters of Isabella gathers for a meeting at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday in room 795 of the Palmer House, plans will be made for initiation of new members on the night of May 26. Preceding the induction ceremony, to be held in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House, there will be a dinner at 5:30 o'clock in the Red Lacquer room. Mrs. Carolyn B. Manning of New Bedford, Mass., national regent, will be the special guest on this occasion.

Paul Robeson to Speak at Temple Sholom Today

Paul Robeson, appearing here currently in "Othello," will speak at 11:15 o'clock today in Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore dr. "A Negro at the San Francisco Conference" will be his theme.

Not all aprons are to be worn in the house these days. There are just as many to be found for occasions of fun and frolic, as well as for the earnest efforts involved in growing a successful garden.

Quite the most talked about new gardening apron is the heavy denim half apron of material which looks for all the world like blue and white striped pillow ticking. The neatest little trick on the whole apron is the padded leatherette cushion stitched at the hem and guaranteed to prevent housemaid's knee. Two wide plaits allow for fullness at either side, and deep pockets are satisfactory carry-alls for tools and other impedimenta. A clip is attached at one side of the navy blue band to hold seed packets, on the other side is a key ring.

For more relaxed occasions the white cotton barbecue aprons bound in navy or red with a white chef's cap are useful and effective in more ways than one. In a little pocket below the one for a pack of cigarets is a little pen and a bottle of indelible ink. This is for the autographs of the guests and friends.

Y. W. C. A. Professional Club Plans Forum Meet

The returning service man and emotional readjustments to civilian life will be discussed in forum by the business and professional women's department of the Chicago Y. W. C. A. at a 6:30 p. m. meeting Tuesday in the South Park way center. George Nesbit, regional racial relations adviser with the national public housing authority, will be a guest speaker. He returned recently after 11 months in the South Pacific.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of clubs.

When there are several choices open to a declarer as to the method of playing a hand the selection of the best method frequently involves the use of very good judgment. Obviously, the safest plan is the best. And the one that will succeed despite an unfortunate break of the cards must be the only correct one.

The bidding of today's hand was very accurate. East, holding more than the equal of an opening bid, realizes that there is probably a slam in the hand when partner opens the bid and then jumps. The only obstacle is the fact that partner's jump has been in a suit in which he holds but a singleton, which suggests a partial misfit. When spades are supported by West, that objection becomes slighter and East properly shows the ace of hearts. West's hand now takes on greater luster and the possibility of a grand slam is not too remote. He therefore shows the ace of clubs. At this point it should be noted that the showing of an ace at the level of 6 must always be construed as a grand slam try, since if it were otherwise it would be pointless to show the ace, when a slam is being bid anyway. Note that if East had held the queen of diamonds a grand slam would have been a moral certainty.

In the play East was called upon to exercise great caution. Had he worked on the expectancy that either the trumps or the diamonds would break he would have been doomed to failure. If he had pulled the trump and then trusted to establishing diamonds with one ruff the 4-2 break in that suit would have prevented its establishment. Or if he had ruffed two diamonds in order to establish that suit he would have been defeated by South's winding up with one more trump than declarer.

Instead he went about on the theory that both suits would break 4-2, which, incidentally, is normal. After winning the first break he played the ace and king of diamonds and then a small one. But he did not make the mistake of ruffing it. Instead he discarded a low club, permitting North to hold the trick. There was now nothing the defense could do. Dummy could be entered with the queen of spades and another diamond ruffed high to establish the suit, while the king of hearts still remained in dummy for entry. In this way declarer took five spade tricks in his own hand, four diamond tricks in dummy, which with the two hearts and one club reached the total of 12.

Chicago Woman's Aid Names New Officers for Year

At its 63d annual meeting last week, the Chicago Woman's Aid named Mrs. Aaron E. Kanter as second vice president, and Mrs. William M. Zavis, Mrs. Edward Olin, and Miss Louis Kirchheimer, secretaries. Mrs. Laurence W. Pfaelzer will retain her post as president, with Mrs. Joseph Davis, newly elected first vice president. Department chairmen are Mrs. Lester H. Brill, arts and program; Mrs. Leopold L. Schwartz, public affairs, and Mrs. Alex McD. Simons, welfare.

In the president's report, it was indicated that the organization rolled up total sales last year of $1,333,690.25 in war bonds and stamps, and its members contributed $5,508.50 to the American Red Cross; $12,768 to the Community and War Fund, and $13,929 to Jewish charities. Monetary contributions were augmented by volunteer hours of service.

NATURALLY! Clearer, Fairer Smoother Skin with Mercolized Wax Cream

DON'T try to hide darkened, discolored, or weathered skin with layers of foundation and powder. Thousands of smart women use Mercolized Wax Cream, for it contains a special "active" ingredient that really helps nature clear and lighten your skin, gives your complexion an extra translucence and depth, a lovelier natural coloring. Even freckles lighten and fade with Mercolized Wax Cream. You will discover a fairer, lovelier and truly younger looking skin, one that is smoother and firmer. Mercolized Wax Cream helps make and keep your skin looking as young and lovely as your skin can look. That is why faithful users would not trade their lovelier complexions with women years younger. Use only as directed.

STARTLE your skin to fresher loveliness with Saxolite Astringent. Temporarily contracts loose surface skin, reduces prominence of premature fine lines and wrinkles. Removes excess surface oil.

IS disfiguring facial hair one of your problems? With Phelactine Depilatory it stops being a problem. For Phelactine takes hair off and out. NO stubble. Reappearance of hair is delayed.

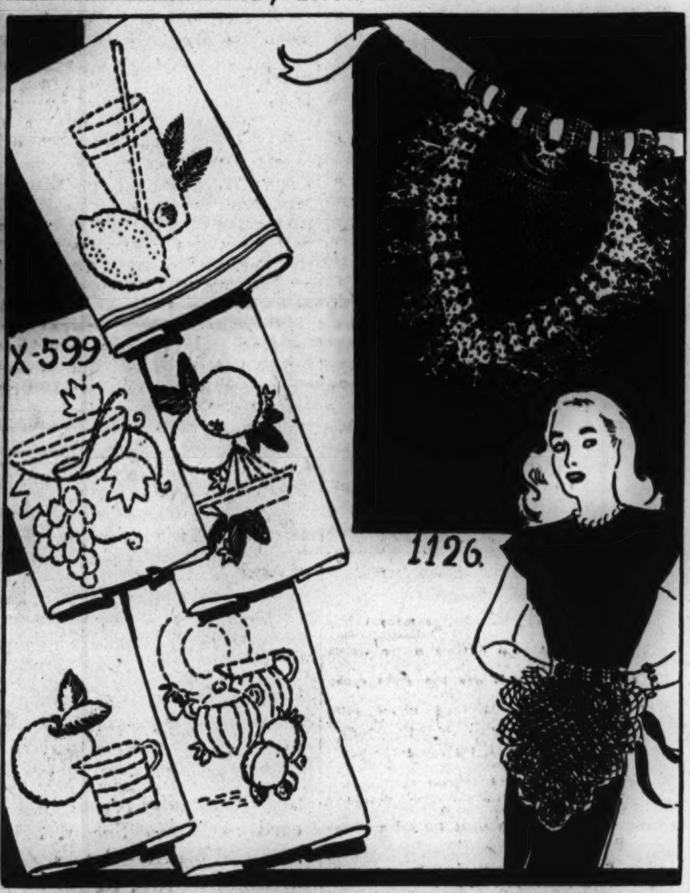
Designs for Needlework

By Ellen Bruce



For quick needlework, try making these good looking glass towels, No. X-599. They are embroidered in outline and represent all the cool beverage comforts of summer. The designs require little to execute since they call for such simple stitches. Linen by the yard or ready made towels may be used.

A lovely lacy crocheted tea apron, No. 1126, created in a pineapple design, is simple to make and effective to wear. Fine, white mercerized crochet cotton is a perfect medium, and contrasting ribbon which serves as a belt ties with a large bow.

For instructions in making either of these items, send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely—30 CENTS for both] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Avocados Are Festive Fruit; Versatile, Too

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"Avocado" is Spanish for "lawyer," but why should a tropical fruit be called lawyer or doctor or any other such professional name? The avocado became an avocado because the word sounds something like "ahuacatl," the Aztec name for this fruit, and apparently was easier to pronounce. The avocado used to be called "alligator pear," but that name has fallen into disrepute, for the buttery green fruit resembles neither an alligator nor a pear. It is pear shaped, to be sure, and grows upon a tree, but there the resemblance ends.

Avocados are so rich in fat that they do not seem fruitlike at all. Their chief use is in salads, but in California, Florida, and Mexico, where avocado trees bear abundantly, they are eaten hot as well as cold, and often are served as vegetable or dessert.

These are a few of the ways in which avocados are served hot:

Sliced, heated in chicken broth, and used to border a platter of chicken curry on rice.

Cut into balls and casseroled with Louisiana shrimps.

Diced and served in patty shells with creamed sweetbreads.

Diced, sauteed in butter, and served with baked fish and lemon garnish.

Scalloped or au gratin-ed with any seafood and piquant sauce.

Diced, combined with mushrooms and pimiento in white sauce; served on toast.

Halved, filled with asparagus tips, covered with cheese sauce and bacon, then broiled or baked until hot.

Diced, or cut in balls, and floated in soup.

There are many other hot avocado dishes which you may or may not care for. The important thing to remember in serving this fruit hot is that it should be barely heated, not subjected to actual cooking.

Avocado pie, really a lemon pie with sieved avocado pulp added, is good, but rich. Avocado mousses and ice cream also are rich desserts.

As for me, I like my avocados in salads or appetizers, with a sharp dressing or acid fruit to counteract the blandness and butteriness.

Chilled avocado balls or cubes are attractive and tasty when combined with other fresh fruit in a cocktail. Segments of orange or grapefruit, cubed fresh pineapple, sliced banana, balls of avocado, and a strawberry garnish make an appealing combination at this time of year.

Avocado may be combined with shrimps or other seafood and served with cocktail sauce.

Halves of chilled avocado filled with fruit salad or seafood salad make excellent warm weather entrees.

You can make a green tinged frosting for that sandwich loaf by blending 1 cup sieved avocado with one 3-ounce package cream cheese, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, ⅛ teaspoon onion salt, a few drops of tabasco sauce, and a little salt. That's a good sandwich filling, too, or spread for potato chips or crackers, when you want a snack.

Mexicans really have something good in "guacamole," pronounced hwa-ca-mo-lay. This is how it's mixed: Sieve avocado pulp to make 1 cup and beat until fluffy. Add ½ cup peeled, mashed fresh tomatoes, juice of ½ lemon, a dash of worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, a drop or two of tabasco, 2 tablespoons minced onion, and salt to taste. That's really a tasty spread for canapes, potato chips, toast, or crackers, and may even be used as a salad dressing for grapefruit or tomatoes.

Buffet Salad with Mustard Cream Dressing

1 No. 2 can kidney beans
3 tablespoons minced onion
¼ cup sharp French dressing
½ cup thinly sliced celery
½ head lettuce, shredded
1 avocado, cubed
Mustard cream dressing

Drain beans, rinse with cold water, and drain again [use drained liquid from beans in soup]. Add onion and French dressing and chill for ½ hour. Drain and add celery, lettuce, and avocado. Serve mustard cream dressing separately.

Mustard Cream Dressing: Blend 1 cup mayonnaise, ¼ cup catchup, 2 tablespoons dry mustard, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 finely chopped hard cooked eggs, and a little garlic salt.

Hints for the Housewife

Since very little water can be used in a double boiler, it sometimes boils away without warning. You can avoid this by placing a metal jar lid in the water compartment. When the water is low the lid will rattle.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

We're approaching that day on which sons and daughters come to mother bearing gifts, and this year the choice of gifts is charming—but don't say we didn't tell you to do your shopping early.

Mothers of all ages like cosmetics and glamor trimmings, you know. And no mother gets quite the bang out of them that the completely selfless mother does, so if yours is the kind who denies herself everything, make it a special point this year to give her a luxury.

It can be a little one, but it should be feminine and "gifty." There is, for example, the inexpensive and rather unusual idea of the pomander ball. A pomander ball, in case you never saw one, is a fat dried orange, marvelously perfumed, that can be hung in closets or stowed away [as a sachet would be] with lingerie or linen.

It's a pretty, sweet thing to own, and while the spicy aroma lasts a long time, it's also possible to buy small vials of the pomander oil so that the fragrance of the ball may be renewed from time to time.

This same fragrance—and fastidious women like it, by the way—also is available in toilet water. If you think she'd fancy the clean, spicy scent of orange oils and spice it's a delightful—and again, a different—choice.

Then there are trifles, of one kind and another, all in the same family that has produced the pomander ball. For a very inexpensive thought, consider the three small tubes of talc, each in a different scent, and all tied together with a bright ribbon.

Or you can get a special "corsage" box. This is packed with bath charmers — dusting powder, toilet water, and soap in such lovely scents as night scented stock, green moss, or a lovely lilac.

Better yet, in some cases, might be the chests of de luxe soaps. The woman doesn't breathe who would be indifferent to soap that is delicately scented, charmingly colored and bland in the special sudsy way that characterizes fine toilet soaps. You can give her—and we know she'll like 'em—little cakes or big ones, one cake or a dozen.

Child Does Not Forget Quickly His Suffering

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Every mother, I suppose, wishes she could spare her children all deeply painful experiences. Or if they must have them, wishes she could erase the impressions left at once. But she has nature to deal with, and nature doesn't work that way. It takes time to soften those impressions, and perhaps a series of pleasant associations to overlay the unpleasant ones.

"Why," said a doctor to me once long ago, "does your little boy mind coming to my office? He doesn't seem to warm up to me at all. Most children do." I think he felt a little chagrined by my small son's reserve in the face of his overtures.

"It may be," I said, "because the first experience in a doctor's office which he can remember was a very painful one. He had been playing with one of the candles from the dinner table, scraping the wax off with his thumb nail. Evidently he forced dirt down into the quick. It later became so badly infected that our doctor cut part of the nail away down below the quick and cleaned it out, without a local anesthetic. It was excruciatingly painful. That association with a doctor's office still lingers."

What brought this to mind was a recent letter from a mother whose little boy had spent long and pain filled months in a hospital. Now he shakes when he has to go back for a checkup, is nervous, and rather fearful. His father thinks perhaps all this might be spanked out of him.

After such an experience by a child it is not unusual for general nervousness to follow, or even for that nervousness to fix itself on a specific [often to us unreasonable] thing, which may not seem to be related to hospitals or doctors at all.

The only treatment is for both a mother and father to be patient and gentle with their child, and to try to build him up in every way, which in the end will build up his whole nervous system.

To do this, well balanced and appetizing meals must be provided but not forced; there must be lots of rest, fresh air, and a normal amount of play. Also, having followed much of the research and applied use of vitamins [in capsule, liquid, or other form], also of certain so-called "tonics" [iron is an example] I believe in their efficacy.

Where a child is nervously run-down, generally below par physically, and may have, as a result, little appetite and no zest for play, it sometimes is hard to get him started on the new path toward physical and mental health. When this is so, a doctor's advice on the above procedure should be sought insistently, for nutrition and nursing care are not always foremost in a doctor's mind.

Another helpful step out of this dilemma is found in diversion—pleasant, but not too tiring, too strenuous activites or amusements to occupy a child's mind happily. Now that spring is here, visits to the museums, picnics, or other jaunts, and for the time at home interesting books.

There is one more point. Occasionally a mother may talk quietly and openly, but briefly about the period in the hospital and how it led to recovery. And also when the doctor is to check the young patient, he should be told he is to go to the hospital [not tricked into it] and reassured.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde

Simply tub them, hang them on the line on a sunny day, and whisk them over an ironing board, and these washable frocks will be ready on hangers for fashion duty during a hot summer week.

For both women and children, these designs have daintiness unusual in practical summer things. One model puts ruffling at the outline of the shoulder yoke. Its neckline is heart-shaped, its waistline low, and its skirt moderately full.

Another design buttons the shoulders, puts scallops around the sleeves, pockets, and neckline, and adopts either plain colors or whimsical prints.

The third model, for the youngest fashion-wise member of your household, does fancy things with cottons. Lace or ruffling may edge the neckline, "wing" sleeves, pockets, and front closing.

Style No. 3604 is designed for sizes 12 to 42. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard ruffling.

Style No. 2810 is designed for sizes 10 to 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch fabric.

Style No. 2886 is designed for sizes 2 to 8. Size 4 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch material.

Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

The spring edition of The Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions now is on sale at the Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and Tribune Tower lobby for 15 cents. The cost is only 12 cents if the book is ordered with a pattern from the address in coupon.

Lady of the House

"Spring is the time when poets
Their lyrical wares disperse;
And so with the coming of spring time,
Things are going from bad to verse!"

With this bit of badinage came Carmen Carter's letter, like a warm seductive breeze from the south, into the howling sleet and snow laden winds of early April.

She and her family had "piled" out of the apartment into the Ford, "filled 'er up" with another four gallons and made for the woods. Arbutus, anemones were out, and adder's tongue budded, but, sad to say, no morels. Too dry. Tree buds bursting into green, and the bluest bluebirds flitting about.

In spite of living in a "handy" apartment in the very treetops, with the added feature of a singing brook right under her bedroom window, Carmen gets—

Spring Fever

Time to start spring cleaning, so many things to do;
But my thoughts keep drifting where violets are blue.
By a gleaming river where the grass grows green
Marsh marigolds unfold their yellow satin sheen.

There on yonder hillside, I'll spend the sunlit hours,
Gathering arbutus, most delicate of flowers,
And baskets of morels, gourmets' cherished treasure,
Along with some brook trout I'll catch at my leisure.

Smell the fragrant pine trees in the warm spring sun;
Goodness! Will I ever get my spring cleaning done?

• • •

While I read that, a wild, uneasy wind, that seemed not to know whence it came and couldn't quite decide whither it was going, spun tattered masses of gray and white fleece over the blue above the treetops. Across the park church bells tolled a dirge and nearer some young beagles joined in mournful commiseration. . . . But new green peeped thru the snow, and I turned back to my mail to learn that the army hasn't succeeded in taking the poetry out of Pvt. Kenneth Sandberg, who sees a—

Service Star in the Sky

Dear Mom, I know your star is shining bright
For this soldier, in the sky tonight.
It's a silver star against the midnight blue
That inspires me to carry thru,
And do my duty with a willingness
That no trial can e'er repress.

Tho a long, long way from his native city, Corp. Al Spong, switching from a carefree first semester at Northwestern to the signal service in the far Pacific, champions Chicago [he must have met one of those New Englanders who think Indians still hunt scalps along the lake front] and modestly adds this bit to our Chicagoana:

Chicago's a wonderful city
In spite of what you've heard;
Pay no attention to gossips,
Their tales are simply absurd.

The Indians no longer congregate
To massacre with fiendish delight—
No more the howls of wolf packs
To frighten travelers at night.

Heed not the sly innuendoes
That brigands and outlaws galore
Infest this beautiful city
By placid Lake Michigan's shore.

Chicago's a city of boulevards,
Of churches, parks, and schools;
Slanderous tales of its wildness
Are only the gossip of fools.

So come to Chicago on business,
Or on vacation for rest,
You'll find its many hotels
Are modern and the best.

Its people, too, are friendly,
Their hospitality is no fake—
Chicago, the city beautiful,
Chicago, the city by the lake.

We are happy to know that bits from this column have been cherished by our boys in all the far corners of the earth, as well as on the ships at sea; icy and torrid water, invasion beaches, fox holes . . . hospitals.

Adding to "old family customs," Ursula Werdenhoff reminds us that Mrs. Andrew Carnegie had her distinguished dinner guests write their names on the cloth; embroidering them after each party. The Museum of the City of New York exhibited the cloth in 1938. Among the famous autographs were those of Mark Twain, Brander Matthews, Woodrow Wilson, Marie Curie, Ernest Thompson Seton, and many others.

Having adopted the custom herself, Mrs. Werdenhoff says the names make more conversation than the food and the flower arrangements—one being that of a prisoner in the Philippines, another in New Guinea, one in Belgium, and so on thru the list.

A lady of the White House is given credit for originating the custom. Does any reader of this column know which one? M. M.

Ask your Druggist for this quick-action dentifrice in the large DOUBLE SIZE container! It saves you money!

Have you heard people say, "I don't like Marmalade"? Of course you have . . . for the slightly bitter-tart taste of most varieties is distasteful to some palates. And that's right where the makers of WELCH'S Grape Juice have been smart . . . for they've created an Orange Marmalade especially for the American taste . . . an Orange Marmalade that is NOT bitter and just r-i-g-h-t in sweetness! It's made from FRESH oranges . . . contains NO "ersatz" citrus concentrate. Try this WELCH'S Orange Marmalade . . . see if all your family doesn't agree that it's marmalade with a DIFFERENCE . . . marmalade that's not only wonderful as a spread for breads, but good enough to eat with a spoon! Ask your Grocer for this fresh orange sweet-treat . . . watch how it helps you save on both sugar and butter!

A Friend to Gardeners!

Victory Gardening can be fun . . or you may find that your hitherto pampered skin gets raw and sore as you work outdoors. So why not enlist a dependable help against troubles at wrists, neck and armpits, or from chafing of heavy work clothes or bramble scratches? Your skin will respond gratefully to RESINOL Ointment . . . so soothing, and quickly relieving, when itching, smarting sensations caused by non-poisonous insect bites, poison ivy, blisters, chafing, minor scratches and dirt and grime cause external skin irritations. Have a jar of RESINOL handy on your bathroom shelf . . . and "garden" in comfort this summer!

Finders are keepers . . . and how lucky you'll be if you find VICEROY Cigarettes at your tobacconist's! Grab them and congratulate yourself . . . for you'll discover what I mean when I say they're the SMART smoke for SMART women. They're made from the choicest blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos and have a unique filter tip that screens off resins, tars and other throat irritants and keeps tobacco crumbs IN the cigarette. So take my tip and be sure you ask for VICEROYS every time!

Manicuring "Speed"!

Have you treated yourself to that new wonder of wonders . . . NAIL-DRI? If you haven't, "You'll be S-O-R-R-Y"! Slickest bit of magic I've run across in a month of Sundays. It dries fingernail polish in jig-time . . . in fact, IMMEDIATELY! What's more, it puts an end forever to smears and smudges and nerve-wracking last-minute polish accidents. Use NAIL-DRI over any kind or color of polish . . . the original color and brilliance remain absolutely unchanged. Just apply . . . and your polish is dry! You can now buy NAIL-DRI at Drug and Department Stores and Beauty Shops at 50c a bottle. That's less than 1 cent a manicure!

Meats and vegetables left over from their first hot serving must NOT be wasted . . . so here are a few tips on how to make them new and appetizing dishes for Tomorrow's lunches and dinners:

- Reheat Lima Beans in a little milk to which 1 drop of BURNETT'S Onion Food Flavor has been added. For extra flair,—add a dash of Green Food Coloring from BURNETT'S Color Kit.
- Serve chilled vegetables with cold meat slices . . . topping vegetables with mayonnaise to which you've added BURNETT'S Pure Lemon Flavor and 1 drop of BURNETT'S Garlic.
- Make left-over corn into fritters and serve with syrup made with BURNETT'S famous Maple Flavor.
- Frost fruit with sugar and add your choice of BURNETT'S Rum, Sherry or Brandy Flavors.

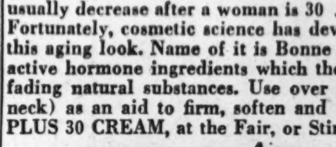
Be Good to Your Hands!

"To err is human . . . to forgive divine." And I'm sure your hands will forgive any criminal neglect you've shown them IF you start pampering them right away with YARDLEY Hand Cream. It's amazing how even the most coarsened, chapped and roughened hands will react to the lubricating action of this pale pink cream that pours on right out of a bottle. YARDLEY Hand Cream isn't sticky or greasy . . . but has a caressing creaminess and a flower-scented fragrance that tenderly soothe and smooth your hands. Try it to improve the texture of your handskin! Cost is 65c at finer shops everywhere!

How Old Does Your "Skin" Look?

A birth certificate isn't the only thing that proves how old you are . . . your skin does, too! That's because there are certain active hormones which usually decrease after a woman is 30 . . . and a natural aging process begins. Fortunately, cosmetic science has developed a new cream that helps prevent this aging look. Name of it is Bonne Bell PLUS 30 CREAM, and it contains active hormone ingredients which the skin can absorb to help replenish the fading natural substances. Use over night (about a thimbleful on face and neck) as an aid to firm, soften and smooth your skin. Ask for Bonne Bell PLUS 30 CREAM, at the Fair, or Stineway Drug Stores.

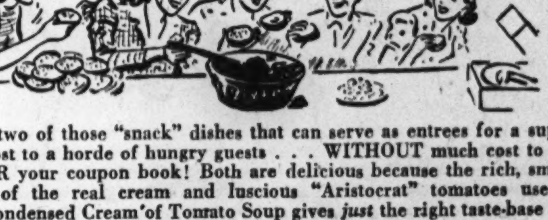


As light as morning mists . . . as sheer as the twilight breeze! Yes,—these are the poetic ideals which HOUBIGANT has endeavored to catch in a sheer Face Powder to bring you a light make-up for sheer, natural loveliness! Just ask your Drug or Department Store to show you "Translucid" Face Powder . . . and you'll agree that this sheer-sifted, clinging and enchantingly perfumed powder succeeds in catching the very breath of Spring! Ask for the "Translucid" Lipstick ($1), too . . . made to accent each of the 7 shades of blended Face Powder ($1.50 a box) you choose.

"Confidentially"

Since BUY-LINES is a woman's column, it's only natural that we should discuss the more intimate feminine problems here. So I hope you won't mind a "repeat" tip on TAMPAX . . . for certainly the news of the medically familiar principle of INTERNAL absorption applied to sanitary protection is one that every woman should understand! TAMPAX, made of compressed surgical cotton, was perfected by a doctor to be worn internally. This gives INVISIBLE protection and eliminates chafe, odor and cumbersome external protectors. Ask for it at Drug and Notion Counters . . . and you'll enjoy TAMPAX-freedom!

Many a Mother has written in to ask what lipstick I'd suggest for teenagers. And always my "voice-'n'-vote" has gone to a lipstick shade that's young and fresh and natural looking. So let me tell you about "Royal Pink," the new HERB FARM SHOP shade that seems to me to have a perfect affinity for young lips . . . as well as giving a natural pink for older complexions. Girls will especially like the flower-decorated white plastic case. There's another HERB FARM SHOP lipstick I'd like to recommend, —"Royal Rose," a wonderful new high-fashion shade to complement the new rosy-pink, fuchsia tones seen in so many of the smartest Spring fashions. Cost of these lipsticks is $1 each, plus 20% Federal Tax . . . and you'll find them at Marshall Field's or Mandel Bros.



Here are two of those "snack" dishes that can serve as entrees for a supper, or play host to a horde of hungry guests . . . WITHOUT much cost to your budget OR your coupon book! Both are delicious because the rich, smooth blending of the real cream and luscious "Aristocrat" tomatoes used in HEINZ Condensed Cream of Tomato Soup gives just the right taste-base . . .

★ TOMATO RAREBIT

1 11-oz. can Heinz Condensed Cream of Tomato Soup, undiluted
¼ lb. American cheese, grated
½ teaspoon Heinz Prepared Yellow Mustard
Place Soup and cheese in saucepan. Heat over very low heat, stirring constantly, until cheese is melted and mixture is smooth. Add Mustard. Blend well. Serve over slices of toast. Serves 4.

★ FRENCH TOMATO TOAST

2 eggs, lightly beaten — ½ teaspoon salt
1 11-oz. can Heinz Condensed Cream of Tomato Soup, undiluted
8 slices bread — Fat
Combine eggs, salt and Soup. Blend thoroughly. Dip bread into Soup mixture, then fry in fat on both sides until golden brown. Serve with Cheese Sauce. Serves 4.

Note that you use a can of undiluted soup in these recipes . . . but don't forget that the contents of one can of HEINZ Condensed Soup doubles itself in rich, flavorful soup when you add an equal amount of water or milk. That's real economy for you . . . 22 ounces of nutritive soup from ONE can!

E-Z
UNDERWEAR
for INFANTS

Here's that E-Z trade-mark famous with 4 generations of Mothers . . . E-Z Underwear for Infants that guarantees accurate fit because sizing is by age AND weight of the baby for whom the garments are cut to fit! This rules out too-tight or too-loose garments that may chafe or bind, or loosely encumber baby's movements. Take a special look at the E-Z "Sleeper," too . . . it ties at hands and feet for "snug-tight" protection and is warm, light and easily washable. Price is moderate . . . ask for E-Z Underwear and make certain Baby has a PERFECT fit!

A . . . Wedding gown of crisp, white organdie has off-the-shoulder neckline and fitted bodice with deep vee in front. • B . . . Matching bridesmaids' dresses. • C . . . Romantic wedding gown is of fine net, luxuriously encrusted with effective white lace. • D . . . Pink net bridesmaid's dress boasts ruffled peplum. Matching head dress is trimmed with bow.

Spring Bridal Fashions Are Sheer Beauty

By Rea Seeger

Bridal bureaus, wherein is displayed all the newest trousseau fashions, are going strong. With spring weddings every bit as important as fall affairs and with the traditional month of June just ahead, all brides-to-be are viewing the current collections with a combination of dewy eyed romance and shrewd shopping evaluations.

As in former years, the summer sheers and thin materials are being starred. Nets, laces, thin, filmy organdies, cotton nets, eyelet embroidery, and dotted nets, are provocatively feminine and picturesque, either made simply and demurely with wide gathered skirts and fitted bodices, or with the rumba ruffles or deep flounce ruffles.

Bridal bureaus are staffed with experts who will advise and suggest, with the wisdom and experience of years to back them up. They also know the present supplies and how to plan either a wedding with ceremony and pomp for which plenty of time is allowed, or a furlough wedding with only three hours or less in which to turn the trick.

You may walk in and choose only a wedding gown, or plan the entire wedding, complete with gown, travel suit, play clothes, even the correct and available supplies for a chest of linens and household necessities. Or, just the wedding gown and the bridesmaids' dresses can be selected. But whatever you decide, skilled and interested experts are ready to take over.

Fine cotton net is this spring's most important basic material, for bride and all the attendants can be dressed in clouds of it. The bride may wear chalk or ivory white; the bridesmaids may use pastel shades, and the mothers may select silver gray, deep green, or raspberry colored net. There is unlimited yardage of this unrationed net, so that swirling skirts are legal.

Wedding veils, unless you're lucky enough to be the proud possessor of a heirloom piece or can borrow an equally precious wedding veil from relative or friend, are short, since airy, fine tulle is rare and exceedingly hard to find.

Romantic wedding gowns of sheer combined with lace are exquisitely fashioned. The lace is appliqued in patterned designs over the wide skirt of net, chiffon, or sheer, with the bodice completely covered with the same lace. Insertion bands and lace edgings are combined with organdie or with net. All-lace gowns are featured, too. Some have short, puffed sleeves; others have long, fitted sleeves that taper to a point well down over the wrists.

Spring emphasizes the importance of youthful wedding gowns. While stately satins and clinging crepes still are available, bridal gowns for the petite or young silhouette dramatize the fluttering, filmy ruffles, some gowns having the entire skirt from waist to hem an animated whirl of fine narrow ruffles. Bridesmaids' dresses from a spring and ner complete the pageant. Head dresses are simple. Sometimes they are just a band of the material of the gown with a bow for the bridesmaids and a simple coronet of tiny white flowers for the bride.

Sketched are two new wedding gowns and the companion bridesmaids dresses from a spring and summer trousseau collection to be found in a Chicago store. Others with the same appeal and picturesque beauty are in the same collection. For further information call Superior 0200.
